Gerald George Says . . .

Let's Not Celebrate Christmas Now!

It's Christmas time again.

The first, unmistakable signs of the approaching season are observable in Salina, to wit, a Christmas catalogue in a shopping center toy store and preparations for obtaining down-town Christmas decorations.

Now maybe you look forward to Christmas and welcome these signs every 15th of September just as some people welcome the sight of a robin in January.

On the other hand, maybe you are like me in that you get so sick of Santa Clauses and carols and reindeer on the roofs of stores and the "jingle bells" of cash registers inside and Christmas generally that by Dec. 25 you can't bear to get up in the morning to celebrate.

If so, I ask your support in getting a number of anti-early-Christmas measures underway, the kind of measures which have shown themselves to be so effective in campaigns of other kinds.

First, I propose the mayor of Salina proclaim each and every week from now until the week of Dec. 25 "Non-Christmas Week" to be celebrated by not celebrating at all.

Second, I propose the ministerial alliance publically frown on any holly, stable scenes, or other manifestations of Christmas appearing in the city prior to the week of Dec. 25. I propose they do this literally, in a body.

Third, I propose the D.A.R. issue a resolution condemning such obviously communistic tricks as using certain callous men to give capitalism a bad name by capitalizing to the fullest extent on the best of public sentiments, namely, giving gifts.

Fourth, I propose the labor unions picket stores which make men work as Santa Clauses before it is cool enough to be comfortable in Santa Claus suits.

Fifth, I propose all citizens write their congressmen to ask support for an amendment to all appropriations bills stating that communities which allow promotion of gift-buying before the actual Christmas season will get no gifts from the federal government.

If all these measures still somehow fail to get the point across and the task accomplished, perhaps we should follow the means used by the one who had more to do with establishing Christmas than anybody: there must be some legal way we can drive the money-changers out of the temple of our beautiful tradition.

FLAG: Q. What member of congress introduced the bill to change the wording of the flag pledge by adding the words "under God"? N. H.

A. Seventeen different house resolutions were introduced in connection with the movement to insert the phrase "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance. It was the resolution of Representative Louis C. Rabaut which was finally passed.

YEAR: Q. When did the month of March cease to be the first month of the year? S.R.P.

A. When England adopted the Gregorian calendar by act of parliament in 1752, January replaced March as the first month of the year. In the early colonial days in America, the year began in March.

Among the fierce beauties of America that we in this area of the country seldom see, except in a zoo or a taxidermist shop, is the American bald eagle, our national symbol. Mrs. Ralph E. Duncanson of Lowell who is originally from Keokuk, Iowa, recently passed on a bit of information about her old home town area where the residents are able to see these magnificent birds many of which "winter" in the vicinity.

High on a cliff, a mile or two outside Keokuk, where Indians once lived and which is still the graveyard of many, more than 250 bald eagles nest every winter. Each year the area attracts more and more of the birds because here, where the Des Moines river joins the Mississippi, the fish are plentiful and the grain abundant from the farms, including one belonging to Mrs. Duncanson's cousin, Mrs. Carol Wadsworth Peters, whom the Lowell couple visit each year. For the soaring eagles, the view must be as beautiful as it is to humans, looking down on the two rivers and the low farm lands of Missouri and Illinois.

Mrs. Duncanson's grandfather, Manning Winchell Stevens, was one of the early settlers of the area where the Indians lived for many years before him and where eagles probably glided long before the Indians arrived. The Indians lived there because the area is free from the destroying weather of tornadoes, cyclones and hurricanes. Apparently the eagles also were aware of this haven.

In 1852 the settler came from New Canaan, Conn., to clear away the land, build his log cabin which eventually became a 14-room house in 1854 (and is still standing). He returned east to marry a Holyoke girl, who was related to the poet Longfellow.

With his bride he returned to his farm in Keokuk to live and raise a family that has grown over five generations to number almost 100 persons.

Mrs. Duncanson, who has "returned" east to live in Lowell retains her pride in her old home and can readily understand the attraction an eagle must feel to this "home" in Iowa.

OF THIS AND THAT . . . speaking of beautiful views from high places, the argument still persists in Lowell as to which point in the city is the highest. In any case, it certainly cannot be denied that one of the most impressive views is from the heights of Durant street on Christian Hill. It gives a panorama of the city, hard to match.

In the department of more or less useless information, it might be noted that this month, besides being the month when George Washington and Lincoln were born, February also has the distinction of being the month of the groundhog, the formation of the Southern Confederacy (1861), the formation of the Parents and Teachers association (1897) and the patent of the sewing machine (1842). It also is the month of Charles Dickens and Edison's birthday. And in February the United States purchased the Danish West Indies in 1917; the Hudson tunnel was opened in February 1908 and the first railroad was charted in 1827. This impressive array of data should be completed with the knowledge that the flower of February is the violet and the birthstone is the amethyst.

The last Wednesday of this month is Ash Wednesday when the Christian world will go into a period of penitence, but before the austere season of mourning purple starts, many people will be enjoying parties and Mardi Gras such as the one being sponsored by the Holy Trinity Polish parish Holy Name society. This one is being held Saturday evening at the state armory on Westford street. The society is raising money for church renovation.

D.A.R. Wreaths Laid on Tombs Of Washingtons

WASHINGTON, Apr. 14 (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution held traditional memorial services today for 3348 members who died in the past year.

The services and placing of wreaths in Arlington Cemetery and at the tombs of George and Martha Washington in Mount Vernon preceded the scheduled opening of the 67th Continental Congress tomorrow.

Mrs. Brucel Canaga of Berkeley, Calif., chaplain general, was in charge of the ceremonies at Constitution Hall. Among those honored at the memorial service were three charter members, Eugenia Washington Moncure Bradfield, the D.A.R.'s first geneologist, and Marie Henderson Moore Forrest, both of Washington, and Stella Catlin Wadhams of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Four thousand members of the D.A.R. are expected for the week-long congress.

Mrs. Frederic Groves of Cape Girardeau, Mo., elected president general last April, is presiding at heer first congress. The session opens tomorrow night, with the first business meeting Tuesday.

WASHING... ing one new member is a major event in the 62nd congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution here this week.

The new member is Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower.

The first lady's application to be a member at large has been accepted by the national society, the White House said. DAR aides added that she will be the 2180th member at large.

Mamie to Join DAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has announced she will join the Daughters of the American Revolution.

DAR: Q. When M... Eisenhower joined the Daughters of the American Revolution in the spring of 1953, what was her membership number? V.R.

A. She was the 2180th member at large.

MAYFLOWER: Q. Was the Mayflower broken up after its last journey to the New World? O. B. F.

A. This was the general belief at one time, but not long ago the upper portion of a barn in England was identified as the remains of the historic ship. It rests, upside down, on a brick foundation, the hull serving as the roof. The barn is in a Quaker settlement at Jordan's, about 20 miles outside London. After tracing the Mayflower's history in port records and checking with William Bradford's diary, Dr. James Rendel Harris, a British historian, concludes that the barn was built from the original vessel. In those days, when the Navy had first use of all the good oak available, it was not uncommon for farmers to buy old ships and use them in this way.

Annual Meeting Of Betsy Ross Chapter

Mrs. Gordon Currier, regent, will preside at the annual meeting of Betsy Ross Chapter, D. A. R. to be held Saturday at Rolling Ridge, North Andover. Luncheon at 1 p. m. will be followed by the report of the Continental Congress submitted by Mrs. William A. McLennan, delegate, and the reading of the annual reports. Election of officers for the coming year will be followed by a memorial service. A musical interlude will conclude the program.

Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. John M. Knowles, chairman; Mrs. Lot W. Quealy, Mrs. Edna E. Bixby, Mrs. Joseph E. Stott, Mrs. Gordon Currier, Gertrude Morgan, Mrs. Clarence H. Rooks, Mrs. Harry R. Lawrence and Mrs. Howard R. Whitehead.

Membership of D. A. R.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK TIMES:

When questioned by a panel recently Robert Welch of the John Birch Society stated that other organizations did not tell how many members they have. In naming them he listed the Daughters of the American Revolution.

For Mr. Welch's information the membership of the D.A.R. by states is published frequently in the D.A.R. magazine, which is in most libraries. Membership now is about 185,000, including over 13,000 in New York State.

President To Visit DAR

Eisenhower Speaks Before Congress Thursday

By Frances Lide

A visit from President Eisenhower will highlight the 63d Continental Congress of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Last year the President, following a White House custom of recent years, sent a message to be read at the opening session of the DAR's annual meeting here.

Additional DAR News on Pages D-9 and D-10.

This year he will go to Constitution Hall on Thursday to extend his greetings in person.

President Eisenhower will make his appearance following his return from his Easter vacation in Augusta, Ga.

The first lady, however, is not expected back in the Capital until the 26th.

Also scheduled Thursday is the presentation of an Award of Commendation to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"The Spirit of America" has been chosen as the theme of the five-day congress, which formally opens at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Constitution Hall.

Miss Gertrude Carraway, the president general, will make the keynote address at the opening session. The program also will include an address by Senator Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire, who is President Pro-tempore of the Senate.

'Town Meeting' Scheduled

Three other members of Congress will appear on the program Thursday evening—two of them as participants in the "Town Meeting of the Air" to be recorded for rebroadcast on April 27.

Senator Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan and Representative Bolling, Democrat, of Missouri are scheduled to debate the subject, "Has Too Much Power Been Centered in the Executive Branch of the Government?"

Later in the evening, Senator Martin, Republican, of Pennsylvania, will make an address on the topic, "The Defense of Freedom—Today and Tomorrow."

All of the branches of the armed forces will be represented on the national defense program Tuesday night when Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U. S. A., will make the principal address.

The invocation will be given by Maj. Gen. Charles I. Carpenter, Chief of Chaplains, U. S. A. F.; the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag will be led by Vice Admiral Leland Lovett, U. S. N., retired, and the American's Creed will be led by Lt. Gen. Julian C. Smith, U. S. M. C., retired.

The program also will include a talk by Fulton Lewis, jr., commentator, entitled "Washington Report".

The accent will be on youth Friday morning when a group of school girls and boys from Nebraska will stage a playlet, "Junior American Citizens Club Meeting". J. A. C. clubs are sponsored by the DAR and increasing emphasis is being put on this project as a means of combating juvenile delinquency.

Students from the two DAR-owned mountain schools—Tamassee in South Carolina and Kate Duncan Smith in Alabama—will appear Wednesday afternoon with officials of the two schools.

Pages' Dance Tuesday

Social events of the congress will include the pages' dance on Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel and the president general's reception Friday afternoon in Constitution Hall.

A tea at the White House for the visiting delegates was not scheduled this year but a tour of the Executive Mansion has been arranged from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesday for members of the society.

The adoption of resolutions will, as usual, have an important place on the convention agenda.

Miss Carraway announced last week that the procedure of sending advance copies of proposed resolutions to the various DAR chapters in January was abandoned this year.

The plan was tried for three years, she said, but didn't work out.

"A lot happens between January and April and the resolutions very often were out of date," she declared.

The Resolutions Committee will make its first report to the congress Tuesday morning and voting on resolutions will begin Wednesday.

As the society prepares for its annual convention, it has the largest membership in DAR history, with 176,343 on the rolls as of February 1. This figure represents a net increase of 3,500 in the past year, Miss Carraway said.

TOP OFFICIAL—Miss Gertrude S. Carraway of New Bern, N. C., president general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, stands before the fireplace in the North Carolina State room in the DAR Museum.

Museum to Receive Memorial Collection

Parents of the Late Kathleen Douglass Will Make the Presentation Tomorrow

By Mary L. Vaughan

Tuesday, September 22, 1780, is a memorable date in the history of this country.

On that day, the delivery of West Point into the hands of the British was planned by Benedict Arnold and the British spy, Maj. John Andre, at a secret conference in a Hudson River hideout.

Within 24 hours, however, the spy Andre was turned over to an American Army camp commander by an alert American officer of the Revolution, Maj. John Paulding.

According to the legend, Benedict Arnold was breakfasting with Gen. George Washington when he received, via a note, word of Andre's capture. He left the breakfast table, legend continues, and promptly fled to the British.

Tomorrow, an antique collection, including personal possessions of Maj. Paulding, will be given to the Daughters of the American Revolution in memory of a lineal descendent of the major, the late Miss Helene Kathleen Douglass of Alexandria, Va., a member of the Mount Vernon Chapter DAR.

Collection Is Large

The memorial collection, one of the largest individual antique collections ever presented to the DAR museum, is being given by Miss Douglass' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald Douglass of Alexandria.

It includes furniture, silver, china and jewelry and is unique in that most of the articles have been handed down from generation to generation from original owners, many of whom were outstanding American patriots.

Foremost among the items is an enamel and gold chain originally given by Napoleon Bonaparte to his youngest sister, Caroline. The latter married Gen. Murat and Napoleon named them King and Queen of Naples. The chain was given by Caroline to one of her close friends, Mrs. Catherine Van Renssaeler Heaton Offley, great-great-grandmother of Helene Kathleen Douglass.

Mrs. Offley's husband was John Offley, son of David Offley of Philadelphia, the latter great-great-great-grandfather of Miss Douglass.

David Offley, in 1806, went to Turkey where he served as American consul until his death, having negotiated the first United States trade treaty with that country. A desk of his is included in the collection as well as a silver beaker inscribed "D. O."

Another interesting object in the collection is a pre-Revolutionary gold, silver and pearl mess kit which belonged originally to Revolutionary Army Maj. Samuel Cooper, who married Miss Mary Horton of Newburgh at Horton House.

Family history relates Gen. Lafayette was a house guest at the time of the marriage and when Miss Horton's father was called away on military duty, Gen. Lafayette gave the bride away.

Maj. Cooper was a great-grandson of Chief Justice Samuel Sewell of Massachusetts, one of the original members of the Boston Tea Party. The major served on George Washington's staff and was one of the organizing charter members of the Society of the Cincinnati. His grandfather, the Rev. William Cooper, was rector of the Brattle Street Church in Boston and was elected president of Harvard University in 1737.

A magnificent toddy ladle in the collection belonged to Miss Douglass' great-great-great-great-grandfather, Robert Heaton of Barnard Castle, Durham, England, who came to America before the Revolution and was a close friend of Col. George Mason of Gunston Hall, Va.

Valuable Lowboy

One of the more valuable articles is a Queen Anne lowboy handed down directly from Miss Douglass' fourth great-grandfather, Capt. John Douglass of Philadelphia who raised and equipped, at his own expense, a regiment for the American Revolution.

Capt. Douglass later received an expression of appreciation from the Congress and was personally presented by George Washington with a pin containing a snip of the general's hair.

Other outstanding items in the group are two pairs of Sevres vases of exquisite coloring and design, a book mark made by Nellie Custis Lewis in the 1830's or 40's at Audley in Clarke County, Va.; and a prayer book made in 1765 in Oxford, England, and used by Miss Douglass' fourth great-grandmother, Mrs. Deborah Hilton Heaton of Barnard

COLLECTOR'S ITEM—The curator of the DAR Museum, Mrs. Cecil Norton Broy, holds an antique ivory fan from the Douglass memorial collection, a portion of which is housed in the illuminated niche above.

PRIZED GIFT—Mrs. Hazel Browne Douglass, seated at Daniel Webster's desk, which she and her husband presented to the museum, discusses the collection with Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, DAR organizing secretary general.

Lawmakers Worry Over What to Wear To White House Soiree on the 27th

The telephone wires between Capitol Hill and the White House have been burning for the last two weeks. The difficulty is that some of the lawmaking gentlemen are in a tizzy.

First, they didn't want the full dress White House soiree in their honor to take place on the 27th, and secondly, since it is, they don't want to wear white tie and tails. The White House says about one-third of Congress had telephoned about this party.

You'd think that, since it's Eastertime, women would get a chance to fuss about their finery. But, no, they can barely get a word in edgewise with the legislators wringing their hands over what they're going to wear.

Why are they making such a to-do over doing what everybody else does naturally? It's not that they begrudge one night's rental on a "soup and fish." It's just that when a politician wants to turn his best face to his constituents, he'd better not look too hot from the neck down.

All through history, however, Senators and Representatives have donned their best bib and tucker to pace the polished floors at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue. Inside the hallowed halls they are always safe from the scrutiny of doubtful constituents. They can even glance admiringly into White House mirrors at the fine figures reflected therein.

But this year something went awry. Nobody realized it at first, but the 9 o'clock reception falls on the evening when the United States Chamber of Commerce stages its dinners for the Congressmen of every State. That means the most important constituents in the country will be here. And their probable reaction to their Congressmen, beautifully attired in white tie and tails, stepping into chauffeur-driven limousines to drive to the White House, is making the Congressmen shudder.

First they tried to get the President to change the date of the reception but he refused. This jinxed party has already been postponed four times—the last time because of the Puerto Rican shooting. Everybody has his fingers crossed now, certain that something else is bound to happen.

Next, the gentlemen on Capitol Hill had their dinners put up till 6 o'clock so there would be no conflict. But they still didn't want to wear tails to dinner.

"Can't we come in black tie?" they've been asking. The White House hasn't said "of course." If it did it would change a social custom that goes back into history. It has passed the word along, however, that if droves of men arrive in dinner jackets, let them in, they belong. Besides, that's one way of telling who's the most worried about the fall elections.

If the weather's super and business isn't too pressing, Senators George, Mundt and Robertson and their wives will take to the Virginia woods on May 9. They are among the over 100 guests invited by members of the King and Queen Rod and Gun Club to the club's annual shadbake and oyster roast.

Among the members who are busy planning fishing and trapshooting contests midst all the outdoor eating are the Spanish Minister and Senora de Propper, the Kermit Roosevelts, Sue and Phil Clarke, the Bob Portners, Tom and Virginia Kelly, the Dick Huchinsons and Valerie and John de Sibour.

The presidents of the League of Republican Women and the Women's National Democratic Club are going to sit and hold hands, almost, for the Goodwill Embassy Tour on the 24th. Mrs. Edmund S. Kochersperger and Mrs. Oscar L. Chapman couldn't bury the hatchet and unite their opposing clubs for a better reason. The Goodwill Industries give gainful employment to the lame, the halt and the blind who have been turned down everywhere else. They give men and women back their souls by proving to them and the world that the handicapped make the best workers.

Actually, Mesdames Kochersperger and Chapman will both stand at the door of the Dominican Embassy that day to receive distinguished guests. That's the embassy, Washington's newest, where tea will be served. The home of the late Miss Mary B. Adams, the embassy has just been taken over by the Ambassador and Senora de Moya.

GEORGETOWN ON VIEW—One of the Georgetown gardens to be open this week end for the Georgetown Garden Tour is that of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Arnold at 1601 Caton place. Mrs. Arnold is shown here in her garden, which will be on the Sunday tour along with the rest of the Caton place gardens.

WORTHY BENEFIT—The Georgetown Neighborhood House will benefit from the tour Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Richard Harkness is shown in their garden at 3035 Dumbarton avenue, which will be open Saturday.

Tour Gardens Will Be in Full Bloom

Georgetown gardens will be at their best next week end when visitors will be invited to inspect 12 on Saturday the 24th, and another 12 on Sunday the 25th.

While enjoying the beauty of the gardens, those who attend the tour will also be contributing to the support of Georgetown Neighborhood House.

Mrs. Burke Wilkinson, who has been in charge of securing the gardens for this year's showing, announces that the following persons have consented to open their gardens on Saturday from 12 to 6.

Mr. Joseph Alsop, jr., 2720 Dumbarton avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Louchheim, jr., 2824 O street; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen V. C. Morris, 2906 N street; Mrs. Arthur Woods, 1248 Thirtieth street; Mrs. Henry Leonard, 3038 N street; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harkness, 3035 Dumbarton avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hook, jr., 3123 Dumbarton avenue; Dr. and Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson, 3121 O street; Mr. and Mrs. Acton Gerlach, 3110 N street; Mr. William Walton, 3318 N street; Mr. and Mrs. J. Noel Macy, 3329 N street, and Mrs. Jean Hill, 1421 Thirty-fourth street.

On Saturday tour visitors will pause for refreshments at the parish house of St. John's Church, Potomac and O streets, from 3 to 6. They will be entertained by a fashion show at which Georgetown residents and their children will model spring clothes from local shops.

Exhibits by Georgetown merchants will decorate the room and a cake sale will be in progress in one corner. Mrs. Robert Woodward will have a table of herbs from the Cathedral gardens.

DAR Again Raps World Government

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP) —The Daughters of the American Revolution adopted a resolution today reaffirming their strong disapproval of any attempt to bring about, through United Nations or any other medium, a world government or partial world government.

The resolution set forth that the UN charter was accepted upon the thesis that members would retain their national sovereignty and rights as free and independent nations and would not intervene in the domestic jurisdiction of any State. However, the resolution noted, agencies of the United Nations have initiated courses of action "which threaten the Constitution of the United States and conflict with federal and State laws."

EISENHOWER LAUDS DAR, STRESSES IMPORTANCE

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP) President Eisenhower told the Daughters of the American Revolution tonight America's women bear "a sobering responsibility" in these anxious days.

From Augusta, Ga., he sent the 62nd Congress of the DAR his message of welcome to Washington. To the 5,000 DAR delegates he said:

"Such great gatherings of our nation's women are evidence of our nation's vitality of spirit.

"For now, as in every time of tension, there falls upon the women of our country a sobering responsibility to be informed on the great issues of our time, to perceive the exacting role that America must play in the world's defense of freedom, and to strengthen the spirit of our nation in the sacrifices demanded by that great role."

"Freedom," the President said, "is a constant virtue and a constant need: the freedom that inspired our forefathers to fight from Concord to Yorktown is no different from the freedom our sons have defended on the shores of Normandy, the shore of Iwo Jima —or the mountain ridges of Korea.

"Over the span of a century and a half, the battlefields have changed. The principles have not changed."

Vice President Nixon greeted the DARs in person.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20—The sixty-second continental congress of the Daughters of the Ameriacn Revolution opened at Constitution Hall tonight with greeting from President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

President Eisenhower's message, read to the more than 5,000 delegates and alternates by Mrs. Warren Shattuck Currier, the recording secretary general, called on American women "to perceive the exacting role America must play in the world's defense of freedom, and to strengthen the spirit of our nation in the sacrifices demanded by that great role."

The President said that the principles of freedom had not changed in our wars from Revolutionary times to the present, including the war in "the mountain ridges of Korea." The knowledge that will bring final pause to the tyrant, he added, is that "wherever in the world we meet and ccheck aggression, we are saving our own life and our own integrity." He said that as women spread this knowledge they served the future of the United States as decisively as soldiers themselves.

Mrs. James B. Patton, president of the organization who is completing her three-year term with this congress, appelaed to the delegates not to relax vigilance against subversive elements.

For the first time within recent memory the election of the group's officers, scheduled for Thursday, is without contests. The national slate headed by Miss Gertrude S. Carraway of New Bern, N. C., is without opposition.

Mrs. Patton reported that her administration had reduced the debt on national headquarters from $520,000 to $49,000 and that the number of chapters—2,746—and the membership of 174,288 were at new highs.

She lauded the work of the organizations defense committee, particularly in behalf of the Bricker Amendment, which she described as being against "law-making by treaties" and world government. Defense Chairman Leads Off —Holman in Vigorous Plea for Bricker Amendment

By BESS FURMAN

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, April 21—An all-out campaign by the Daughters of the American Revolution for the Bricker "treaty - limiting" Amendment and against continued United States participation in the United Nations was presaged by tonight's national defense meeting of the Sixty-second Continental Congress.

The speakers were Senator John W. Bricker, Republican of Ohio, author of the amendment, and Frank H. Holman, former president of the American Bar Association, who devoted every page of a long speech to a vigorous appeal for its enactment and ratification by the states.

The Bricker Amendment, regarded as directed particularly against the United Nations covenants on genocide (mass murder), human rights, and women's rights, would make invalid any treaty of Executive agreement that "denies or abridges" a constitutional right, and would reserve such rights to domestic jurisdiction.

U. N. Called Socialist

The attack against the United Nations was made by Mrs. Bruce D. Reynolds of Charlottesville, Va., national defense chairman, who said that the D. A. R. single-handedly "fought the United Nations war in Korea until popular demand forced the training of Republic of Korea forces to relieve Americans who constitute 90 per cent of the United Nations ground forces."

"We would not desert Korea and leave her helpless before the Communist hordes, but we do resent the arm-chair strategists of the United Nations, whose trade is vastly increased by this war, and Russia, the instigator of this war, calling the signals," she said.

Again, she referred to the United Nations as "that Socialist organization whose numerous agencies are working insidiosly to strengthen it into a world government body, and with armed forces to impose its dictates."

Mrs. Reynolds declared that the United Nations "has caused unrest adn discontent by preaching equality of peoples centuries apart economically, culturally and militarily." She said the United States was paying more than 35 per cent of United Nations costs and "Russia hasn't paid up."

"As I see it, Russia either should be put out of the United Nations or the United Nations should fold up," she declared.

She charged that the new Institute for International Government sought to "convert the United Nations into a compulsory world government" in the charter-review year of 1953 and asked: "Shall we remain in the United Nations until 1953? Think it over."

Mr. Holman called "treaty law" the "greatest threat to American freedom." He attacked John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State, as a "law-by-treaty" threat despite his recent assurance to Congress that this Administration would not press for the genocide, human rights and women's rights treaties.

"Prior to his appearance before the Judiciary Committee at 11 A. M. on April 6, 1953, Mr. Dulles had been an ardent supporter of United Nations and its efforts in the field of so-called human rights," he said. "He was particularly sure the genocide convention was a great humanitarian document and should be ratified."

Mr. Holman said that when the American Bar Association had opposed the genocide convention Mr. Dulles had given a public interview "intemperately criticizing" the bar association. He announced he would have a pamphlet off the press in about ten days dealing with "this recent 'switch' in State Department policy."

He named The Washington Post, THE NEW YORK TIMES and Elmer Davis, radio commentator, as "troubled in mind and spirit" over "Mr. Dulles' abandonment of genocide and the covenant on human rights."

Threat to Newspapers Seen

He contended that under the proposed International Criminal Court, newspaper men and commentators could not criticize Perón, Tito or Malenkov if it were charged that criticism "aggravated" international relations and this fact would be exclusively determined by the International Court.

He called the covenant of human rights "a complete blueprint for socializing the world."

He said the State Department had had the audacity to quote Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, former United States member of the United Nations Human Rights Commission, as saying it "contains no provisions which depart from the American way of life in the direction of communism, socialism, syndicalism or statism."

Predicting that the Senate Judiciary Committee would report the Bricker Amendment favorably, Mr. Holman urged the D. A. R. to band into "committees of correspondence."

Mrs. James Patton, president-general of the organization, spoke of its newest member-at-large, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, both at the morning session and at a luncheon meeting held by the Iowa Daughters. She told the Iowans, who had hailed Mrs. Eisenhower as a native daughter, that Mrs. Eisenhower had been accepted by the national society at a board meeting Friday. Mrs. Eisenhower is member No. 415,659.

Mrs. Eisenhower's secretary, Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree, said this morning that Mrs. Eisenhower's Revolutionary ancestor was Benjamin Doud, who was born May 10, 1761, at Middletown, Conn., died in Turin, Lewis County, N. Y., Jan. 6, 1852; and was a private in the Revolutionary War.

Body and Its Agencies

By BESS FURMAN

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, April 23—The Continental Congress of the Daughters of the Revolution, voted today to permit Mrs. Phil R. Peck, as spokesman for the dissident Glens Falls, N. Y., chapter, present that group's position on the United Nations.

Mrs. Peck said that her request was aimed at making clear in the record that the Glens Falls chapter opposed world government, but supported the United Nations and its agencies.

She asserted that hitherto opposition to anti-United Nations resolutions before the Continental Congress had been snuffed out because the foes had no advance knowledge of the resolutions' details:

D. A. R. opposition to the human rights and genocide conventions, stemmed from fear, Mrs. Peck said, adding:

"Let us turn the strength massed within this great, influential and highly-esteemed organization to a constructive force for the United Nations."

Mrs. Ernest W. Howard of Washington, D. C., replied that "the only thing we have to fear is such a statement as has just been made."

Gold Standard Urged

Earlier, Mrs. James M. Patton of Columbus, Ohio, said that three years ago she had become the first head of the D. A. R. to send out to all chapters tentative texts of resolutions so that delegates would know what they were voting on when they came to Washington.

Mrs. Peck argued that these resolutions should be mimeographed in final form for study before a vote was taken. Two other dissenters, Mrs. Emma Waring Waldbridge of Waukegan, Ill., and Mrs. Nathaniel P. Davis, member of a London, England, chapter, agreed with her.

With the opponents never rallying more than a dozen votes, the Congress voted more resolutions today. Among the actions called for were the following:

¶Unless the Voice of America can be made a true expression of United States ideals, it should be abolished.

¶This country should return to the gold standard. On this Mrs. A. E. Trevenet of Newark, N. J. objected, saying that it would be "chaotic to put the United States alone on the gold standard." Mrs. William D. Leetch of Washington, replied that "it is only Americans who can't redeem in gold."

¶The United Nations and all of its affiliated agencies should "be taken out of the jurisdiction of the Department of State and made responsible to the Congress of the United States."

¶Congress should investigate subversive textbooks.

¶The daughters should "work assiduously" to get UNESCO booklets out of the schools.

¶There should be fewer crime programs on television.

¶There should be more drastic legislation on narcotics.

¶Congress should rescind its action making Constitution Day "Citizenship Day," and there should be no further alterations of national holidays.

ters are expected to attend the week-long sessions in Constitution Hall.

Today they turned the $500,000 tower over to the rector, church wardens, and vestry of the Washington Memorial Chapel, which stands next to the tower. Completion of the stone and steel structure is a major mark in the fund-raising record of Mrs. James B. Patton's administration, which ends this week.

Mrs. Patton has predicted that the DAR's $59,000 building fund debt will be eliminated next week. It has been reduced from more than $550,000 during her term as president general.

She announced at precongress sessions that an anonymous contributor just gave $25,000 to the Daughters to be spent as the officers choose. The acceptance of 2025 new members at a board of management meeting was more good news for this congress.

For more than a decade, Daughters all over the United States have been contributing to the Bell Tower at Valley Forge. About 750 of the Daughters and Mrs. Priest today took a special 12-car train from Washington to Philadelphia.

There, they climbed into buses that took the "pilgrims" into the sacred Valley Forge territory where General Washington and his men spent the winter of 1777-78.

Mrs. Priest called it a "moment of glory" shortly after noon when she and the DAR's "looked back together upon a glorious page of our history."

She mentioned the four large windows in the memorial room of the tower, which carry out [illegible] theme, "faith, sacrifice, [illegible]."

"We have been in danger of destruction from within for the very reason that too many of our people—some of them in high public office—forgot what faith, sacrifice, loyalty and service means," Mrs. Priest told her audience.

She predicted that "as time goes on, our people will rededicate themselves to these principles under a new leadership."

Mrs. Hugh L. Russell, historian general, presided over the dedication ceremonies. The carillon of 56 bells rang out at the beginning and end of the program, and mid-way with the Star Spangled Banner.

Mrs. Patton declared that "when the 56 great bells of the Washington Carillon in this tower peal forth, they will give a testimonial message of Americanism."

Dr. John Robbins Hart, rector of the Washington Memorial saying that the "greatest, deepest traditions of Valley Forge have found their consummation in this glorious hour."

Mrs. Thomas Henry Lee, Pennsylvania State regent, welcomed the umbrella-carrying visitors. A detailed description of the 114-foot structure was given by Mrs. Benjamin R. Williams, national chairman for the erection of the tower.

"We're just like sheep," one of the members complained when the Daughters were hurried back into the buses after the short mid-day ceremony.

The return trip home was a chance for some politicking by Miss Gertrude Carraway, unopposed candidate for president general. Her lieutenants handed out peanuts and cookies to the weary patriotic women, and invited them to visit Miss Carraway's headquarters in the Mayflower Hotel.

Miss Carraway visited from car to car with her "Hey . . . how are you" in North Carolina accents. She comes from New Bern, N. C.

She has been editor of the DAR magazine, which has been changed from a $12,000-a-year liability to a money-making proposition during Mrs. Patton's term. Miss Carraway was Mrs. Patton's campaign manager three years ago.

Mrs. Patton will officially open the last congress in her term at 8:30 p. m. Monday in Constitution Hall. A memorial service for 3074 members who died during the past year will take place at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at Constitution Hall. (The complete DAR convention program, and a story on the history of the Valley Forge Bell Tower, will be found on Page 1, Section IV.)

DP's Want Luxury Not Freedom, D. A. R. Is Told

PHILADELPHIA Feb 7 (UP) – Representative W. J. Bryan Dorn Dem of South Carolina suggested tonight that Europe's displaced persons are [illegible] America's movie stars and big automobiles than in freedom.

Dorn spoke at a dinner banquet sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution various veterans groups and the Citizens Committee to Support the McCarran-Walter Immigration Law.

Warning that unrestricted immigration can "destroy America," he said he would support any move to resettle the refugees from Europe in Africa Alaska Australia South America and other "undeveloped areas."

Once there he said they could create their own civilization as our forefathers did."

"America was built by men and women who cleared the forest faced frontier dangers suffered privation," he said. "They worked hard to give us the America of today."

He said the controversial immigration law should be given a "fair trial" since it was enacted after more than three years of study by experts in the field and had the indorsement of the State and Justice Departments and the Central Intelligence Agency. The law was passed over former President Truman's veto last year.

ADDRESS OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS TO
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE
WASHINGTON

January 22 1954

My dear Miss Morse:

The White House has referred to us for reply your letter of November 24 to the President. I trust you will excuse the delay in furnishing you with the following information in connection with questions you ask.

1. The Honorable Myron C. Taylor was appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman as Personal Representative of the President of the United States to the Pope. Mr. Taylor was not an "Ambassador to the Vatican"--the phrase used in the article from the Boston Globe, which you enclosed.

2. No United States Government funds are used for the "Annabelle Taylor Scholarship".

3. The appointment of Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce as Ambassador to Italy is not to be considered the appointment of an Ambassador to the State of Vatican City. Mrs. Luce, as Ambassador to Italy, is accredited as the Representative of the United States Government to the Government of Italy. In the performance of her duties at Rome Mrs. Luce has no official connection whatever with the State of Vatican City.

I suggest that you refer your inquiries concerning Universal Military Training to the Department of Defense, Washington 25, D. C.

Sincerely yours,

For the Secretary of State:

MOLLY VARNUMS ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. Charles E. Howe Again Named Regent—Memorial Tree Planned.

Mrs. Charles E. Howe was re-elected regent of the Molly Varnum chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Spalding House. Reports were read by the various officers relative to the work accomplished during the year. Mrs. Howe, the regent, presided at the business session which started at 4 o'clock.

One interesting feature of the meeting was the proposal made by the regent to plant a tree in memory of Mrs. Mary G. Morrison who donated a large sum of money for the improvement and upkeep of the house and who was prominent in the activities of the chapter. The tree, it is now planned, will be planted on June 4 on the lawn behind the house. The arrangements are in the charge of the board of management.

Miss Brenda C. Pettingell gave a report of the work accomplished by the Tuesday Sewing Club of the chapter. This club meets weekly in the morning and works during the day, at the Spalding House. The work is done for charity. An unusual amount of work has been finished this year. Garments were made for the Lowell Guild and Red Cross. Curtains were made for the house and a baby's layette was completed during these meetings, it was reported.

The officers were unanimously elected and with one or two exceptions they were all re-elected.

The officers are: Regent, Mrs. Charles E. Howe; vice regent, Mrs. George Upton; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Howard L. Whiteley; recording secretary, Mrs. Lewis Putnam; treasurer, Miss Bernice Jewett; registrar, Mrs. Chester Smith; historian, Mrs. Guy Pattillo; chaplain,

PATRIOTIC GROUPS TO JOIN CRIME WAR

Campaign in Washington Style Is Urged in Fight on Enemy 'Threatening Civilization'

A campaign against crime and corruption, to be waged as it is assumed George Washington would have carried it out, was urged yesterday upon patriotic societies of New York. They were called on to "band together against this internal aggressor which threatens our civilization."

Shelby Cullom Davis, president of the Sons of the Revolution, announced at Washington's Birthday exercises in Hunter College that the campaign would be led by the society and would follow the plan adopted by twenty-three interdenominational religious leaders.

He said it was hoped that 10,000 persons would take part.

Mr. Davis announced the appointment of a committee under the chairmanship of William T. Van Alstyne, past president of the Sons of the Revolution, to investigate methods by which patriotic societies can cooperate "with the State Crime Commission to eradicate this blight." Invitations to the societies asking them to cooperate will be sent out this week, added Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis said that the group asked to serve with Mr. Van Alstyne, all of them members of the Sons of the Revolution, included Irving S. Olds, former chairman of the board, United States Steel Corporation, William M. Chadbourne, former president of the National Republican Club, and others.

Mr. Davis said he believed George Washington would have asserted that private morality began at home. He said:

"I am sure that George Washington would urge patriots today to band together against this internal aggressor which threatens our civilization. You have read in the newspapers recently that twenty-three religious leaders of the city have banded together to rally the forces of decency against the vicious forces of corruption. Can we patriots in this hall in full conscience do any less, and ought not we with our magnificent heritage of freedom do more?"

Cyril Gray Cogswell, chairman of the Washington's Birthday Celebration Committee, presided. A feature of the ceremony was a demonstration of infantry weapons by a platoon of the 107th Infantry Regiment, New York National Guard.

The society held its annual dinner last night in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The speakers included Lieut. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, commander of the Continental Air Command; Lieut. Gen. Withers A. Burress, commander of the First Army; Rear Admiral Ralph E. Jennings, deputy commander, Eastern Sea Frontier and Atlantic Reserve Fleet; Col. E. B. Cook, vice commander of the First Air Force; and Col. Harry Disston, commander of the 107th Infantry Regiment, New York National Guard. NYT 2/24/63

North Carolina Woman Slated to Head D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Gertrude S Carraway of New Bern, N C., and her full slate of officers were nominated without opposition early today to head the Daughters of the American Revolution (D A R.) for the next three years.

Miss Carraway, former city editor of the Sun-Journal in New Bern, will succeed Mrs. James B. Patton of Columbus, O., after the election tonight.

Miss Carraway, wearing 10 orchids as she was nominated, told reporters, "I'll do the best I can if I am elected. We shall return to the fundamentals now that our magnificent building—Constitution Hall—is paid for."

"The fundamentals of DARism, and we do call it DARism," she said, "are historical appreciation, educational training and patriotic service."

At earlier business sessions, the delegates are expected to take a firm stand "against any and all attemps to alter the dates of national holidays' before somebody moves July 4th permanently to a weekend.

Alarmed over suggestions that national holidays be set so as to give a long weekend, some delegates want to protest against any plan to make Independence Day part of any such calendar.

The Daughters will also be called upon to vote on a resolution urging Congress to junk the Reciprocal Trade Act.

Another resolution would have Congress investigate to what extent the command of United States Armed Forces "has been limited, divided or shared with the United Nations or any other international agency."

Without explaining how it is to be done, another resolution asks that "the United Nations and its affiliated agencies be taken out of the jurisdiction of the Department of State and made responsible to the Congress of the United States."

Marian Anderson To Retire in '65

NEW YORK (AP)—Marian Anderson, the great Negro contralto, announced Thursday that next season's concert tour will be her last. She plans to retire in the Spring of 1965.

Her farewell concert will begin in the Fall, and will include cities in North and South America, Europe and Asia. She winds up Apr. 18, 1965, at Carnegie Hall.

(After that she plans to spend her retirement years more actively for Negro civil rights.)

Miss Anderson was born Feb. 27, 1908, in South Philadelphia. Her father was an ice and coal dealer, her mother a school teacher. Her first money as a singer was 50 cents earned at the age of 8 after an apprenticeship with the junior choir of the Union Baptist Church.

Church members contributed the money for her first formal lessons. She paid $500 of her own money for her European debut which brought her instant recognition.

She sang for royalty in Europe and when she returned to the United States in 1935 she had achieved solid stature. Her concert fees had risen from $5 to $500.

In 1946, she refused to sing at Washington's Constitution Hall until the Daughters of the American Revolution abandoned plans to segregate the audience.

Miss Anderson made her Metropolitan Opera debut Jan. 7, 1955, the first Negro to become a member of the company. The late maestro Arturo Toscanini once said that a voice like Miss Anderson's comes but once in a century.

of D.A.R. Delegates

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)— The President's wife demonstrated today she has a receiving line technique that can make women who stood about two hours in line waiting to shake her hand beam afterward: "It was worth it!"

For more than four hours Daughters of the American Revolution, several thousand-fold filed through the White House to see their most popular member, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was enrolled this week during the D. A. R. annual convention.

It was the largest mass reception Mrs. Eisenhower has held since the Eisenhowers moved into the White House and it was the first one to which reporters were admitted and could see her in action.

The D. A. R. reception—sometimes dubbed the "Orchid Reception" because of the Daughters' fondness for orchid corsages, is a traditional high-spot on the convention's final day.

D.A.R. A TRAVESTY, REGENT CHARGES

She Says Its Tax Exemption Should Be Denied

Special to The New York Times

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y., May 14 —A small group of women in the national "hierarchy" of the Daughters of the American Revolution has converted the organization into "a travesty," the regent of the Chappaqua chapter reported at a membership meeting here tdoay.

The speaker, Mrs. Dennis E. Kent, questioned the right of the society to continued tax exemption.

"While the D.A.R. professes no political purpose and claims tax exemption on the strength of it," she said, "its policy year after dreary year, monotonously issued from its rubber-stamp congresses, supports uniformly the position of a certain segment of American political thought. No resolution contrary to positions of the far-right wing is adopted."

Mrs. Kent, the wife of a New York banker, reported on her trip to the D.A.R. Congress held in Washington April 15-19.

For the second year, the Chappaqua chapter has proposed that all resolutions be submitted three months before the Congress so that the 185,000 members could debate them. Mrs. Kent said that the plan was again killed in committee and that she was deprived even of a right to speak from the floor.

Epithets Hinder Speech

Moreover, she said, when she twice was invited to appear on television, "two middle-aged, wild-eyed women" and later a whole roomful of angry women," jostling, pushing and screaming epithets," tried to [illegible]face.

Although she found 200 dissidents thinking as she did and fighting resolutions such as a stand against the United Nations, the congress was marked by apathy, she said.

"It is crystal clear," she declared, "that the D.A.R. has been warped from its original purposes, that the membership at large has voice of any kind in the formation of D.A.R. policies. It is clear that a tiny band of purposeful people has distorted the patriotic basis of the D.A.R.

"It is also clear that the reason for this deplorable situation is that the membership at large has no chance to express itself effectively. This is perpetuated by the general apathy of the D.A.R. members, the development of a compartmentalized structure to prevent communication between chapters or states except through the national society and by the use of subtle devices to insure compliance with national society aims.

"Any such organization is subject to easy capture by a purposeful group. The results can be seen in efforts to deny free speech, in suppression of textbooks, in smear campaigns against any who disagree as "Communists," and, as I have experienced, in naked intimidation."

Mrs. Kent declared that unless members took extraordinary steps to return "sanity" to the society, it would "lose its influence, jeopardize its projects and subject itself to king-size ridicule from all sides."

Tax Actions Contrasted

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By what but hypocrisy can we call ourselves a "peace-loving nation" when we grant tax-exemption to the chauvinistic Daughters of the American Revolution and deny it to the truly peace-waging Fellowship of Reconciliation?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Daughters of the American Revolution come to town this week with innovations.

They plan to adopt only 12 policy-making resolutions, instead of the usual 20 or more.

There'll be an open forum to discuss the resolutions a day ahead of voting.

And Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan of Alexandria, Va., president general, has arranged a special extra forum on D.A.R history, policy and current goals.

Both forums are new "unofficial, extracurricular and volunteer," says Mrs. Duncan but they are part of her campaign to give the D.A.R. a new public image.

Citing the often controversial nature of DAR resolutions in the past, Mrs. Duncan explained she wants the forum to discuss all the pros and cons for "better understanding and fuller clarification" of the proposed resolutions, which set or[illegible]

DAR Says

Our Concessions to Russia Weaken Our Position As World Power

By Jane Nickerson

CHELMSFORD — We cannot trust Khrushchev. It may not be the best interests of the United States to be a member of the U.N. Foreign aid should be cut. These are some of the views of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"We're probably more afraid of Khrushchev than most people," said Miss Agnes Eaton, chaplain of the Molly Varnum chapter of DAR and librarian of the state DAR. "He is so delighted with the three power test ban treaty. It makes us [illegible]. After all he has broken 50 out of 52 promises." The DAR, according to Miss Eaton, believes that the U.S. have made and are in the process of making concessions to Russia that weaken our position as a world power, and weaken our stand for a free world. The recent treaty is one such concession.

The DAR takes a firm stand, often negative, on many issues. "People say we are behind the times," said Miss Eaton, a retired school teacher. "But actually we are ahead. We aren't necessarily against the specific issue itself but are afraid of where it will lead." The group is deeply concerned about the loss of our individual liberty believing with Patrick Henry that even death would be preferable to socialism.

Miss Eaton explained that the organization believes the U. S. should reconsider whether or not membership in the U. N. is to this country's, even the world's, best interests. The daughters believe in the U. N. ideal but are skeptical of the present reality. Although they do not necessarily wish the U. N. out of existence altogether, they do wish it were out of the U. S. "It is an opportunity to house more spies," expained Miss Eaton, "and pay more bills. Russia for example is never in a position to pay. So, every year, the United States steps forward like a good friend and pays for Russia."

She pointed out that the head of social security in the U. N. has always been a Russian. "This means," she went on, "Russia knows all the tactical, strategic positions of military security of every nation in the world."

ANOTHER FEAR is the rotation of the 16 world court judges. The DAR is afraid that the time will soon come when neither the U. S. nor England will be represented, thus giving the Communist block free rein to dominate the world. She also said that although the Russian block has veto power, the United States does not. "These are some of the things that make you stop and think," she said.

The DAR, explained Miss Eaton, also takes a dubious view of foreign aid. The U. S. is now paying one-quarter the amount of our national debt to foreign aid. "That is too much," said Miss Eaton. The daughters feel foreign aid should be more thoroughly supervised. They dislike the waste involved. Said Miss Eaton, "Would you give $1000 to some stranger walking down the street and tell him to give it to the poor, without checking on how the money s spent?"

By building up foreign countries' industry, we hurt our own, is the DAR position. "For example," said Miss Eaton, "An article made in Japan, sold in the U. S., robbed some laborer in our country of the opportunity to make that article, it helped build unemployment. Therefore it harms our own industry. We, however, helped build the industry in Japan.

'Foreign countries will not accept our silver. They insist on our gold," said Miss Eaton. "Americans can no longer get gold in American banks; yet, we ship gold to other countries, in the meantime," concluded Miss Eaton, "our gold is running out."

These views may be startling, but they reflect opinons based on some thought and knowledge. The average American knows detailed information about prostitution in England, but makes little effort to understand world affairs or important bills coming up before congress. Yet the survival of the human race may depend upon both.

Criticism From Within

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — Mrs. Dennis E. Kent, the regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution chapter here, questioned the society's right to continued tax ememption yesterday. "While the DAR professes no political purpose and claims tax exemption on the strength of it," she said, "its policy, year after dreary year, monotonously issued from its rubber-stamp congresses, supports uniformly the position of a certain segment of American political thought. No resolution contrary to positions of the far-right wing is adopted."

Declaring that a small group of women in the organization's "hierarchy" has converted the DAR into a "travesty," the banker's wife said: "It is crystal clear that the DAR has been warped from its original purposes, that the membership at large has no voice of any kind in the formation of DAR policies."

DAR 72nd Continental Congress Opens Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 72nd Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution opens tonight with a streamlined program aimed at improving the DAR's public image and giving delegates a bigger voice in its resolutions.

The organization's new president-general, Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan of Alexandria, Va., is the prime mover behind a program to build better understanding of the DAR's activities and objectives.

During the week-long meeting at Constitution hall she is sponsoring two innovations to permit delegates to air their views on the stand the DAR takes on national issues, and on its policy goals.

For the first time an informal open forum to answer questions from the nearly 4,000 delegates from 50 states will be held on the proposed resolutions Tuesday. Voting on the resolutions, cut down from the usual 20 to 12, will follow at a business session Wednesday.

Another innovation is a forum being conducted Friday by Mrs. Duncan on DAR history, policy and current goals.

School Drops DAR Program

HOLLISTON, March 17 (UP)—Holliston high school withdrew from the Daughters of the American Revolution good citizenship program today because of the DAR's disqualification of a girl award winner on grounds she was not legally an American citizen.

A letter of protest signed by Supt. of Schools Fred W. Miller and High School Principal Paul K. Prescott was sent to Mrs. Alford N. Graham of Leicester, state regent of the DAR.

The letter said, in part, that the undersigned "believe that the Massachuettts DAR is not supporting or furthering Democratic ideal of our free people.

The decision to disqualify Ilse, Mrs. Graham pointed out, was not of her choosing and was instigated by citizens of Marlboro who complained of a non-citizen receiving a "good citizen" award.

The final decision, she said, was made at D.A.R. national headquarters in Washington.

Another Faux Pas

Whatever good they may accomplish as dedicated American women, the Daughters of the American Revolution usually spoil it all by coming out with some snobbery or weird proposals.

Just 10 years ago this month the Boston School Committee barred the DAR from sponsoring contests in the public schools because the organization "violated nearly every aspect of President Truman's anti-racial program.

Five years ago the DAR's national convention astounded (and amused) the nation by demanding an audit of the gold and silver bullion stored in Fort Knox. Almost $26,000,000,000 dollars worth of this precious metal was checked and a cash discrepancy of $36.71 was discovered.

Now the Massachusetts conference of the DAR has added another dismal note to the erratic history of the organization by disqualifying a fine, young German refugee student at Marlboro High School who had been originally nominated for a DAR good citizenship award. The girl happened to be an alien, so they wanted no part of her—after building up her hopes.

The Commonwealth fortuitously became the agent to heal the DAR-inflicted wound. It prepared a special scroll and organized special ceremonies to reassure this somewhat bewildered young lady that she was welcome among us.

Hostesses Of The Day

No Racial View Taken by D.A.R., Kennedy Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Daughters of the American Revolution informed President Kennedy today that it does not have — and has never taken — a stand on integration or segregation.

The group added, "lest there be a misapprehension," it does stand for state's rights.

Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, D.A.R. president general, discussed the Daughter's' position on racial issues in a "thank you" letter to the chief executive.

The letter from the southern-born head of the national society was in response to a special message of greetings which Mr. Kennedy sent to the 72nd Continental Congress opening meeting here yesterday.

The Congress went into the second day of its five-day meeting today with the reading of reports from national officers. Mrs. Duncan told the delegates that throughout the year she has tried to promote a "better public image for the D.A.R."

Boston Attorney Addresses Molly Varnum Chapter DAR

LOWELL — Atty Eugene Carver of Boston was the guest speaker at the pre-Easter meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held at the Spalding house with a record number attending.

Mrs. Clarence Edwards, Sr., regent, presided at the meeting and Miss Agnes Eaton, who will accompany Mrs. Edwards to the national convention of the DAR in Washington, D. C., Sunday, gave the invocation. Patriotic exercises were conducted by Mrs. Edwards and reports were given by Mrs. Frederick Burne, secretary, Mrs. Ralph Duncansen, treasurer, and Mrs. William MacDonald, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Walter E. Morse, chairman of the defense committee, read an informative report on the immediate dangers to our freedom, the document which presently lies on the table in Geneva; the U.S. program for disarmament and concluded by stressing the fact that we live in an age when 1000 self-appointed Paul Revere's are needed.

Mrs. Duncansen gave a detailed account of her observations at the recent state conference which she attended in Boston with Mrs. Edwards and the chapter's three good citizenship girls, namely, Therese Shugru of Tewksbury high school, Mary Lee of Lowell high and Betty Halbert of Chelmsford high. Each gave an interesting report of her impressions of the DAR event.

Mrs. William MacDonald, chairman of the nominating committee, reported that Miss Agnes B. Eaton will serve as chaplain of the chapter and Miss Emily M. Wiggin will be appointed to the board of directors for a three-year term.

After the meeting the group was entertained by Gary and Gail Ashworth, grand niece and nephew of the grand regent. They played a piano duet.

Atty. Carver, a member of the Mayflower society was presented by Mrs. Ralph Duncansen, only Lowell member of the society. He is a past state governor of the Mayflower society, a graduate of Harvard Law school and attended the University of London, England. He is state and national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; state president and president general of the Society of Wars of 1812; state president and president general of the Sons of the American Revolution; grand high priest of ROA chapter of Massachusetts Masons. He was selectman in Brookline, where he now makes his home, for a period of 18 years, and he also served as chairman of the board of selectmen for a number of years.

THE distinguished guest speaker told his audience of the many hardships endured by the Pilgrims who settled Plymouth, and to whom he traced his ancestry, during those history making days of our country. He stressed the will power and high moral purpose possessed by John Alden and Miles Standish. He talked of the obstacles surmounted by people whom suffering and endurance taught to be self-reliant. Giving his listeners an excellent occasion to review their history, Atty. Carver elaborated on the first document by which common people consented to be governed by people of their own choice and out of which grew a great respect for authority and the defense of individual rights and property. This swayed the scale when the Revolution occurred after our ancestors had governed themselves for 150 years. They, said he, revolted and waged a successful revolution, giving us the wonderful country that we have, but they never could have if they had not had self-reliance.

Following Atty. Carver's talk, the hospitality committee served delicious refreshments.

Kennedy Message Greets DAR Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told the Daughters of the American Revolution Monday night that the principles behind the American Revolution in 1776 "remain the chief weapons in our arsenal" for the battle against Communism.

Kennedy's comments came in a message to the opening business session of the DAR's 72nd Continental Congress. The 4,000 delegates began their weeklong activities with an Easter Sunday memorial service for 3,869 members who died the past year.

"In a world which continues to face unprecedented difficulties," Kennedy said, "the values of the American Revolution are an incalculable asset to our country. Your forefathers fought for the principles embodied in the Declaration of Independence—the right of a people to revolt against tyranny.

"At a time when great ideological systems lock in combat for the minds and hearts of mankind these principles remain the chief weapons in our arsenal."

He praised the DAR for its work for underprivileged children and in keeping alive the revolutionary traditions and concluded:

"I am confident that the DAR will continue to emphasize these worthy endeavors and will aid in the great struggle to close the remaining gaps in the American dream of equality and brotherhood."

UN Protest in Vain

DAR Rejects Bay State Plea

WASHINGTON — A Massachusetts woman Tuesday told the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution that she had paid her own way to the meeting to protest one of the DAR United Nations criticisms.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cusack of Winchester said that she had come to present to the resolutions committee a resolution of the Massachusetts DAR. That resolution sought to revise a 1959 national DAR resolution criticizing the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Mrs. Cusack said she was told her appeal was useless because the committee had already decided on which resolutions it would present.

Only scattered opposition is expected Wednesday when the 186,000-member organization is scheduled to demand that the United States withdraw from the United Nations.

Among the resolution also expected to be adopted are those opposing a domestic Peace Corps and a Youth Work Corps which are sought by the Kennedy Administration.

Other proposed resolutions condemn "managed news," a nuclear test ban treaty and general disarmament, and U.S. participation in an Atlantic community.

A. The general assembly on October 20, 1947, adopted the flag recommended by the legal committee. D.A.R. Facing Uprising by Anti-Isolationist Wing at Convention

By MAJORIE HUNTER
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, April 10—There are signs of unrest within the National Society of the Daughters of American Revolution which meets here next week.

Unhappy over the increasingly isolationist stand of the 186,000-member organization, a small group of Daughters will seek to air their protests in the week-long Continental Congress that opens Monday.

Individual members have criticized D.A.R. stands in recent years against the United Nations, foreign aid and the Peace Corps. Some members, including Mrs. Ernest Ives, a sister of Adlai E. Stevenson, the chief United States delegate to the United Nations, have resigned in protest.

But, except for a one-woman battle against "concentration of power" at last year's convention, the anti-isolationist wing of the society has not carried its fight to the floor.

The showdown over isolationist views of the D.A.R. may come during a resolutions information forum on Tuesday. D.A.R. officials explained that the purpose of the forum "is to provide better understanding and fuller clarification of proposed resolutions." Anti-isolationist members believe that the forum was set up to head off a floor fight over resolutions.

The leader of the fight last year was Mrs. Dennis E. Kent, regent of the Chappaqua chapter in Westchester County, N.Y. She attempted to head off policy-making resolutions but she was ruled out of order.

Mrs. Kent is expected to renew her fight this year. There are indications she will be joined by delegates from other chapters.

Criticisms Are Heard

The Cumberland chapter, near Harrisburg, Pa., has criticized the national organization as "a divisive group, censorious of the very Government under which it enjoys the greatest freedom on earth, and unwilling to act in any way except that of a carping critic."

The chapter objected to "anything which in any way weakens our country's position in the world through criticism of the United Nations, which is at present the best agency for promoting peaceful international cooperation; and to any attempt to thwart the compassionate projects of UNICEF [United Nations Children's Emergency Fund.]"

The Massachusetts Daughters adopted a resolution a few months ago urging members to "study carefully and analyze the UNICEF contributions to a program designed to give new life and new hope to children in whose hands will rest the peace and prosperity of the world."

Polls taken by some chapters have shown that membership is declining because of the D.A.R.'s militant stand against the United Nations.

The Louisiana Purchase chapter of De Soto, Mo., recently drafted a resolution asking that the national society rescind its resolution of 1960 that called for withdrawal of the United States from the United Nations. The chapter urged adoption of a substitute resolution dedicating the D.A.R. to improvement of the United Nations.

Aware of the unrest, the national board of the D.A.R. is conducting its own poll to see how well the organization is understood.

Among the questions is: "Do you approve of D.A.R. policies?"

Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan of Alexandria, Va., president-general of the organization, said last year that she hoped to devise a program of "positive, affirmative action to improve and build better understanding of our activities and objectives."

The resolutions committee, which is meeting this week, reported that 288 resolutions on 121 subjects had been received for consideration.

Seventeen deal with prayers and religious observances in schools; 16 with patriotic education; 15 with arms control and disarmament; 14 with the Monroe Doctrine; 12 with Federal debt and foreign aid; 12 with freedom of the press and news "management," and 12 with the United Nations.

The D.A.R. board recently voted to limit the number of resolutions to 12. The previous ceiling was 20, but prior to 1958 up to 40 resolutions were passed on annually.

Resolutions adopted in recent years included ones urging the United States to get out of the United Nations and the United Nations to get off United States soil; protesting expansion of foreign aid; condemning the Peace Corps as a "danger" to the United States; censoring purchase of United Nations' bonds by the United States; and protesting tariff reductions.

In addition, the national defense committee of the D.A.R. caused a stir in 1962 by urging members not to purchase Christmas cards from UNICEF.

The committee said that "this plan to associate the United Nations with Christmas and have it replace the religious aspect of Christmas is believed to be part of the broader Communist plan to destroy all religious beliefs and customs."

Revolutionary Ideas Will Be Tried Out on the DAR

WHEN the 72d Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution opens here Monday, some of the changes being sparked by its dynamic president general, Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan of Alexandria, will meet their first and crucial test.

During her campaign for office last year, Mrs. Duncan called for action to improve the public image of the DAR, and to build better understanding of its activities and objectives. She hoped in that way to attract more young people into the organization, which had been losing membership.

Several innovations in the program of the tradition-minded organization are evidence of Mrs. Duncan's influence during her first year in office.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, an informal, open forum to answer questions from the nearly 4000 delegates from 50 states on the proposed resolutions will be held, at 3 p. m. Tuesday.

Voting on the resolutions —pared this year from the usual 20 to 12—will follow on Wednesday morning at a business session. A Washington lawyer, Elizabeth M. Cox, is resolutions chairman.

A special awards program is planned for Thursday night, and on Friday afternoon Mrs. Duncan will conduct a forum on DAR history, policy and current goals similar to the ones she has arranged at 11 state society conferences in the last year.

Another innovation this year is a contest, "Will She Be a Miss or a Mrs.?", to choose the outstanding DAR ranging in age from 18 to 35 from among the organization's junior members, including the 1518 accepted in the last year. All contestants present for the convention will attend the annual Pages' Ball Wednesday night at the Mayflower.

IN ADDITION to hearing committee reports, attending the closing banquet Friday night, electing and installing seven vice presidents general and two honorary vice presidents general, the Continental Congress delegates will participate in 76 separate but related functions, teas, coffees, buffets and receptions.

The motto of this year's convention is from Deuteronomy 6:6, "Be strong and of good courage." With such a rigorous schedule for the week, they'll have to be!

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune and a nationally syndicated columnist, will speak at the opening business session at 8:30 p. m. Monday in Constitution Hall.

On Tuesday night, which is the convention's National Defense Evening, the speaker will be Sen. John G. Tower, the first Republica to be elected to the U. Senate from Texas sin Reconstruction days.

Clarence Manion, a forme dean of the Notre Dame Un versity law school, will b speaker Monday noon at th DAR's National Defens Committee luncheon in the Sheraton Park Hotel.

Pre-Convention Service Today

Daughters of the American Revolution will participate in a memorial service at Constitution Hall at 2:30 p. m. today.

The chaplain general, Mrs. Charles M. Johnson, will conduct the service honoring the 3869 Daughters who died during the last year. Following the ceremony, a wreath will be placed before the Founders' Memorial statue outside the Hall.

This morning, Mrs. Johnson will lead a group of delegates to the Tomb of the Unknowns and the Tomb of George and Martha Washton to place wreaths.

He had served as chairman of the Tewksbury board of library trustees for many years, and had been active in other civic affairs in this community.

He was widely known throughout North Middlesex, as his work brought him into close contact with the people of Lowell and all of the towns covered by The Sun.

Feted By DAR

DAR Will Strive For A New Public Image

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution come to town next week with innovations.

The plan to adopt only 12 policy-making resolutions, instead of the usual 20 or more.

There'll be an open forum to discuss the resolutions a day ahead of voting.

And Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan of Alexandria, Va., president general, has arranged a special extra forum on DAR history policy and current goals.

Both forums are new "unofficial, extracurricular and volunteer," says Mrs. Duncan, but they are part of her campaign to give the DAR a new public image.

Citing the often controversial nature of DAR resolutions in the past, Mrs. Duncan explained she wants the forum to discuss all the pros and cons, for "better understanding and fuller clarification" of the proposed resolutions, which set organizational policy for the DAR.

Mrs. Duncan notes that the very first DAR congress 72 years ago limited itself to passage of just one resolution—calling for reverence for the American flag.

The 4,000 DAR delegates open their weeklong activities with an Easter Sunday memorial service for 3,869 members who died in the past year. Monday night they launch their annual conclave convention.

The first official reading of the resolutions is slated for Tuesday morning, with tentative drafts distributed to the delegates. That afternoon, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox of Montrose, Colo., will preside over the special resolutions forum as chairman of the powerful 73-member national resolutions committee.

INSTEAD of spreading out the voting on resolutions over several days, Mrs. Duncan has arranged for resolutions and bylaws to be acted upon at the Wednesday morning session only.

On Thursday, the DAR delegates will elect seven new vice presidents general from among these nine candidates:

Mrs. Philip Vivian Tippet of Ansonia, Conn.; Miss M. Catherine Downing of Milford, Del.; Mrs. John J. Wilson of New York City; Mrs. Samuel M. Merritt of Americus, Ga.; Mrs. James Barnes Shackelford of Jones, La.; Mrs. Lyod Bentley Cash of Springfield, Mo.; Mrs. Francis F. Birnbaumer of Lincoln, Neb.; Herman Weston of Saxton's River, Vt.; and Mrs. George Castleman Estell, Miami, Fla.

Benefit Tea, Tour Sponsored by Chapter

LOWELL—The Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held a tea for the benefit of the International Institute at the historic Spalding house, which all guests were invited to visit and tour after the delightful program of the afternoon was given.

Mrs. Clarence Edwards, regent, presented an award to Mrs. Deolinda Mello, executive director of the International Institute, on behalf of the Massachusetts State DAR in recognition for her outstanding work at the institute.

The program featured seven members of a girls singing group all of whom were originally from Germany. They entertained members and guests with old and new songs of their native land and were beautifully dressed in authentic costumes.

Participating in the program were Mrs. Paul Beauregard, Mrs. Raymond Morin, Mrs. Robert Drolet, Mrs. M. M. Eisermann, Mrs. Donald Kelleher, Mrs. Frank Lis, and Mrs. Charlotte Jablonski.

FOLLOWING the well received program of singing and dancing, tea was served. The appointed table was artistically decorated and laden with a variety of dainty sandwiches, miniature desserts and other delicacies including pastry and candy.

Proceeds of the delightful spring event will benefit the many projects undertaken by the International Institute in its praiseworthy endeavors to make the many people who have come to our city from other countries feel at home in our midst.

D.A.R. EXPECTED TO ROUT U.N. BLOC

Isolationists Are Dominant at Resolution Session

By MARJORIE HUNTER
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, April 16 — The National Society of the Daughters of the American revolution is expected to override scattered opposition tomorrow and demand that the United States withdraw from the United Nations.

Opposition to the nationalist-isolationist stands of the 186,000-member organization is largely unorganized and is not expected to be effective.

The mood of the 72nd Continental Congress, which opened a week-long session here yesterday, became apparent during an informal resolutions forum today.

Answering a question of what would be the alternative if the United States withdrew from the United Nations, Mrs. Frederic Griswold of Montclair, N.J., drew applause by saying that the United States "can get along without a world body that saps our strength."

She said that the United States had conducted diplomatic relations long before there was a United Nations "and we can do it again."

Dissatisfaction Voiced

Some members have expresse dissatisfaction with many of the resolutions and say they feel it is hopeless to oppose the leadership.

Among the resolutions expected to be adopted tomorrow are ones opposing a domestic Peace Corps and two youth work corps being sought by the Administration.

Other proposed resolutions condemn "managed news," a nuclear test ban treaty and general disarmament and United States participation in an Atlantic community.

A number of D.A.R. chapters have objected to the anti-United Nations stand. The Massachusetts group had sought to revise a 1959 national D.A.R. resolution which criticized the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Asks Consideration

Mrs. Elizabeth Cusack of Winchester, Mass., said on the floor today that she had paid her own expenses to Washington to appear before the committee to present the Massachusetts resolution on the children's fund.

Mrs. Cusack said she had been told her appeal was useless because the committee had already decided on what resolutions it would present.

The principal speaker tonight at tonight's session, Senator John G. Tower, Republican of Texas, said that the United American nations develop "socialistic" plans in order to get aid under the Alliance for Progress.

He criticized the foreign aid program as being harmful to the domestic economy, but he said he favored continued United States military aid where it is fully justified.

Senator Tower said the United States should stabilize economies of Latin American and wherever else possible by insisting on the encouragement of private investment.

Majority Still Violently Opposed

Washington Post

U.N. Gains Votes in DAR

IT MAY BE COMFORTING to supporters of the oft-criticized United Nations to know it is gaining outspoken acceptance among the anti-U.N.-minded Daughters of the American Revolution.

An estimated 100 delegates among the nearly 2400 attending the 72nd Continental Congress of the DAR stood in opposition yesterday as the National Society voted adoption of a recurring resolution condemning the U. N. and calling for United States' withdrawal from it.

This was the largest number of DAR members to rise in defense of the peace-seeking United Nations since it first came under fire from the DAR more than a decade ago.

However, the resolution adopted yesterday was perhaps the most strongly worded one yet passed by the DAR in opposition to the United Nations.

It stated that "survival of this country as a free and independent Nation depends upon its withdrawal from the United Nations," and charged that the U. N. has "demonstrated itself to be a political organization of force by its attack upon and subjugation of Katanga."

The resolution asserted also that all military affairs of the U. N. must pass through the hands of the Assistant Secretary of the Political and Security Council of the U. N. which office "is now and always has been held by a communist, thus making it possible to place these military decisions in the hands of the enemies of the United States."

A motion made by Mrs. Foster E. Sturtevant, of West Hartford, Conn., to table the anti-U. N. resolution until 1964 to give time "to correct the inequities of the U. N. and for our society to come up with an alternate to withdrawal" was ruled out of order by the DAR parliamentarian.

She stated that the Connecticut DAR Society "has lost many members" because of the National Society's anti-U. N. stand.

Elizabeth Cusack, of Winchester, Mass., who said she worked with the U. S. delegation when Henry Cabot Lodge was Ambassador to the U. N., likewise urged postponement of action. Her statement that the United Nations is "the greatest peace conference table in the world," won scattered applause.

A delegate from Barbersville, Ky., urged no action on the resolution because "until we get something better, the United Nations will have to do."

Eleanor McDowell, of Glens Falls, N. Y. reaffirmed her chapter's "faith in the U. N. as an imperfect but valuable instrument for peace."

There were just as many spokesmen in support of the resolution. One of them, Ann Gilbert of Washington, D. C. argued if the DAR delays a strong stand on the U. N. "it will give the Communists a chance to get deeper into our secrets."

ELEVEN other resolutions were adopted—with only a few scattered "nos" on four of them. Getting some "no" votes was a resolution opposing the Domestic Youth Corps advocated by the Kennedy Administration. The DAR maintained "there is no public demand" for such a Youth Corps that "could not only be manipulated as a political weapon" and could endanger the future of private youth organizations.

There was a small chorus of dissenters to the resolution critical of the Atlantic Community of Nations and opposing U. S. participation in any regional or international supergovernments.

Dissenters were heard also to the resolution against personality tests and to another opposing disarmament of this nation by ratification of a test ban treaty or any other means.

Approved without audible dissent were resolutions: (1) Commending states with statutes permitting non-denominational religious opening exercises in public schools; (2) opposing "managed news" by Government; (3) opposing "payment of international blackmail" and calling for enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine; (4) opposing Federal encroachments on states' rights; (5) advocating a revision of the Federal tax structure to encourage individual industrial and business incentive, a limit on deficit spending, and drastic cuts in foreign aid; (6) opposing legislation that would increase immigration quotas or transfer of unused quotas from Europe to "overpopulated" areas of the world and (7) opposing urban renewal and the Council of State Governments.

AT A BREAKFAST of the DAR American Indians Committee yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, U. S. Commissioner of Indian Affairs Philleo Nash praised the Society's "Help Our First Americans First" program among this country's Indians.

He told of the Bureau's current programs to assist individuals and tribal groups and said one important educational feature is the improvement of English language capabilities of Indian students. He added that work is under way to eliminate "the worst of overcrowding in present classrooms" and new programs are operating to develop economic opportunity for Indians.

He was introduced by Mrs. Harley C. Lee, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, national chairman of the American Indians Committee.

DAR Is in Need Of Seven Veeps

Colonial War Daughters Rustle Their Ribbons

PINK CHAMPAGNE bubbled and sparkled out of a silver fountain in the State Room of the Mayflower Hotel yesterday when the National Society of the Daughters of Colonial Wars held a reception in honor of the national president, Mrs. Frederick Tracy Morse.

National officers and state presidents, in beautiful gowns and broad ribbons, encircled one end of the room. And at the head of the line, looking dapper in her WAVE uniform, was Lt. Cmdr. Catherine Callahan who was "helping out in the receiving line" while her mother, Mrs. Malcolm Callahan attended to tea-pouring duties.

On Saturday, the society passed a resolution asking Congress "to reaffirm the principles of the Monroe Doctrine."

The Daughters, who concluded their 30th annual assembly this weekend at the Mayflower Hotel, also asked Congress "to make no compromise with the present government of Cuba or with Soviet Russia" by "formulating its own policies;" to retain the Connally Amendment" and to "uphold the States in the exercise of their Constitutional rights with respect to prayer."

In addition to their requests of Congress, the Daughters made a few resolutions about their own conduct. The Society declared that its members should "dedicate themselves to the preservation of our heritage of freedom, observe the correct procedure in the pledge of allegiance to the flag and in connection with the display of the flag' and "exert our efforts toward the preservation of freedom of the press."

Mrs. Frederick Tracy Morse, national president of the Society, presided over the day's events Saturday, which included a business meeting, a luncheon and reports of officers and committees.

DAUGHTERS OF THE BARONS OF RUNNYMEDE

A patriotic society which has its roots in English, rather than American, history is having its annual meeting today after weekend social functions.

The National Society, Daughters of the Barons of Runnymede, is composed of about 650 descendants of the signers of the Magna Carta.

As only 17 of the 21 signers left issue, the members of the Society are "all kissing kin," said the president, Mrs. James Raymond Alfonte.

Saturday afternoon, there was a tea at the Sulgrave Club for the Orders of Distinction—members who are direct descendants of Knights of the Garter, Ladies of the Garter or Knights of the Bath. Almost all the Daughters qualify on at least one count for this distinction.

A program on the Ladies of the Garter—there are only three living: Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mother of England and Queen Juliana of the Netherlands—was presented by Mrs. Robert Edward Latham.

Washington's Prayers

Washington's Prayer Book training had made prayers for the nation a matter of course for him. They formed a part of the regular order of worship and, therefore, it is no surprise to find him, when called to the work of building a new nation, uttering prayers for its guidance and welfare.

The Farewell Address, so familiar to all Americans, has, to a large extent, eclipsed an earlier document of a similar character, which was popularly known as "Washington's Legacy." It was a circular letter to the Governors of all the States and was written at Newburgh on the 8th of June, 1783. It concludes with this noble prayer:

"I now make it my earnest prayer, that God would have you, and the State over which you preside, in his Holy protection; that He would incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government; to entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another, for their fellow citizens of the United States at large, and particularly for their brethren who have served in the field: and finally, that he would most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility and pacific tempter of mind, which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion, and without an humble imitation of whose example in these things, we can never hope to be a happy nation."

Salute Answer

I read with interest the letter, "Women Salute." It is a pleasure to know there are women willing to show their patriotism in public. As state chairman of the Correct Use of the Flag Committee, D.A.R., I quote the law on saluting: "During the raising or lowering of the flag, or when it passes in a parade, all persons shall face the flag, stand at attention and salute. Uniformed personnel shall render a military salute. Men, not in uniform, shall remove their hats, hold it near the left shoulder, and place their left hand over their heart. Women shall salute by placing their right hand over their heart. Aliens should stand at attention.

The Roanoke Story

Elizabeth—My husband is also much interested in the history of the world and he is sending the following information to you:

Ralph Lane and 110 emigrants were left to form a settlement on Roanoke Island. Indians of a village adjacent to Roanoke had committed a petty theft and the English wantonly burned the whole town. Jealousy and suspicion took the place of former friendships. Lane and some of his companions went on a gold hunting exhibition into the interior, their destruction was planned by the Indians and only avoided by a hasty retreat to Roanoke. The English then killed Chief Wingina. Despondency, and a sense of danger followed this atrosity so that when Sir Francis Drake returned with a fleet from his exploits on the Pacific Coast, the Colonists prevailed on him to carry them back to England.

Survey Proves Eye-Opener to Daughters

Student Groups Know Least About DAR

By Marie Smith

WHAT DO the clergyman, the store clerk, the newspaper editor, the housewife and the high school student think of the DAR?

Miss Smith

The Daughters of the American Revolution took a sample survey last December in Indiana to find out and got an eye-opening picture of their "public image."

"For one thing, we found we've got a lot of work to do among the high school and college set," declared Barbara Janowski, initiator, supervisor and tabulator of the poll.

In these two youth groups, she said, pollsters found the least knowledge about and the least interest in the 72-year-old national patriotic and historical society.

Highest interest in the DAR and approval of its policies was found among clergymen. The wafer-thin slice of public opinion (290 persons were questioned in the state-wide survey) showed that of 10 Indiana ministers polled, nine approved of the DAR's patriotic aims and policies and the tenth responded that he didn't know about them.

The picture was slightly different in the "newspaper and radio category." Executives of 15 newspapers and one radio station were contacted, Mrs. Janowski reported. Seven approved the DAR's policies, two disapproved and seven did not know what the policies were. Fifty per cent thought the patriotic endeavors do benefit the public; 25 per cent said they do not, and 25 per cent said they didn't know.

IN THE OVER-ALL statewide tabulation, the sample survey showed that of 290 persons questioned only eight did not know what the initials DAR stand for. Sixty per cent knew why it was organized; 66 per cent knew what the DAR does; 62 per cent thought its patriotic aims benefited them; 56 per cent approved its policies; six said they did not approve; and 38 per cent responded they did not know the policies.

Mrs. Janowski said those best informed about the DAR were business and professional people. Of 55 persons in this category queried, 50 per cent knew why the DAR was organized; 70 per cent knew what it does; 80 per cent thought the patriotic aims benefited the public; 60 per cent approved the policies; 7 per cent did not approve them; and 33 per cent didn't know the policies.

Mrs. Janowski, a Gary, Ind., portrait photographer who is state chairman of public relations for the Indiana DAR Society, said she was "not surprised" at the results of the poll but a lot of the Daughters were. "I think the DAR does a lot of good work and the public is aware of that work," she declared.

By Charles Del Vecchio, Staff Photographer

BARBARA JANOWSKI
. . . "we've got a lot of work to do"

SHE COMPILED the five questions asked in the poll. They were: Do you know what the initials DAR mean? Do you know why DAR was organized? Do you know what DAR does? Do you think DAR's patriotic aims benefit you? Do you approve of DAR's policies?

The questionnaires were sent to the 96 DAR chapters throughout the state and 25 per cent of them responded. The members were told to ask the questions of "key people," listing newspapermen, clergymen, store owners, clubwomen, clerks, gas station men, neighbors, policemen, councilmen, teachers, high school students, friends and radio announcers.

Mrs. Janowski cautioned the DAR pollsters not to "whitewash" the answers by asking people who could be counted on to give favorable answers. "We must know the truth," pollsters were told.

The "public image poll" has been sanctioned by the National DAR Society and other states are also planning to use the questionnaire or a more detailed one in polls that will give a national picture of the DAR image.

Mrs. Janowski said she joined the DAR four years ago "just to please" her 85-year-old aunt, Mrs. Cecil L. Blake, a DAR member who lives at All States Motel here.

"I thought then the DAR was a social group—a little different from the rest of the people but I didn't know they did anything much," she confessed.

"After I got in and realized the scope of the programs, I was amazed. It was like diving into the lake, you could go into so many directions because of the patriotic, historic and education programs of the Society," she said.

However on Sunday last, the Molly Varnum chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, (one of the organziations in the community to remember) conducted a most impressive Armistice Day service at the Matthews Memorial church. A processional was led by flag bearers, Miss Betty Riddick, a Girl Scout, and John Daley, a Boy Scout, carrying the American flag and the DAR flag. Following the singing of "America the Beautiful," and the Pledge of Allegiance led by Mrs. Charles E. Watt, the national anthem was offered and taps played by George J. DeLaHaye.

Rev. Arthur E. Hiley, pastor, gave a stirring address on "Armistice of 1954" and because it was one of the very few we know of, we take the liberty of quoting him. "If the sacrifices made by thousands of our boys who fought, bled and died in all of the wars in which America had been engaged are not to be in vain, then lasting peace must be secured, justice must prevail in America. Righteousness is the only soil in which these things can grow. There can be no lasting peace without righteousness. The bible has been telling us that for centuries and our own consciences tell us the same thing.

"It is God's eternal truth. The greatest issue before the American people today is how to win a permanent and lasting peace. God has placed America in a position where she can lead the nations of the world to a new world order of international justice, ethics and righteousness, and as loyal patriotic Americans we must not compromise our ideals nor our loyalties: If ever the heart of mankind needs to be changed it is today. Our nation was established to 'the glory of God and the advancement of religious truth.' The Quakers, the Puritans, Unitarians, Roman Catholics, Baptists, Anglicans, Jews, all contributed to the molding of America's faith and its free expression in this land, where men are at liberty to worship God according to the dictates of their own individual consciences . . . All of us who love America . . . who love and cherish our God given heritage and freedom need to fight for peace . . . in this battle we are still in it together, Catholic, Protestant, Jew." . . . Prior to this, the sanctuary choir offered a hymn, and Mrs. Nathan D. Pulsifer gave prayer . . . Miss Esther Atkinson directed the choir in the anthem, "Recessional," and Mrs. Albert Catherwood, regent of the chapter read from scripture . . . To Molly Varnum chapter our tribute today, never could they be accused of the utter indifference which so many others have today for our war dead . . .

D.A.R. TO URGE END OF U.S. SCHOOL AID

Michigan Republican Says Eisenhower Stand Should Give Bill 'Kiss of Death'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17—A member of Congress told the Daughters of the American Revolution today that a suggestion made by President Eisenhower ought to be "the kiss of death" to Federal aid for school construction.

Representative August E. Johansen, Republican of Michigan, said he referred to an "amazing and enigmatic reference," made at a news conference, in which the President said he favored stopping Federal aid at the end of the classroom emergency period "if necessary by a Constitutional amendment."

If it would take a Constitutional amendment to stop an emergency program of Federal aid, Representative Johansen argued, "now is the time to stop such a program, once and for all."

The Daughters were ready to reaffirm their long-standing objection to Federal aid and faith in "crossroads America" to build the schools. The anti-Federal-aid resolution was read today. It will be voted tomorrow by their sixty-sixth Continental Congress, meeting in Constitution Hall.

Loyalty Oaths Demanded

In other pending resolutions the Daughters will call for strengthening "basic education" and for teachers, professors and school administrators to take loyalty oaths.

They will declare for driving communism out of the churches and for renewed spiritual emphasis in all phases of national life.

They will declare for return to the states of rights they contend have been usurped by the Federal Government.

Internationally, they will demand that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee refuse to recommend ratification of a statute to set up the International Atomic Energy Agency.

The Daughters' resolution says that this treaty, if ratified, would place this country's atomic energy resources under international control. Their resolution will state that representatives of Communist nations will sit on the board of governors, and that disputes will be referred to the International Court of Justice, which has members from Communist countries.

Editor Wins Floor Fight

The editor of the Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine won a fight in floor action today for editorial free rein. The editor, Miss Gertrude A. MacPeek of Boston, made clear that she would resign unless freed from space restrictions and policy rules set up by the D. A. R. National Board of Management last February.

Miss MacPeek is management services officer, postal transportation, of the New England region of the Post Office. She was graduated in journalism from New York University. Her work for the D. A. R. is a leisure-time activity.

Miss MacPeek said she had conducted the magazine successfully for a year on a policy of publishing articles of broad general interest.

However, she said, a survey group was set up to make recommendations on the magazine. This group was headed by Dr. Jean Stephenson, a genealogist. On the recommendations of this group, she said, the national board voted regulations for the magazine.

Miss MacPeek said it was decreed that each issue of the magazine be ninety-six pages, of which sixteen would genealogy; fifteen state news; fifteen chapter news; fifteen news from the national chairmen and national officers, and twenty-five advertisements.

"That left me ten pages, of which one was frontispiece, one table of contents, and one President General's message," said Miss MacPeek. "With 650 words per page, you can see how few articles I could get in on any subject, on seven pages."

The Daughters decreed that the Board of Management must rescind its action on the magazine at a meeting to be held next Saturday.

OBSERVER

Let DAR Start at Home

By RUSSELL BAKER
(New York Times News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Daughters of the American Revolution have been here this week trying to save the country from progress, and the usual snickering is being heard from the usual people. We know who they are.

The Daughters have heard their ridicule before. They too know the people it comes from: liberals, do-gooders, so-called eggheads, pinkos, bleeding hearts. The whole cult of progress. Fortunately for all those who still think it's worth trying to fight back against the 20th Century, the daughters' zeal remains undiminished despite the abuse and jokes.

Curious Stand

In this week's convention at Constitution Hall, for example, they have come out against the Supreme Court, foreign aid, urban renewal, legislative reapportionment, the domestic youth corps, immigration, a test-ban treaty, the Atlantic Community and, of course, the United Nations.

A commendable week's work, except for the curious stand against a ban on nuclear bomb testing, which seems to put the Daughters on record as favoring fallout. The snickerers, naturally, are saying that the Daughters want the bomb kept in fully tested readiness in case everything else fails against the Supreme Court, the Atlantic Community, immigration and the United Nations.

The question that must worry all real friends of the DAR, however, is whether the Daughters aren't squandering their energies by concentrating on political issues. Each spring they rally here and resolve against the Supreme Court, the UN, immigration and the Atlantic Community, and yet none of these things will go away.

There is good reason to suspect that the Daughters are going stale, that they need some fresh 20th Century perils to save the country from—in short, that they will have to change the act or lose their influence.

Interest Drops

Polls taken by Mrs. Barbara Janowski, public relations chairman for the Daughters of Indiana, show that interest in the DAR among youths of high-school and college age in her state is alarmingly low.

Part of the explanation may lie in the rise of exciting new groups like the John Birch Society whose action proposals against progress ("Impeach Earl Warren") have an immediate appeal for the young. The ladies, especially ladies of certified genealogical line, can scarcely compete against this kind of roughhouse.

What they can do, however, is forget the politics and take charge of the disorganized resistance to the spread of the 20th Century in the American home. Here is an area of national life where reactionary activity is urgently required. Here the DAR could speak with unchallengeable authority and start a crusade that might roll back the century decade by decade.

Instead of denouncing the Atlantic Community, for example, it might adopt resolutions against the cookout, that subversively degrading institution of the 1950's in which woman loafs while man spills whiskey on the grass and ruins the steak.

Enormous Problem

The progress that needs fighting around the typical American house is simply enormous. Frozen TV dinners and bucket seats. Transistor radios that are held, volume at the maximum, against the adolescent ear. Plastic wheel toys that operate on batteries that get lost, plastic tulips, "labor-saving" appliances that cost $37.50 to repair, plastic whipped cream in aerosol cans.

Instant coffee, synthetic lime juice in plastic limes. Salesmen that shout at you to smoke, drink, smell good, and cover your mirror with lacquer spray for the hair. Let there be condeming resolutions galore.

This, Daughters, is pushing-back-the-clock with a purpose. Let others fight the court, the UN and immigration. Your job is to stop this softening-up of the American home for a take-over by the plastic, transistor and aerosol-can forces.

Let's roll back the 60's!

By JAMES SELBY THISTLE

On April 18, 1775, England's General Gage sent his men to Lexington and Concord. Their orders included two assignments — seize the military supplies stored there and arrest the "Fighter for Freedom" we feature today. Fortunately our "Freedom Fighter" had just started for the meeting of the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

He was a wealthy young Boston merchant who refused to pay the British tax on a cargo of wine. As punishment the Customs Officers seized his ship which, appropriately enough, was called the Liberty. In retaliation a crowd of young Boston men stoned the Customs Officers, smashed the windows of their houses and caused them to take refuge in a fort down the harbor.

It was a dramatic moment in the Continental Congress when the time came to sign the Declaration of Independence. The signers knew that they would be put to death if caught. As our "Freedom Fighter" signed in a bold and sweeping hand he declared: "King George can read that without his spectacles." (Last name only in scrambled letters.)

U.S. PRODDED ON GENOCIDE

Jewish Reform Groups Urge Senate Ratify U. N. Pact

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 23 — Members of Jewish Reform Congregations in the United States were urged today by some of their religious leaders to call on the United States Senate for ratification of the United Nations Genocide Convention.

A pamphlet called "Genocide—a Call to Action Now" has been issued by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the Central Conference of American Rabbis and the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods. It is being sent to congregation members and to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The pamphlet declares that genocide—the intentional destruction of national, religious, racial or ethnic groups—is sometimes a prelude to aggressive war.

"When the population of a nation is trained in destroying its own citizens, it is much simpler to turn the people against the citizens of other nations without justification," the document says. "By taking a stand on such a humanitarian issue as genocide, America will prove to the world that its leadership is for peaceful humanitarian purposes only."

The 61st D.A.R. State Conference met at Sheraton-Plaza Hotel in Boston on March 17 and 18, 1955. I attended as alternate delegate the March 17th sessions. The members attending on March 17th from Molly Varnum chapter were Mrs. Upton, Mrs. Clogston, Mrs. Catherwood, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Roger Gage, Miss Noyes, and Mrs. George Morse.

We boarded the 8:02 train at the Lowell station, taxied to the hotel. After registering, we were ready for the morning session which opened at 9:45. The processional march was inspiring followed by call to order, invocation, pledge of allegiance to the flag, the Americans Creed and the National Anthem.

The welcome was extended by Mrs. Elliott, Regent of Amos Mills chapter, Wellesley and was highlighted by mentioning some of the events which took place on Evacuation Day 179 days ago. It happened that our conference this year began on Evacuation Day.

Mrs. Hepburn, State Regent was her usual excellent leader and among some of her remarks were that all state officers are important. Each chairman most important; faithful regents and each member important. She thanked one and all for their support and expressed her appreciation of the work performed. We aremore than a social group. We have work to do.

The recognition and presentation of the Good Citizen girls was a great part of the program. No doubt our Vice Regent, Mrs. Edwards will report on them.

I deem it an opportunity and privilege to attend a state meeting, to listen to Mrs. Magna and as she gave her greeting to the good citizens my spirits were bolstered. There were 666 people present at the morning session.

It is interesting to hear about the D.A.R. student loan fund. There were 24 new loans totaling $5,690 during 1954.

The meeting adjourned about 11:40 and our group sojourned to the dining room of the Sheraton-Plaza.for lunch.

At 1:30, a memorial service was held which was carried through reverently.

At 2 p.m. the afternoon program began with reports from state officers. A detailed report was presented by Mrs. Ashmead White on "The Approved Schools Bus Tour". She spoke of the needs of the various sponsored schools such as scholarships, money for upkeep, clothes and buildings. These schools are truly worthwhile projects.

The regents panel was extremely interesting. Three regents expressed their experiences and stated what requirements they felt were necessary for regents to possess so as to produce outstanding chapters. (a personal word is added here: We have just the regent they tried to tell us about and we are proud of her here in Molly Varnum). Mrs. Eddy, regent of Quequechan chapter highlighted the word "Zeal" into zoom, enthusiasm, activity and love. Mrs. Riley, ex-regent, Attleboro chapter mentioned administrative and executive ability, leadership and enthusiasm and Mrs. Spencer, organizing regent, Northfield chapter stressed "work."

Mrs. Melendy, chairman student loan, presented some pupils who are benefiting from D.A.R. loans. They were from Boston Conservatory of Music and from Boston University. They played various instruments and presented a few selections which were very well received.

Mr. Whittemore and Mr. Taplin spoke at length on the Hillside School project. The annual Hillside School day will be held on June 2. Miss Gertrude Carroway, President General, will visit Hillside on May 28.

The many reports were given and were extremely well presented. They were brief and informative. Miss Gertrude MacPeek presented communications and announcements and you know that that part would be good since she spoke so well at our own society a month ago on "Our American Heritage" and she knows her subject.

As of 3-1-55 Massachusetts has 5,815 D.A.R. members.

The afternoon session adjourned at 4 p.m.

In conclusion I'll add just a personal word to those words of the wonderful speakers I had heard, that you get out of a society what you put into it. The D.A.R. society is a wonderful organization in this nation and one of which we should be proud. Let us strive and work in Molly Varnum so as to give a boost to the state and national officers and emphasize strength in our undertakings.

Colonial Dames Hold Annual Meeting

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the National Society of Colonial Dames of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts was held yesterday at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, 280 Newton Street, Brookline. The meeting was followed by luncheon.

Of special interest to the members of the Society was the report of Mrs. William Hagerman Graves, chairman of the Quincy Homestead. The house, built in the middle of the 17th century and enlarged and expanded to its present form during the first half of the 18th century, has been in the possession of the Quincy family for many generations.

Now owned by the Commonwealth and under the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan District Commission, it is leased and maintained by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. During the winter, extensive restorations have been completed and the house where Dorothy Quincy was courted by John Hancock is now ready to receive visitors. It is open every day except Monday, from 10 until 5 o'clock for a small fee. It closes for the winter, Nov. 1.

In addition to the Quincy Homestead, the Massachusetts Dames also maintain a charming farmhouse in Swansea. Martin House, built in 1726 by John Martin, remained in the family until acquired by the Society under the will of one of his descendants in 1935.

It contains many pieces of Colonial furniture, as well as a fine collection of silver and pewter. Martin House is open to visitors through Sept. 30.

The headquarters of the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames at 55 Beacon Street, built in 1807 by the architect, Asher Benjamin, for James Smith Colburn, was later the home of William Hincklin Prescott, the historian. It was opened recently to the public when samples from the distinguished collection of costumes owned by the Society was displayed.

Mrs. Otis T. Russell is president of the Society; Mrs. Atherton Loring, and Mrs. Stephen Paine, vice-presidents; Mrs. Charles O. White, recording secretary; and Mrs. Frederick J. Leviseur, treasurer.

Other members elected to the Board of Managers are Mrs. Julian Crocker, Mrs. William A. Gardiner, Mrs. Ronald L. McFarlan, Mrs. John D. Nichols and Mrs. George A. Macomber.

Members of the Board completing unexpired terms include Mrs. Frank S. Deland Jr., registrar; Mrs. Hamilton Phelps Edwards, assistant registrar; Mrs. James P. Hunsaker, historian; Mrs. Charles C. Lund, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs and Mrs. James F. Hunnewell.

The retiring president, Mrs. Alexander Wheeler, was elected an honorary president of the Society. Other honorary presidents include Mrs. David J. Evans, Miss Ellen Graves, Mrs. Augustus Thorndike and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster.

Bay State Solons Face Record Total of Bills in 1954

A record number of bills have been filed to date for consideration by the 1954 session of the state Legislature.

In the House there were 610 bills filed as of 5 p. m. yesterday, as compared with 547 at this date last year. On the Senate side 157 measures have been submitted —only seven less than the total filed at this time in 1952.

Wednesday, Dec. 2, is the last day for filing bills for the 1954 session.

Among the measures submitted yesterday was a resolve to establish a $50,000 memorial to the late Gov. Maurice J. Tobin. Senator Mario Umana, Dem., of East Boston, proposed that a suitable memorial to Tobin be created on the State House grounds.

The words "In God We Trust" would appear in every public schoolroom in the state and a special prayer would be said by teachers and students every morning, under the provisions of a bill filed in the House for William M. Carpenter of Woburn.

WASHINGTON, June 4 — All the world and a goodly section of the American press recognized in the British coronation ceremony this week a deep-seated, patriotic devotion on the part of the British to their ancient tradition. No voices were raised here to disparage the celebration as a piece of "Chauvinism" or excessive pride in the symbols of a nation.

Yet this week, when the senate passed and sent to the house for action a bill which would forbid the display of the United Nations flag in a position superior or equal to the flag of the United States, one important newspaper hereabouts called it a "piece of "Chauvinism" and wondered whether the dignity and honor of the American flag came from such manifestations or from the valor of men who carried that flag on the field of battle.

This is a misconception which seems to have become widespread in certain circles in recent years in America—that it is somehow overly patriotic to show reverence for the American flag and that the United Nations is some kind of superstate to which the American people and, indeed, their troops must pay an allegiance higher than that given to the United States itself.

It crops out in many ways. Lately some American employees of the UN, with the support of some legal opinions by UN doctrinaries, have taken the position that once these employees become a part of the UN they are no longer responsible to any national jurisdiction as citizens.

UN WORLD GOVERNMENT

There seems to have grown up an idea, too, that the United Nations is a world government instead of a union of sovereign governments. In the senate a proposal by Senator Bricker to amend the federal Constitution has developed a controversy as to whether agreements of a legislative character made under the treaty which which the United States entered the UN will supersede the laws of the United States. At one time the present secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, in a public address expressed apprehension concerning this possibility.

Many of the misunderstandings concerning the true role of the UN arise from an overselling of the UN as an instrument that supposedly enforces peace. There are people in America who think of the UN as a governmental structure that is over and above individual governments. But their fanaticism blindly overlooks the realistic fact that today one set of members of the UN is arming against another set and also that the UN has declared Red China an aggressor and another member of the UN—Soviet Russia—publicly admits sending munitions of war to help the aggessor in Korea.

The spirit of a nation, indeed the morale of its fighting army, is directly related to the reverence and devotion given to a national symbol—its flag. School children are taught in the American schools to pledge allegiance to the flag. American troops pay tribute to the flag by their daily salute at sundown. The nation's anthem is dedicated to a star-spangled banner.

NEED NATIONAL PRIDE

What so many cynics of these times overlook is that fighting spirit is itself closely related to national spirit and that decadence in the military forces sets in and the morale of a people begins to deteriorate when the symbols of national pride no longer stir the hearts of the citizens. Just a year ago this correspondent, when in Europe, chatted one day with a high British military officer associated with NATO, and the latter expressed privately his belief that a European defense army with a single uniform would never be as soul-stirring as national divisions wearing distinctive uniforms and insignia.

It is, of course, true that the theme of Germany's song "Deutschland Uber Alles," came under Hitler to typify an abuse of nationalism—a menace to the peace of other countries. But it will be noted that recently, when it came to choosing a national anthem, all political parties in West Germany insisted on legalizing that same song under which German troops had been called to battle before. Tradition is hard to break, if indeed it is wise to attempt for any reason to break the spirit of a people's patriotism.

The placing of the UN flag above the American flag, it might be contended, would be a harmless courtesy, but in the present atmosphere — where the tendency is to exalt a strange kind of "internationalism" which definitely seeks to disparage all national feelings as "isolationism" or mistaken nationalism— it is not amiss to strengthen rather than weaken faith in the symbols of the United States and especially in its flag.

The Communists, to be sure, have an international ideology. Some of the French Communists say they are for "Communism above all else" and above even allegiance to the French flag. A union of free nations, whether it be in the UN or a military alliance like NATO, will be stronger when each component member has a truly national spirit than if regard for a nation's flag is insidiously undermined by an ideology of universalism.

GERRYMANDER

Gerrymandering, narrowly defined, is the practice by which the party in power changes the physical boundaries of voting districts so that the opposition will win as few seats as possible. According to the historian John Fiske, the term came about this way:

In 1812, during the second term of Massachusetts Gov. Elbridge Gerry, the state legislature re-formed certain towns in Essex County into a single odd-shaped district.

One day, Gilbert Stuart, the painter, walked into the office of Benjamin Russell, an editor and ardent opponent of Governor Gerry. Above Russell's desk was a map of the state. Outlined on the map was the recently formed district.

Stuart penciled a head, wings and claws to the outline, and exclaimed, "That will do for a salamander." Growled Russell promptly, "Better say a Gerrymander!"

Gerry's name thus passed into the language, although some believe the formation of the odd-shaped district was not really due to his influence.

Mrs. Albert Catherwood

As president of the Middlesex Women's club, with an active membership of about 400, she is responsible for keeping this organization among the most outstanding units in the state which has some 43,000 women members in its clubs. As the leader of the Middlesex club she fosters the object of the internationally organized group which is to form a recognized center for social and mental culture and further the education of women for the responsibilities of life; to encourage all movements for the betterment of society and to foster a generous public spirit in the community.

Her job is to see that the various committees function smoothly and efficiently. Members who are from all walks of life usually take active part in one of the committees which include the departments of the American Home, antique, art, community service, veterans service, Girl Scouts, the blind, Red Cross Motor corps, education, literature, drama, and music.

Mrs. Catherwood, besides conducting the meetings each first and third Monday of the month at Liberty Hall, also presides at the meeting of the executive council of 24 members who administer the business of the club. The council meets in a special room at the Whistler House.

The lady-president and her associate members, in their work on veterans services conduct parties for veterans at the Bedford hospital and knit or crochet afghans for the hospital (about 35 in two years) and also provide handmade slippers for the men. Each year they are hostess to the veterans during one of their club meetings, inviting those who are able to attend. One meeting a year is attended by blind people and the women conduct a sale for them.

THE WOMEN, who raise money by the dues they pay in membership, also provide scholarships and contribute money to CARE for its literacy program, a favorite project of the international federation of the women's clubs.

Born in Punxysatawne, Pa., and educated in Pennsylvania schools and a graduate of Lowell Commercial college, Mrs. Catherwood, who is proud of her grandchildren, Donna, a sophmore at Lowell high school, Gail, at the Moody Junior High school and Dean at the Oakland school, children of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin DeLaHaye, has given of her time and energies in many instances.

This president of the Middlesex club is a past regent of Molly Varnum chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; a past matron of the Zenith chapter, Order the Eastern Star, and a past matron of the Warren G. Harding chapter of the Order of the Amaranth.

She has held offices in the United Church Women and in the Women's Guild of the Lowell General hospital school of nursing. She is treasurer of the building fund of the Matthews Memorial church and treasurer of the Kupples Klub of that church. She is a yearly volunteer for the Tuberculosis Association and is already beginning her work for this year's campaign.

Even during World War II, Mrs. Catherwood gave her services for her neighbors. She worked in the Union National bank at Fort Devens during those days and at the same time was a volunteer motor corps driver for the American Red Cross, logging more than 800 hours of driving time.

Mrs. Catherwood lives up to the objectives of the women's club, in that she encourages and participates in all movements which will better society and foster a generous public spirit.

Under God

Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan recognizes the great need for more spiritual faith in the world today with his suggestion that the words "under God" be added to the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The modified pledge would read:

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, under God, with liberty and justice for all."

The extra two words add a new dimension to the pledge and would serve as a frequent reminder of the fundamental difference between the free and Communist worlds.

person. I guess being blind helps me in that sense. I just dig all people because they're human and they have feelings and if you cut them with a knife they bleed red no matter what color their skin is. I've fought alongside the Negro for civil rights —I've entertained for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. I distinguished myself for what I stood for, which is equality for everybody.

"Even though I'm fair-skinned, I think in some past lifetime I must have been Negro, though, because the music I feel most comfortable with is soul music. I just released a new single, 'Marley Purt Drive,' and just by hearing it I can taste chitlins. I found it in an album by the Bee Gees."

José learns lyrics with the help of Braille and does his own guitar arrangements with the help of a tape recorder. "You can get music in Braille," he says, "but it's kinda hard to read and play at the same time."

He decided to record The Doors' "Light My Fire" because "it's a very sexy song. Their music is good, but I think Jim Morrison has the wrong attitude about saying bad things on the stage and whatnot. I caught one of their performances and I was really, not embarrassed, just surprised. All I know is when I hear people screaming and clapping for me, I just feel like being there and waiting for 'em. I'd be offended if I said anything wrong."

Though sales of his records for RCA reflect tremendous popularity, José is still just outside the charmed circle of real pop stars, in part because today it is composition that counts. "I'd like to be a good composer," he admits. "That's where the money is. I've written a few songs that are going to be arranged. Just songs, they have a message, but not protest. That's okay for some musicians—it's their way of expressing what they feel about the country. I just think now there are too many protestors and not enough entertainers."

This summer José is scheduled to do two concerts with the Cleveland Orchestra and one with the Pittsburgh Symphony. "I'll probably do some classical things. Or maybe the Beatle pieces . . ." (His instrumental arrangements of "And I Love Her" and "Here, There and Everywhere" are on the RCA-Victor album, "Feliciano!" as is "Light My Fire.")

Here, José breaks into an instrumental interlude, moving with the dexterity of a musical politician from "Malagueña" to "Hey! Baby" to "High-Heel Sneakers," and then gets back to his favorite subject: "The trouble with American girls is they're too skinny . . ."

"This is the most beautiful flag in the world. OLD GLORY! That's what I shall call her."

These were the words of Capt. Wm. Driver as he hoisted the flag made and presented him by his mother when he was made Captain of the ship CHARLES DOGGETT. This flag was presented to the National Museum in Washington, D.C., by his daughter Mary Jane Driver Roland. When Capt. Driver came home from a South Pacific Sea voyage, 1837, he found his wife ill. It was then that he moved his family to the mild climate of Nashville where he was associated with his brothers in business. Thus—the story of the phrase OLD GLORY founding of the established custom of referring to our flag as such.

This proud insignia appears on the SAR membership certificates of Presidents Eisenhower, Hoover, Truman, Hayes, T. Roosevelt, McKinley, Harding; Sir Winston Churchill; Generals MacArthur, Pershing, Wainwright; Admirals Dewey, Porter, Byrd, Halsey; Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, Bernard Baruch, Lowell Thomas, Robert Taft, Harry F. Byrd, Barry Goldwater, Thomas E. Dewey, Nelson & Winthrop Rockefeller, William Randolph Hearst, William Scranton and countless other distinguished Americans.

Are YOUR male relatives in this distinguished company? Twenty thousand patriotic American men ARE. A strong SAR means an even stronger DAR. Membership literature is available from the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution, 2412 Mass. Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008.

For a long time we prospered and grew great with Yankee Doodle, America, the Battle Hymn of the Republic, the Red, White and Blue and Columbia, We went from the bottom to top on those simple ditties. No sooner had we become great than Washington spendthrifts picked a dirge as our musical flag waver. Why?

Fiedler Overpass Marvel

To the Editor of The Herald:

The new pedestrian overpass near the Hatch Music Shell will be dedicated to Mr. Arthur Fiedler next Sunday. This overpass is believed to be an outstanding example of the use of extra high strength concrete both as to length of span (96 feet between piers) and as to graceful appearance. The bridge is a continuous curve both in plan and in profile and was very complex to design and construct.

The project has been carried out by the Metropolitan District Commission under the direction of Mr. Benjamin W. Fink, director of Park Engineering. Our own firm received the prime contract for the design of the overpass but would have been unable to accomplish the present results without the invaluable aid of Shepley, Bulfinch, Richardson and Abbott, Architects, and Henry Brask, Engineer. Coleman Brothers were the contractors.

Teacher Approves

To the Editor of The Herald:

I am a retired teacher, as of this June, and have suffered these many years with the revered "Star Spangled Banner." Of course, you know as I do, that it was written on and for an occasion and that probably Key never meant it to be a national anthem. It surely has no significance for youth (nor adults) of today, nor the general inspirational character for a national anthem.

Won't you do what you can to push "America the Beautiful" as a substitute?

M. ANTHONY.

Lynn.

Perhaps he is so young and unlettered that he has failed to absorb the historical significance of the words of Francis Scott Key. Perhaps the broader meaning of the line "Our flag is still there," has never occurred to him. Thank God, our flag is always there.

Where I came from, everybody can sing the Star Spangled Banner, lustily or harmoniously, as occasion demands. If "Nobody" referred to at the head of his column, doesn't know the song, he'd better learn it and sing it. . . .

The national anthem should not be simple. It should not be a school song, nor should it be a Sunday School hymn.

. . . If you can write a better one, Mr. Elie, by all means do it; but as an American citizen, I beg you to consider well before you continue your attack on anything as dearly loved and as sacred as our national anthem, The Star Spangled Banner.

G. S. DUNBAR

Boston.

Waiting for the Blast

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have been waiting for someone to blast the words and music to our so-called national anthem that really isn't national at all, since only a few know the words and fewer the tune and can sing it.

Isn't it almost subversive to keep under wraps something that could really inspire our people to develop the all too bashful and undeveloped seed of patriotism and love for country that lies stifling within most Americans? Look what God Save the King does for the Briton, and Le Marsellaise does for the Frenchman. And I could name more.

Since America has the same tune as God Save the King, let's pass it by. America, the Beautiful has long been my first love. God Bless America—corny and sentimental, but so what? Everyone seems to know and like to sing it.

MRS. JOHN DOLE

Boston.

Absolutely Right

To the Editor of The Herald:

Mr. Elie is absolutely right about "The Star Spangled Banner." "America the Beautiful" would be much better in every respect as our national anthem.

JOHN L. DINSMORE.

PROTESTS SUMNER TUNNEL RUDENESS

To the Editor of The Herald:

I wish to protest the outrageous treatment accorded my friend and myself by the attendants located at the Sumner Tunnel.

On Sunday morning, June 28, at approximately 12.30 A. M., my friend who was driving his car with Illinois registration, and myself, passed through the toll gate at the East Boston side of the Sumner Tunnel, handed our 20 cents to the attendant in charge and proceeded through the tunnel only to be flagged down by two attendants at the other end. We were told we had thrown our money at the tollman, which in this case was an absurdity. Not wishing any further trouble we paid an additional 20 cents to a very rude and unmannerly attendant who had no justification in his accusation.

If the first tollman dropped the money, that is not our fault, but I saw my friend put the money directly into the attendants hand.

It is indeed upsetting to feel our own protective organization is deliberately engaging in this sort of racket for their own profit and gain. Is this the way tourists are treated by our fair Commonwealth? Isn't it time Boston awoke?

JEAN E. MACOMBER

Newton.

Enraged by Mr. Elie

To the Editor of The Herald:

Here is someone enraged by Mr. Eli's dissection of our national anthem.

That few know all the words of each stanza is no reflection upon the quality of the words. In fact today there is hardly a song that has more than one verse and a chorus and some have only a chorus.

As to the music, we all probably could sing it under the proper leadership. What about Lucy Munroe, the Star Spangled Banner Girl? How she could sing it!

SARA F. JONES

Sees No New Anthem

To the Editor of The Herald:

During my life in this country—88 years—I have come to feel ever more deeply the thrill when the band sounds the first bar—"O, say can you see. . . ."

Possibly the next generation may accept in its place the fine hymn, "My country, 'tis of thee," or "O beautiful for spacious skies," but I frankly doubt if the change will ever come, however wise and true Mr. Elie's words may be.

B. GOOVER.

America the Beautiful

To the Editor of The Herald:

"The Anthem Nobody Tries to Sing" is priceless and echoes my own, repeated thoughts. "America the Beautiful" is in perfect accord with our hopes and fears for today. What an inspiration it would be to sing and listen over and again to Katherine Bates' beautiful lines expressing what is in all our hearts.

Revolutionary War's Last Real Son Passes Away

SOUTH WOODBURY, Vt., Mar. 20 (INS)—The last real son of the American Revolution, William Constant Wheeler, 93, has passed away.

Wheeler was the son of Comfort Wheeler, who fought under George Washington more than a century and a half ago, and was himself a Civil war veteran. He died in a great wooden bed in his snowbound farmhouse on the outskirts of South Woodbury, after suffering a shock.

Use of U.S. Flag as Towel Brings Essay as a Penalty

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Municipal Judge Donald Dungan sentenced Joe McClung, 19 years old, of Seattle, to 60 days in jail and to write a 2,000-word essay on "What I think and feel the flag is to this country."

Joe was arrested on a beach by the police, who said he had been using an 8-by-12-foot American flag for a beach towel. He was charged with defiling the flag.

"I didn't have anything better to lie on," the police quoted him as saying.

Rep. Arens Before DAR

Says Reds Fighting Walter-McCarran Act

WASHINGTON, April 18 (UP)—Richard Arens, director of the house committee on un-American activities, told the Daughters of the American Revolution today that the Communists have created more than 180 organizations throughout the country to fight the Walter-McCarran immigration and nationality act.

Arens told the DAR's 66th congress that "destruction" of the act is the "number one target" of the U. S. Communist party. He said it has set up the 180 organizations to build "grass roots" support for amending the act.

The Reds have found "allies in political hucksters who auction visas for so-called nationality bloc votes," he said.

Mrs. Ray Lawrence Erb of New York City, chairman of the DAR's national defense committee told the convention that the DAR has "documented evidence" that the menace of Socialism in U. S. churches "is much greater than reported."

She said only about one-tenth of the DAR chapters have indicated they "were aware of Socialism in the churches."

Mrs. Erb said her committee's function is to alert "our members to any situation which seems to hold potential danger to our republic."

She reported that 915 of the DAR's 2805 chapters have members who are reading and "evaluating" school textbooks. Seven hundred and forty-six chapters have reported "cognizance" of subversive activities in their communities and states, she said.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

NATIONAL DEFENSE IN D.A.R.

Again and again we are asked by members "Why a National Defense Committee?" Every member should have a copy of the 1953 "What the Daughters Do" pamphlet issued by the Recording Secretary General Mrs. Thomas Henry Lee. There you will find a chapter on the National Defense Committee.

This committee covers many phases of our national life. The resolutions which are passed at each Continental Congress become the policies of our National Society and thus are the policies of our committees. As a Society, we advocate an adequate defense for our country.

We believe that education for American citizenship is necessary for the youth of our nation and we award Good Citizenship Medals. We also give Awards of Merit to outstanding people in our communities and this is sponsored by the National Defense Committee.

We as a Society are actively opposed to any form of world government or to the giving up of our sovereign rights as a nation. We have supported the United Nations as an organization of sovereign nations to preserve peace on earth, but through our national resolutions we oppose its specialized agencies and treaties which could assume control of American domestic affairs.

The National Defense Committee watches closely the legislative trends in education immigration and world government affecting the American way of life.

The National Defense Committee believes that an informed membership is vital to preserving our liberties. It asks that every chapter give at least five minutes each meeting to an explanation of its work.

A section of White Plains Rural Cemetery in White Plains, N. Y. In 1776, these tree-shadowed acres formed a no-man's-land between General Washington's lines and the British positions in the Battle of White Plains.

Cemetery Occupies Site Of Revolutionary War Battle

● White Plains (N.Y.) Rural Cemetery Is Located on Battlefield Where Washington's Army Met the Forces of General Howe in 1776

NOW AND THEN, when preparing for an interment, workmen at White Plains Rural Cemetery in White Plains, N. Y., unearth a cannonball or a uniform button that dates back to the Revolutionary War. A few hundred yards away, they can see Mount Misery and Battle Hill, and it is only a short walk to the old farmhouse that once housed General Washington and his staff.

They are surrounded by reminders that the tree-shaded acres of the revered old cemetery once formed part of a hotly-contested battlefield. And beneath ancient monuments, now only 500 feet from the redoubts, lie some of the men who fought in the Battle of White Plains, when the hard-pressed Americans were spared from a complete defeat only by a fortuitous rainstorm.

The battle took place on October 22, 1776. Washington, beaten by the British in the Battle of Long Island and again at Harlem Heights, had retreated north from Manhattan to the village of White Plains in Westchester Country. Here, in the home of Elijah Miller, he set up his headquarters and prepared for another stand against the redcoats.

General Howe followed the Continental troops in their withdrawal, and when Washington formed his lines on a slope in White Plains, the British went into position on an opposite ridge to the West. The level ground between was a no-man's land, and it was here, about 19 years later, that the first Methodist Church in Westchester was erected, with a churchyard burial ground that now forms a section of White Plains Rural Cemetery.

Before they built the church, the congregation had met in the same farmhouse that General Washington had used for his headquarters. They felled and hewed trees from nearby woods and erected a simple house of worship. The building was completed and ready for dedication when it was completely destroyed by fire.

While the ruins were still smoldering, the men went back to the forest and felled trees for new lumber, and the women raked the embers to pick out the hand-made nails. This building now serves as administration headquarters for the cemetery and as the home of its general manager, Miss Miriam Dewsnap. A room behind the office still contains the original pulpit, some of the old pews, and several marble memorial plaques honoring long-departed members of the church.

THE FIRST recorded interment was that of the Rev. Alfred Van Nostrand, one of the early pastors, who died in 1797. Since then there have been about 25,000 burials. Currently about 200 burials take place each year.

In 1844 the New York & Harlem Railroad bought a two-acre strip on the west boundary of the cemetery as a right-of-way. The church moved downtown and the original building was used occasionally as a chapel for services at the cemetery. Additional land was bought in 1847, and again in 1854, when 36 acres were purchased. In the latter year the White Plains Rural Cemetery Association was formed, and the cemetery was placed in the custody of a board of trustees elected by the plot owners. It remains a non-profit, non-sectarian institution.

Today the cemetery comprises 34 acres, with about five acres available for future interments. The soil possesses excellent drainage, with a sand layer that is 25 feet deep beneath some portions of the surface.

Prices average about $4 a square foot; a single grave costs $125. Lowering device, grass set, tent and other graveside equipment are provided for services without cost. The perpetual care fee is $25, or $1 a square foot, whichever amount is greater. Income is distributed among three funds: Permanent Maintenance, Endowment, and General Fund.

Erected in 1795 as the first Methodist church in Westchester County, N. Y., the Administration Building of the White Plains Rural Cemetery still contains the pulpit and some of the old pews.

Four employees comprise the permanent maintenance crew, with additional help hired during the summer months. Because the monuments are so close together, mechanical equipment is limited largely to power mowers. Although White Plains Rural will remain a monument cemetery in the future, the management is preparing regulations that will increase the restrictions, and has limited new monuments to those of the headstone type.

The stables and sheds used a century or more ago by the clergyman and congregation have been altered to provide facilities for tool storage and an employee's room. Eventually these buildings will have to be replaced, but their historic connotations are so great that the management is reluctant to tear them down.

Miriam Dewsnap, manager of the cemetery for the past 12 years, was born in the old church building and still lives there. She is the daughter of C. H. Dewsnap, who became superintendent in 1902 and held that position for half a century, until he was 90 years old. He died nine years later, in 1950.

WHITE PLAINS, now considered to be one of New York City's most attractive suburbs, was settled by immigrants from Connecticut in 1683. Incorporated as a village in 1866 and as a city in 1916, it is now the seat of Westchester County. Many of the cemetery's officers and trustees trace their American origins back to the first settlers of New Amsterdam and the early 18th century pioneers of southern New York state.

President of the White Plains Rural Cemetery Association is Herbert K. Morrell. The descendant of a Quaker family of pre-Revolutionary times, Mr. Morrell has, in his words, "several score of ancestors and relatives" interred in the cemetery. He is president of William E. Morrell, Inc., a real estate and insurance firm founded by his brother in 1909. A former banker, Mr. Morrell has been associated with this firm since 1911.

He is chairman of the county Zoning Board of Appeals; former president of the Westchester County Realty Board; many times president of the White Plains Realty Board; chairman of the Business Men's Section, Chamber of Commerce — in 1924 he instituted the annual Christmas lighting display along Main Street, one of the first times that this was done in any American city; former secretary of the Lion's Club; a 32nd Degree Mason, and onetime president of the Hook and Ladder Company, an office rated among the highest civic honors in the community.

Maurits Kullberge, secretary-treasurer, is a vice president of the Home Savings Bank in White Plains, and the cemetery's attorney is Robert P. Smith, a former mayor. On the Board of Trustees are a number of men whose fathers and grandfathers served on that body before them. The Board includes Richard S. Hendey, present mayor of White Plains; Stewart W. Rowe and William F. Ranscht, former city judges; Archie Bunting, W. T. Bachman, James E. Cook, Harvey Husted, Jr., Robert P. Smith, Robert H. Travis, and Burton F. Park. The trustees meet four times a year.

The trees and shrubs of the cemetery attract visitors throughout the Summer and Fall. One of the largest sassafras trees in the United States is here, as well as two especially fine old magnolias and a venerable wisteria vine that almost covers the century-old receiving vault.

Clustered around the administration building are the ancient graves that mark the site of the churchyard. Here are timeworn stones that bear names long honored in American history and legend.

Buried here are many of the Van Tassels, the family made immortal by Washington Irving in the Legend of Sleepy Hollow. They are the kinfolk of Ichabod Crane's beloved Katrina — "a blooming lass of fresh eighteen, plump as a partridge, ripe and melting and rosy-cheeked as one of her father's peaches." Perhaps here, too, lies buried under his true name the father of Katrina, "old Baltus Van Tassel . . . a perfect picture of a thriving, contented, liberal-hearted farmer."

The Van Tassel farm was in Tarrytown a few miles away, near the site of Irving's home, Sunnyside, and the storied Sleepy Hollow Cemetery.

The Tompkins family plot is also here, with the grave of its most distinguished member — Daniel Tompkins, vice president of the United States from 1827 to 1834, governor of New York from 1807 to 1817. In the latter year, acting on a recommendation contained in Governor Tompkins' last message to the legislature, New York passed a law setting all slaves free on and after July 4, 1827.

One large plot is owned by Architects Lodge, Free & Accepted Masons, of New York City. This was the lodge to which President Franklin D. Roosevelt belonged.

The Soldiers' Section is devoted mostly to the graves of Civil War veterans. Each Memorial Day, the community parade marches from downtown White Plains to the cemetery for services, which were conducted this year by the Capt. Frederick W. Cobb Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Since the cemetery's records go back to the 1700's, Miss Dewsnap receives numerous inquiries from genealogists, historians and researchers from all over the nation. An antique collector with an intense interest in local history, Miss Dewsnap finds great personal satisfaction in serving as manager of what is as much a Westchester historical monument as an active cemetery.

When Miss Dewsnap assumed responsibility for the cemetery, Mr. Morrell recalls, the trustees were faced with a minor problem of semantics. Miss Dewsnap's father was termed, in conventional style, "superintendent." To give this title to any woman as feminine as Miss Dewsnap just did not seem quite proper.

Finally, after various attempts to devise something less masculine but equally as accurate, the board settled upon "general manager." But, title or not, Miss Dewsnap directs the outside activities at White Plains Rural Cemetery as well as the administrative routine. She is highly praised by Mr. Morrell and the trustees, who consider her a worthy successor to her father and an unusually competent cemeterian.

The management of White Plains Rural Cemetery makes no effort to increase the number of annual interments, and the trustees have no future program more ambitious than the continued improvement of the carefully-tended grounds. They are proud and content to serve as custodians of a cemetery that for 167 years has been a hallowed shrine in historic Westchester.

Civil Air Patrol Aids Cemetery Restoration

Cadets from the local Civil Air Patrol in July helped Park Department employees clean up the heavily undergrown Revolutionary War Cemetery in Bridgeport, Conn. Occupying a tract of four and a half acres, the cemetery contains about 700 graves, many of them dating back to colonial times.

The Mary Silliman chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and other patriotic societies have protested the neglect of the cemetery. Park Department officials state that they do not have enough personnel to maintain it properly.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseperable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

D.A.R. to Give Capital Bit of Bay State History

By MARY SARAH KING

A bit of the Bay State will be enshrined in the nation's capital by the Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution.

It will be a replica of the Hancock-Adams room in the Hancock-Clarke House in Lexington.

To be called the Massachusetts D.A.R. Room, it will be located in the Memorial Continental Hall of the national organization in Washington. Each state will add to its existing room or refurbish it.

An additional incentive for Massachusetts women to perpetuate the state's history is the coming celebration of the tercentenary of the Declaration of Independence.

"Massachusetts will be in the forefront of the celebration, for it was Samuel Adams, Joseph Warren, John Hancock, John Adams, Paul Revere and James Otis who worked so diligently to unite the colonies for independence," Miss MacPeek said.

Added impetus will be given to the project at the annual Fall state meeting to be held in Springfield at the Hotel Sheraton-Kimball on Wednesday and Thursday.

The local group will cooperate with the national body's establishment of a new American Heritage committee, locally operating under the chairmanship of Mrs. Clarence Goodwin of Worcester.

Speakers at the opening session will be two national chairmen, Mrs. Philip Trippett, insignia, and Mrs. G. Murray Campbell, junior American citizens. Addressing the 7 o'clock banquet will be John F. Hines, president of American International College. He will speak on "Educating Young People for Tomorrow."

On Miss MacPeek's state board are: Mrs. George S. Tolman 3d, Hingham, vice regent; Mrs Frederick C. Prussman, Brighton, chaplain; Mrs. Harry Sherwin, Saugus, recording secretary; Mrs. Herbert H. Dicks, Wayland, organizing secretary; Mrs. Robert G. Sisson, Arlington, treasurer; Mrs. John J. Palka, Westfield, assistant treasurer; Miss Emma N. Mayhew, New Bedford, registrar; Mrs. Hamilton H. Sweet, historian; Miss Agnes V. Eaton, Chelmsford, librarian; Mrs. William M. Call, Waltham, parliamentarian.

OUR HERITAGE FROM COLONIAL DAYS

By Frances Ramsey (Mrs. Thomas) Joseph,
Shadwell Chapter, Charlottesville, Va.

Where and when was the first labor strike in America?

Which nationality that settled our country first practiced religious and national tolerance?

Of what nationality was Washington's bodyguard?

Do you know the answers to these questions? if not, read on and learn these facts, plus others, from Our Heritage From Colonial Days.

It seems important to pause now and then, and consider our American heritage—the backgrounds for our beliefs and those from whom our beliefs came down to us. Since we inherited many of our laws, most of our language, and many of our customs and traditions from England, it is easy to slip into the habit of thinking of pre-Revolutionary people and ways of living in America as having been imported direct from England. The truth is that, from the very earliest days, our country has been a "melting pot" of peoples and customs.

The First Poles

Everyone is familiar with the English companies' founding of Jamestown in 1607 and Plymouth in 1620; but it is often forgotten that, in 1608, six craftsmen arrived in Jamestown in answer to Captain John Smith's plea for workers. These men were Polish workmen, who were later credited by Smith with having saved Jamestown.

Within 3 weeks of their arrival, they had built a glass factory, were distilling tar and pitch from pines, and had established a soap works and a sawmill. The other settlers followed their example, started working, and saved the colony, which had been on the brink of disaster.

A few years later these Polish workmen declared the first strike in America. The Governor of Virginia had called an election, with only native-born Englishmen allowed to vote. The Polish men refused to work until the law was changed to give them the franchise.

In these early days, more men than women emigrated from Poland, and the Polish names were passed on to other generations. These names eventually were anglicized, as in the case of Jan Antoni Sadowski. He was a Polish trader who went 200 miles beyond the nearest settlement to set up a trading post along Lake Erie. His name, when anglicized, was Jonathan Sandusky and is memorialized in the city of Sandusky, Ohio.

The Huguenots

One of the more famous of the Mayflower's passengers was one Priscilla Mullins, who spoke the famous words, "Speak for yourself, John." It isn't generally known that "this example of English maidenhood" was actually Priscilla Molines, a French Huguenot who had arrived with her father in England a short while before the sailing of the Mayflower.

The French Huguenots formed a trickle in the stream of emigration to the Colonies for 150 years and were so successful in establishing themselves in their chosen communities that it is forgotten that they were French. Many "Dutch" in New Amsterdam were actually French who had escaped from France to Holland. Governor Peter Minuit of New Amsterdam was a Frenchman.

Huguenots settled in Pennsylvania 25 years before Penn. Others formed a settlement of several hundred persons along the Santee River at Charleston, S. C. At the time of the Revolution, only 15,000 French people had come to the colonies, but many outstanding patriots were included in this number. Descendants of the French families also played an important part in early American history—Paul Revere (Rivoire) and "Nolichucky Jack" John Sevier (Xavier), for example.

The Italians

The first Italians to arrive in America came to Jamestown in 1622. There were 16 of them—Venetian glassworkers, who set up shop and made beads for trade with the Indians. In 1657, the Dutch persuaded 300 Italians to settle around New Castle, Del., and in 1700 others came to Georgia to set up mulberry plantations and silk factories.

Philip Mazzie traveled from his home in Florence, Italy, to Virginia in 1773. He wrote articles for publication expressing his views on the political issues of the times. In one such article, he expressed the thought that "All men by nature are created free and equal." You will recognize the sentiment which Jefferson later incorporated into the Declaration of Independence. Another illustrious Italian was William Paca, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and a Governor of Maryland.

The Dutch

The Dutch who settled New Amsterdam around 1624 were the first American Colonists to practice religious and national tolerance. By 1646, the New Amsterdam population of 800 represented more than a dozen nationalities and/or religions.

In 1664, New Netherlands was taken over by the English without a shot being fired, and eventually the Dutch were amalgamated with their English neighbors. Even so, 5,000 of the American troops fighting at Saratoga in the Revolution were Dutch-speaking soldiers from the Hudson River Valley.

The Swedes

Peter Minuit, after being ousted as Governor of New Netherlands, persuaded the Queen of Sweden to sponsor a Swedish colony in North America. As a result, he brought two shiploads of Swedes to Delaware in 1638.

The Indians deeded land to them on both sides of the Delaware River to where the sun sets. They established a fort where Wilmington now stands and built farms west of Philadelphia.

To their credit go such diversities as the building of the first log cabins, schools, and churches in the Colonies and the importation of the first Lutheran ministers, seckel pears, and rutabagas.

In 1655, Peter Stuyvesant came down from New Amsterdam to tell the Swedes that they were trespassing on his property and took them into his domain. Nine years later, they came under English rule, along with

Mrs. Eisenhower Regrets Inability to Receive Clubwomen

By RUTH COWAN

WASHINGTON, May 23 (AP) — Mrs. Eisenhower is very, very sorry, but she can't invite the general federation of women's clubs to the White House, although she hopes to drop in one of their convention sessions next week.

That was the news which greeted early arrivals to the 62nd annual convention of the world's largest organization of women. It brought expressions of disappointment that they, unlike the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) and other women's groups, are not being received at the White House during their first convention in Washington.

The general federation has 11 million members, half in this country and half overseas. It represents 800,000 individual women's clubs in the U. S. At least 3,000 members are expected for the convention.

Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren of Whiting, Ind., general federation president, several weeks ago submitted several plans to the White House for recognition of her organization.

No snags were anticipated, seeing that Mrs. Eisenhower had received 3,000 members of the DAR, 1,000 wives of members attending the U. S. chamber of commerce convention and smaller groups.

But up until late Saturday afternoon the clubwomen had no reply to their suggestion.

Inquiries at the White House brought from Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree, the first lady's personal secretary, a prompt denial that there was any thought of slighting the federation.

On the contrary, she said, Mrs. Eisenhower was reviewing her next week's program in hopes of finding time in which to attend one of the convention's sessions. She could not say yet when this might be.

Mrs. McCaffree said Mrs. Eisenhower's calendar next week is packed with events, including the White House veterans garden party Tuesday, the first big reception to be attended by both the president and Mrs. Eisenhower.

But back of this, perhaps, are some experiences Mrs. Eisenhower has had at recent mass receptions.

Last April she stood four hours in line to receive more than 3000 members of the DAR, which she had just joined.

There were complaints from women who also had to wait in line for hours. White House aides noted the hardships involved. At the DAR reception seven or eight grew faint and had to be given first aid.

Also there were incidents of embarrassment to wives of cabinet members at the large receptions. These women, as is customary at non-official events, took Mrs. Eisenhower's place in line while she briefly rested her feet and right hand.

But guests, understandably disappointed in not seeing Mrs. Eisenhower, let their unhappiness be known.

Mrs. Eisenhower tried out a new technique when she received the ladies Oriental shrine last Tuesday. She stood on a balcony in the White House foyer and waved to her guests as they arrived.

U. S. IS GIVEN LEAD IN ATOM STOCKPILE

Van Zandt Tells D.A.R. It Is Three and a Half Times as Large as the Soviet's

By BESS FURMAN
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, April 16—Representative James F. Van Zandt, Republican of Pennsylvania, said today the United States' stockpile of materials for atomic weapons had been estimated at three-and-a-half times that of the Soviet Union's.

He told a luncheon meeting of the Pennsylvania Daughters of the American Revolution that it had been estimated that the United States had material to make 35,000 atomic weapons, while the Soviet had materials for 10,000.

The Pennsylvanians met in conjunction with the sixty-sixth Continental Congress of the D. A. R. in Constitution Hall.

Representative Van Zandt, is a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy. H did not give the source of his information.

Noting that each power was capable of waging nuclear war on the other, he urged that every effort be made to reach a sound agreement with the Russians on [illegible] armaments.

For many years the D. A. R. has been a forum for reports on the comparative armed might of this country and Russia.

Mideast in Spotlight

The outstanding topic of today's session of the Continental Congress, however, was the Middle East.

Senator William E. Jenner, Republican of Indiana, warned against the transfer of United States armed forces to the United Nations Emergency Forces.

He told the convention that the Middle East resolution adopted by the Congress permitted such a stransfer and was a destruction of American sovereignty and of the power of Congress.

"Not one of us can rest until that power is erturned," he declared.

Earlier, the Daughters indicated their agreement with Senator Jenner by applauding a resolution against use of United States forces by the United Nations. The resolution will be acted upon tomorrow.

Applause indicating unanimous approval tomorrow also greeted the reading of resolutions urging:

¶A cut in the Federal budget.

¶Rejection of all pending civil rights legislation as a threat to state's rights.

¶An end to United States financial support to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. The Daughters said material put out by the organization "weakens supreme loyalty to the American Republic."

¶Withdrawal of American support from the International Labor Organization, accusing that United Nations affiliate of being "an important aspect of the world Communist movement."

¶An end to registration of firearms as crippling home defense in case of an enemy attack.

Mrs. Frederic A. Groves, President General, reviewed the "press controversy" over cancellation of a Lincoln's Birthday celebration in Golden, Colo., after a Denver D. A. R. official was quoted as saying she thought a boy of Mexican origin should not carry the United States flag.

"May I again remind you that this is an incident that happened in 1950 and not in 1957," Mrs. Groves said.

Officials of the D. A. R. said later that a report on the Colorado incident had been circulated in the organization saying that Mrs. Charlotte Rush of Denver had originally made her flag-carrying statement in 1950 and that a newspaper reporter had revived it in connection with the 1957 celebration.

Mrs. Rush apologized last Feb. 11, for the remark she was reported to have made on Feb. 9 of this year.

Mideast Means Many Things to Many People

WASHINGTON—The three Easts—Near, Middle, and Far—where are they? What does each include?

Because they serve to break the vast Orient into handy sections, the three designations are much used. Because they lack any broad official status, however, they remain vague and their boundaries are moved around by both writers and travelers.

The National Geographic Society, dealing in terms of logical geographical divisions, currently divides the three Easts as follows:

MIDDLE EAST—India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Sikkim and Ceylon.

FAR EAST—China, Mongolian Republic, Korea, Japan, the Philippines, Indochina, Thailand (Siam), Burma, Malaya and Indonesia.

Greece Not Included

The society's list of Near East countries corresponds closely to the State Departments grouping as represented by its Office of Near Eastern Affairs and Office of Greek, Turkish and Iranian Affairs. Greece and the Sudan, within the scope of these two offices are not part of the society's Near East grouping.

In British usage, the Balkan states of southeastern Europe often have been tabbed as part of the Near East, but American practice is to align them geographically with the West.

By common consent, authorities on the Orient keep south of Russia in defining Middle East and Near East. With this and the State Department's official Far East in mind, National Geographic Society cartographers have defined their geographically logical Middle East.

The State Department has a Bureau of Near Eastern, South Asian and African Affairs. It thus avoids the term Middle East, and any precise definition of what comprises the Near East. Within the bureau however, the Office of South Asian Affairs deals only with the countries that compose the society's Middle East.

Complicated by British

Prior to World War II, "Middle East" quite commonly described the region of the Indian subcontinent although the designation was often made to reach westward to embrace Iran and the Arabian Peninsula. Newest of the three Easts, Middle East started as a generalization to describe the regions of southern Asia between Near East and Far East.

World War II, however, greatly complicated the meaning of this term by bringing to the forefront the spreading British Middle East Command. The Command's military province expanded westward until it reached from Iran to Libya inclusive. War communiques from as far west as Bengasi and Tripoli were labeled Middle East, even by American newspapers.

The term Far East dates almost from Columbus' time. At first it described the coasts and islands east of Singapore visited by venturesome navigators who reached the Pacific by rounding Africa's southern tip and crossing the Indian Ocean. [illegible] 11-17-56

These coasts and islands were far east from a Europe that considered itself the center of the world. To west-coast Americans they are near west as well as Far East.

Some writers have restricted the Far East to China, Korea and Japan. Others expand the term to include virtually all Asia east of Afghanistan.

Speaking of dates . . .

On November 11, 1620, the ship Mayflower lay silently at anchor off the coast of Massachusetts. Inside the Captain's cabin were gathered 42 passengers. From the dim outer ring of lantern light, they stepped forward to a table and one by one signed their names at the bottom of a short document—the now famous Mayflower Compact, which began:

"In the Name of God, Amen . . . Having undertaken for the Glory of God . . . a voyage to plant the first colony . . ." Thus did the pilgrims put God, with His infinite strength and justice, before all else; and second only to this did they combine themselves "together into a civil body . . . for the general good of the Colony . . ."

And so the pilgrims gave thanks to God for His help in the establishment of a home which was to grow into a nation of self-governing free men, men who respected above all the supreme authority and guidance of God.

Massachusetts Women's Court I

Unit Is Auxiliary To Boston's Ancients

KING

When Mrs. Frank Leon Nason, now of Plymouth, obtained permission to form a court of women descendants of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, she promised the group would never interfere with the men.

"And that promise has been kept for the past quarter of a century," she maintains, looking forward to the 25th anniversary of her founding on Sept. 13 of the Massachusetts Court of Assistants.

Mrs. Nason, who is now in her early 80's and an honorary national president, will be a guest of honor at a luncheon program at the Engineers Club, 98 Beacon st., Boston.

Sharing guest honors will be Mrs. Hugh Wallace Glover Jr. of Midland, Mich., president national; Mrs. Ernest Halnan Bailey of Duxbury and Mrs. John Bayley O'Brien of Bronxville, N.Y., honorary presidents.

Mrs. Erskine Daniel Lord of Marblehead is president of the Massachusetts court which is affiliated with other courts throughout the country. It is known as the home court due to its proximity to Faneuil Hall, the oldest armory in the Mayflower to Plymouth, encouraged her interest in historical and genealogical fields.

Her literary work has included many historical plays and pageants and she has held high office in patriotic societies. She has held both state and national office in the D.A.R., here and in Washington, D.C.

By special permission of the quartermaster general of the War Department, Mrs. Nason gave a short address in the amphitheater, at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Arlington, Va., when the official insigne of the national society was presented a museum in 1942.

Banquet at Plaza Listed by Society Of Colonial Wars

State Unit Annual Event Will Mark 70 Years Since Inauguration

There have been many changes since the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of New York started having annual banquets 70 years ago.

The first get-together was in the nine-month-old Waldorf Hotel—torn down to make way for the Empire State Building—and the 1963 edition on Wednesday will be in the Plaza. And the original stag parties have given way in the last decade to banquets and balls. The addition of the ladies, a society spokesman reports, has made the parties more successful. Now they can have dancing.

What still seems to be the same for 1893 and 1963, however, besides the ancestors (active here before 1776) of the guests, is that the committee has to call on native Pennsylvanians or guest speakers.

Before the century turned it was Horace Porter, the silver-tongued Civil War general and president of the Union League Club, and on Wednesday it will be Dr. James McNaughton Hester, World War II Marine Corps captain, and president of New York University.

Presiding at the first dinner was Frederic James de Peyster (City College and Columbia Law) who was the first governor of the society. The present governor, Middleton Rose, an investment banker, will preside this week.

Arrangements for the banquet and ball are in the hands of Richard Q. Livingston, a sales executive with a perfume company and chairman of the board of stewards of the society. He is being aided by Mrs. David Lloyd Jones, Mrs. William F. Pilcher, Mrs. Stanley DeForest Scott, Jr., Mrs. DeWitt Lounsbery and Mrs. Livingston.

This will be only the 66th annual banquet because they were suspended during World War II.

DAR Congress Asks Renewal Of 'Spiritual Emphasis' in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 19 (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution ended their 66th continental congress today with a final resolution urging "renewed spiritual emphasis" in national life to combat "the evil threat" of communism.

The delegates shunted aside one proposal of ther national resolutions committee on water conservation and adopted a stronger, substitute resolution calling for "a vigorous program of conservation and protection of our waters."

It was the first time in the week-long session that anyone had proposed any counter action on some 30 resolutions put before them by the committee.

The 2237 delegates also called for traffic safety organizations in all states, noted "a great scarcity" of trained scientists and skilled technicians in the nation and urged that education in the nation's schools and colleges be strengthened by the state and local communities.

Yesterday they had taken a stand against federal aid to education "in whatever guise."

Adoption of the resolution on "Crusade for Christian Freedom," drew Kathryn Diggs, Washington, D. C., high school teacher, to her feet to decry "an element in our society that is trying to destroy religious beliefs."

She said some schools have dispersed with daily reading of the bible and recitation of the Lord's prayer.

"The D.A.R.," she said, "should go into the school system and try to put this practice back into the basic education of every citizen."

Mrs. Walter E. Morse, retiring senior vice president of the Massachusetts State society, Children of the American Revolution, played an active part in the spring state conference held last week-end at the Old South church, Boston . . . Mrs. Charles R. Talbot II, first president of Peter Coburn, Jr society, CAR. participated in the meeting, and young Carolyn and Gwendolyn Talbot enjoyed the day . . . The youngsters were treated to a historical tour of Boston, visiting the U. S. S. Constitution, Bunker Hill monument and Old North church, where at the suggestion of the guard they joined in singing a verse of "America."

D.A.R. Names Director of Hall

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution announced Saturday the selection of Capt. Donald O. Lacey, a retired naval officer, as managing director of Constitution Hall, the organization's national headquarters. Captain Lacey, a native of Sioux Falls, S. D., will also be superintendent of buildings and grounds and the newly created business manager of the hall.

LOWELL—The regular meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held on Wednesday afternoon at the Spalding house with Mrs. Albert Catherwood, regent, presiding.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Benjamin J. Mahoney, past regent, after which the members pledged allegiance to the flag, recited the American's Creed and sang the national anthem, with Miss Ella M. Penn at the piano.

The secretary's report was read by Mrs. Edith P. MacDonald and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Robert W. Barris. Guests were welcomed and two new members, Mrs. Elizabeth Spiller and Mrs. Albert Gongloff were given a hearty greeting.

Food and cash donations were brought by the members for the Children's homes, which will bring cheer to the children during the Easter season. The spring conference will meet at a Boston hotel on March 19 and 20, and many are planning to attend, especially the first day when the Good Citizenship girls will attend.

The following members were appointed on the nominating committee for the officers to be elected at the May meeting: Mrs. Charles R. Talbot, chairman; Mrs. George H. Upton, Mrs. Andrew G. Jenkins, Mrs. Arnold A. Byam, Jr., and Mrs. Clayton F. Jennison.

The chapter choral group gave vocal selections under the direction of Mrs. J. Lawrence Hallett. Mrs. Lewis A. Putnam gave a delightful book review on the following books: "Disiree," "Proud Kate," "The Galileans," "Snails" and "Puppy Dog Tales," "Six Weeks in March" and 'A Little Treasury of Main Street, USA," dispersed with verses of humor.

An enjoyable social hour was held at the close of the meeting with Miss Glennis F. Ranlett and Mrs. Frank Bryant in charge, assisted by the hospitality group. The hostesses were Mrs. Arnold A. Byam, Jr., Mrs. George A. Byam, Mrs. J. Lawrence Hallett, Mrs. Harold K. Bartlett with Mrs. F. Leon Gage pourer. The tea table was artistically decorated for the occasion.

WASHINGTON, June 1 (UP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House a bill to forbid dis- play of the United Nations flag in a position superior or equal to the United States flag on Ameri- can soil except at U.N. headquar- ters.

The voice vote was unanimous. Sponsored by Senator Edward Martin, Rep., of Pennsylvania, the bill prescribes a punishment of $250 fine or six months in jail for violations.

Evil of Genocide Stressed

Is Considered More Detrimental to Civilization Than War

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK TIMES:

Your recent editorial entitled "The Crime of Genocide," which brilliantly describes the application of the Genocide Convention to the tragic events behind the Iron Curtain, is most significant. Unfortunately, world opinion, which is justly preoccupied with the problem of war, tends to overlook genocide, which is even more detrimental to our civilization than war itself.

I am grateful for the reference you made to Cuba in your editorial. Faithful to its humanitarian tradition, my country, together with India and Panama, introduced in the United Nations General Assembly in 1946 the resolution which led to the unanimous adoption of the Genocide Convention in 1948 and to its ratification by the Parliaments of forty-one nations, which makes the Genocide Convention the most ratified convention introduced into the United Nations since the signing of the Charter itself. The increasing number of Parliamentary ratifications of the Genocide Convention indicates the growing understanding of its vital necessity; for in this century alone thus far over twenty million lives have been sacrificed.

Scope of Methods

In my statement before the Political Committee of the United Nations General Assembly on April 13 I explained that genocide is being perpetrated behind the Iron Curtain on a terrifyingly large scale against such religious groups as Catholics, Protestants, Jews and Moslems. Also national groups such as Estonians, Lithuanians, Latvians, Poles, Czechs, Slovaks, Hungarians, Rumanians, Ukrainians, Greeks, Albanians—and this is only part of the unhappy picture. Genocide is being practiced not only through murder but through deportation, kidnapping of children and other devices for breaking up families.

The concern over Soviet methods of genocide has prompted many Governments to accelerate ratification of the Genocide Convention. This is highlighted by the forceful speech of Lester Pearson, Minister of External Affairs of Canada, who presented the Genocide Convention to the Canadian Parliament for ratification with these words:

"I might read at this point a communication which indicates that genocide is not yet eradicated from that part of the world behind the Iron Curtain. It is addressed to me and reads as follows: 'My wife and I recently spent a week-end in X (X meaning a city in Russia). We were shepherded around. Our train was forced to stop a moment as we were pulling out of the station. I looked from my window and saw, six or seven tracks away, a line of cattle cars. But they were not filled with cattle. They were filled with women. There was an aperture of about a foot and a half between the sides and the roof, and from the opening peered hopelessly out the emaciated faces, framed by clawing hands of numbers of women.

Unknown Destination

"'There were soldiers at the trackside with fixed bayonets, so there should be no mistaking the meaning. It was just a pause. Then our train moved on. But it was as if the corner of a curtain had been lifted, permitting a brief glance into the cesspool. Where these poor unfortunates came from or where they were going we can only guess—perhaps from Estonia; destination—just the east.'"

May I add: The pleading eyes of these women are looking into our very souls. Will they find a human response or will we turn our backs to them—and to our moral and legal duty to prevent these acts of genocide, as we pledged to do under Article One of the Genocide Convention?

EMILIO NUNEZ PORTUONDO,
Ambassador, Permanent Representative of Cuba to the United Nations.

DAR Will Celebrate American History Month

WESTFORD—The Col. John Robinson Chapter of the DAR will hold a meeting in the First Parish Church United, Westford, on Feb. 7 at 2:30 p.m., to celebrate American History month by learning the history of the flag.

Mrs. Eric Hook will trace the development of "old glory" in pictures and stories, delegates for the 77th Continental Congress will be elected and a report of the recent state board meeting in Boston will be given. Hostesses for this meeting are Mrs. Carl Chaplin and Mrs. W. R. Taylor.

The observance of February as American History month was growing in popularity ever since. In cooperating with the American History Month law passed by Congress and proclaimed by the President, the DAR encourages the study and appreciation of American history.

"THROUGHOUT the course of American history and like the history of other nations, those who are recorded and remembered, are those names who have affected the course of events in their nation for good or for evil.

"America has progressed because our American leaders have been men who have worked to build a better country in which to live. We have rejected time and again those who did not base their ideals for this country on the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

"You, as an individual citizen, can assure that only real constructive Americans are the elected leaders of our country, through your vote. The will of the American people speaks through the power of the ballot box."

Club News

DAR—The regular monthly meeting of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR will be held at the Spalding House, 383 Pawtucket St., Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The guest speaker will be Mrs. John H. Gregg, who will talk on "Collectors Items." Members are invited to bring any interesting pieces of old china or glass. Hostesses will be Miss Blanche H. Gray, Mrs. Charles Miller and Mrs. Clarence J. Pangburn.

Story About A Lamp

Mrs. John H. Gregg, third from left, guest speaker at the April meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held at the Spalding House tells members all about the lamp she is holding. Listening attentively are, left to right, Miss Blanche H. Gray, chairman of the day; Miss Hazel A. Gardner, pourer, and Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, regent.

DAR Hear Talk

LOWELL—Mrs. John H. Gregg, widely known lecturer and authority on old glass, china and historical antiques was the guest speaker at the April meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held at the Spalding House.

Mrs. Elmer V. Truesdale, regent, welcomed the speaker, members and their guests and presided at the business meeting during which reports were read by Mrs. Charles E. Watt, secretary and Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer. The invocation was given by Mrs. Walter E. Morse, Mrs. George J. Morse was the pianist for the occasion.

In addition to a very interesting lecture members were given the oportunity to view a most unusual display of the speaker's antiques. She explained that she became interested in collecting when she was a child. Being the daughter of a sea captain, the first things she collected were sea shells.

Much to the delight of the DAR members she commented at length on the hand blown window panes which enhance the Spalding House. She described new uses for the old "hair receivers" so popular at the turn of the century, and said they are now very much in demand as table centerpieces, candleholders and buffet ornaments. She displayed New England pineapple glass over 100 years old and Flint goblets made in 1865 to commemorate President Lincoln's death. She also showed lovely cherry colored scent bottles of the Victorian era; red block glass made in Sweden late in the 19th century, and the heavy etched and very valuable Heissy glass made in Boston in 1840.

Much attention was focused upon a one-inch thick glass pen, now a cherished conversation piece, and on a variety of tubular glasses. These were used to save the tears of wives and sweethearts whose loved ones were away at sea, and became tangible expressions of how the women wept and grieved till the men came home.

IN THE varied collection were Civil War bottles, Lincoln, Washington and Valentine bottles; little cups without handles made in 1740 and in which tiny flat china dolls were placed so that children would drink the cup's content in order to get the doll at the bottom.

DAR On World Tour Via Color Slides

LOWELL — Mrs. Walter Cleven of Chelmsford, widely known traveler and winner of the YWCA scholarship, took members of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR on a world tour, at their March meeting held at the Spalding House, and shared the highlights of her recently enjoyed 60 day trip around it with them, via her beautiful collection of color slides and a much appreciated lecture.

Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, regent, welcomed the speaker, members of the DAR and their guests.

Reports were read by Mrs. Charles Watt, secretary and Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer. Mrs. Walter E. Morse gave the invocation and patriotic singing was accompanied by Mrs. George Morse at the piano.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Truesdale presented the guest speaker who delighted her audience first with a visit to the home of Winston Churchill at 10 Downing St., London, then to an English market place and on to colorful gardens which are as necessary in every yard as the stone walls that surround them.

Next on the armchair tour was Paris with its Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, the River Seine, Les Champs Elysses, the museums and galleries from where Mrs. Cleven sped her audience on to Geneva, Switzerland, to view its beautiful lake, its famous fountains and a stately building where the YWCA works with labor organizations and where the World Council of Churches meets.

Then came Athens, India and the Philippines, and their too numerous to mention attractions.

Mrs. Cleven described the customs of the people in the countries she visited, their way of living and their problems.

After the lecture Mrs. Ray MacAusland, announced that Kathleen Marie Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Lyons of Novate, Cal., received the DAR Citizenship award in California. Her father is a former resident of Lowell. In behalf of the members, Mrs. MacAusland extended congratulations and an invitation to Miss Lyons to be the guest of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR.

The program of the afternoon was brought to a close with a social hour during which delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Harold Jewett and Mrs. William Smith under the direction of Miss Glennis Ranlett, hospitality chairman.

The Topic Is History

February is American History month and this was the subject being discussed by Rev. Joseph H. Giunta, pastor of the Grace Universalist Church, guest speaker at the meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held at the Spalding House. Shown with him left to right are Mrs. Chester Runels, historian, Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, regent and Mrs. Charles Watt, secretary.

Navy Chaplain Describes His Rescue At DAR Meeting

LOWELL — Rev. Joseph H. Giunta, pastor of the Grace Universalist Church and former U.S. Navy Chaplain, opened his interesting address before a record number of DAR members at the February meeting of the Molly Varnum Chapter held at the Spalding House with the question, "What is there in a man, when he faces danger that makes him want to help someone else?"

After quoting multiple examples of the brotherhood of man in present times, Rev. Giunta told the DAR that when his ship was hit, he had to help serve as doctor. He too was wounded as he went down with the bombed ship. Out of nowhere came a man who tried to save him. Thinking the attempt would fail, he told the man to save himself but the latter answered, "Perhaps we can both make it." Later Rev. Giunta learned the man was Lt. Thomas Aquinas Kelly, a Roman Catholic, who in the act of saving a Protestant Chaplain's life, lost his own. The speaker stressed the fact that, "Lt. Kelly gave up his life for someone else and this was simply displaying the Kingdom of the Divine."

Continuing, Rev. Giunta said, as he was left floating in the water, covered with blood and his face badly torn, he saw another man covered with oil, swimming toward him. Just as the man took him in his arms to help him swim, the chaplain fainted, but he was brought to safety. After 36 hours of unconsciousness he awoke aboard a destroyer. This time Lt. Robert Harris of Jewish faith, had saved him.

Rev. Giunta concluded his talk reiterating his strong beliefs in the brotherhood of man and citing examples of how people in peril seek to save others before themselves.

MRS. ELMER Truesdale, regent, presided at the business meeting and welcomed members and guests. Following the DAR's custom to observe February as American History month, the Molly Varnum chapter announced the winners of awards for outstanding work in American History. Medals were awarded to Joseph McDermott of the Moody School and Deborah Klowski of the Joseph Pyne School. Certificates went to Lee Allen of the Moody School and Janice Miele of the Joseph Pyne School.

Mrs. Walter E. Morse, gave the invocation and read a tribute to Mrs. Dewey Darling, late regent of the DAR for her untiring efforts in behalf of the organization. A moment of silence was observed in her memory.

Reports were given by Mrs. Charles Watt, secretary, and Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer. Mrs. George Morse was pianist for the program.

After the meeting, a coffee hour featuring delicious refreshments was enjoyed. In keeping with the historical theme of the day, cakes were decorated with tiny hatchets, cherries and hearts.

Hostesses were Mrs. George Morse, Mrs. Clayton Jennison and Mrs. Frederick Chenery. Miss Glennis F. Ranlett was chairman of hospitality.

Ex-Treasurer And Treasures

Mrs. Charlotte Prescott Greig, former treasurer for the town of Westford, finds time now to do more reading, oil painting and to collect more antiques for her already fabulous collection. After 33 years on the job though, she finds life just a little bit routine.

Fletcher

"A Bit Dull"

Retires As Westford Town Treasurer After 33 Years

WESTFORD — Anxiously waiting for full springtime to mature so she can utilize some of her boundless energy to plant her sizable flower garden 75-year-old Charlotte Prescott Greig finds her retirement as treasurer of the town of Westford a "bit dull." She has held this important post for 33 years.

Not but what she has several hobbies that keep her interested and occupied. Oh, no! She misses the daily routine of opening the giant sized, old black safe in the town treasurer's office, spreading out her many books on the desk, and spending a full day pouring over the financial records of the community.

This she has done with great dependability and accuracy for a period of time which few elected officials can equal.

Mrs. Greig was appointed temporary treasurer back in 1929 after the death of the then-treasurer, Mrs. Perley E. Wright. She has filled the post ever since, being re-elected each time (usually without opposition) as her term expired.

Compensation for her services, for a long time, was set at $500 per year. Even this salary suffered a 10 per cent reduction which all town employees had to take across the board when the great depression set in. This netted her $450 per year, with no consideration that her office was in her home.

THE treasurership was not her first town position, however. During World War I she was appointed acting town accountant, substituting for Harold W. Hildreth while he served in the armed forces. During the depression period, she was clerk for various "Letter Agencies" such as the WPA and ERA.

As the years went on, and Westford expanded, so did the treasurer's work load. At the time of her retirement, the salary had reached $3380 a year and some one and one-half million dollars of town funds passed through her hands last year.

Mrs. Greig has already been busy removing the winter mulch from her rose bushes and other perennials, and is eager to get down to the heavier job of spading up her garden and trimming the lawn around her neat, white cottage, her home for over 30 years.. She lives in a very old, one-and-a-half story house on Main street which has a commanding view to the south, including Robbins Hill fire tower in Chelmsford, and also parts of Billerica.

In her home, Mrs. Greig has an enviable collection of antiques, with many fine pieces of furniture handed down through the family. In addition, she has been been collecting pewter, silverplate of the Gay Nineties period, and of late antique glassware and miniature lamps.

SHE IS AN avid reader and also dabbles in oil painting.

Mrs. Greig can trace her Yankee ancestry back to England, on both sides. John Prescott landed in Boston in 1640, remained a short time in Watertown before he settled in Lancaster. The youngest of his nine children, Jonas, a blacksmith by trade, settled in Groton. He became one of the largest landholders in that town and after the resettlement of Groton after its destruction by the Indians in 1676, he built mills and a forge for the manufacture of iron from the ore in Forge Village, then a part of Groton. Probably this was done about 1710, and for the next 160 years the descendants of Jonas controlled and managed the Forge Company.

On the other side of her family tree, Mrs. Greig traces her forebears to Robert Fletcher, who settled in Concord from England in 1630. When Mrs. Greig's parents, Noah Prescott and Frances Tower married, it linked two old Westford families, the Fletchers and the Prescotts.

Mrs. Greig was born on April 24, 1886, in the house which still stands on Boston road opposite, the Women's clubhouse,

SHE attended Westford academy from which she was graduated in 1904, along with twelve others; some in the three-year course, she in the four-year course.

After studying at Colby college in Waterville, Maine, Charlotte Prescott then became the sole teacher in the grade school at Sandown, N. H. When she arrived to take over her duties, there were no textbooks, no pencils nor paper. She recalls that it was quite a challenge for a young girl, fresh out of school, to face such a situation at the outset. At the beginning of each term, the school shifted to another location as the youngsters came from long distances and these moves evened up the traveling hardships for all.

ONE year in the rural country was enough for young Charlotte, so she returned to her native home to attend Lowell Commercial college where she studied bookkeeping, typing and shorthand for two years. Again when she reached 40, Mrs. Greig returned for a refresher course.

Mrs. Greig brought up two daughters and a son. Donald Fletcher Greig died suddenly in 1955 leaving three children, Donald, Bradley and Donna, who make their home in Groton and probably on land originally owned by a Prescott.

Her oldest daughter, Helen Anderson, lives in Silver Springs, Md., as does her daughter, Joan Layne. Joan has a son, Danny, 10, which makes Mrs. Greig a great-grandmother. Her youngest child, Priscilla, is married to Howard S. Jones and they live in Auburn, Me. Daughter Cynthia is an honor student at Colby college and Howard, Jr., attends the local high school.

The Prescotts and Fletchers, since Colonial days, have served Westford in government, in education and in religious and civic life, and have served the community well. Charlotte Prescott Greig, by carrying on this tradition, has earned the respect and gratitude of her fellow citizens.

Changes in Citizenship Law Now in Effect

LOWELL — Andrew W. Ansara, district immigration agent of the Massachusetts Division of Immigration and Americanization, announced today that a recent United State Supreme Court decision has invalidated the law that revokes United States citizenship of persons who have voted in foreign elections. In May, on a 5 to 4 decision, the Supreme Court restored American citizenship to Beys Afroyim, a Polish-born person, who was naturalized in 1926. Under the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization laws, Afroyim was deemed to have lost U. S. citizenship by having voted in an election in Israel between 1950-1960. Speaking for the majority, Justice Hugo L. Black stated, "citizenship is no light trifle to be jeopardized any moment Congress decides to do so. The very nature of our free government makes it completely incongruous to have a rule of law under which a group of citizens temporarily in office can deprive another group of citizens of their citizenship."

Any individual in the Greater-Lowell area who has been advised he lost U. S. citizenship by voting in a foreign election can now request that he be re-documented as a U. S. citizen. Mr. Ansara says he can assist such individuals in this matter. He will be at the Civil Defense office, City Hall, every Wednesday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. There is no charge for this service or for any other service for individuals who have questions or problems relating to immigration or citizenship.

DAR Opens Season

LOWELL — The Molly Varnum chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, opened its season with a buffet luncheon in rooms aglow with early autumn beauty at the Spalding house.

Entertainment for the afternoon was provided by Miss Mary M. Dunn, a reader, whose selection was in harmony with the social spirit of the day, and by little Miss Gale Ashworth, a talented pianist.

During the business session Miss Agnes V. Eaton, regent, reported highlights of the guest speakers' talks at the fall conference in Chicopee which she attended as delegate.

State Senator Richard R. Caples, speaking on "Subversive Activities in This Commonwealth," discussed efforts to influence people against the Committee on Un-American Activities, the increasing liberalism of a New England newspaper, "mob" reactions to patriotic speakers in two cities, alleged Communists among leading guests at the Boston Art festival and the alleged presence of a Mau Mau organization in Boston.

Hubert Kregeloh, radio commentator and analyst, spoke on Communism from the national viewpoint, scanning events since his April speech before the national DAR congress in Washington. He discussed the Cuba and Berlin situations and issues before the U.S. Senate.

MR. KREGELOH urged that citizens not just listen and then accept or reject, but read further and study issues.

The regent offered praise on the articles of some Lowell Sun columnists.

The board of managers served as hostesses for the day, with the luncheon in the charge of the hospitality committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Orville G. Adams, with Miss Glennis F. Ranlett as co-chairman.

FLAG: Q. Why is a flag said to be at "half mast" instead of "half staff"? L. T.

A. It is undoubtedly due to the fact that this was originally a nautical observance. Captain Smith's "Seaman's Grammar" as early as 1627 makes reference to the flying of a flag at half mast as a sign of mourning.

Andree Foisy, certificate for good citizenship from the Daughters of the American Revolution, presented by Mrs. Albert Catherwood.

Nature of Genocide

Confusion With Discrimination Against Individuals Seen

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Genocide Convention, which is already in force after having been ratified by forty-one nations representing half of the population of the world, is still not sufficiently known and is even misunderstood by some persons. Genocide is a rare crime of great magnitude.

The twentieth century, which has already lost some twenty million people by the crime of genocide, and which is a century of turmoil and upheaval, must be especially watched. Genocide can be committed by a series of techniques which are all subordinated to the intent to wipe out the specific group. Not only killings can achieve this but also inflicting serious bodily or mental harm. The inclusion of the "serious mental harm" provisions in the genocide concept is a contribution of the U. N. delegation of China, which complained that in the course of Japanese occupation many millions of Chinese were administered drugs, and this resulted in a disintegration of their minds on a vast scale.

The opponents of the Genocide Convention have been asking, literally, can one be guilty of genocide when one frightens a Negro? Obviously not, because fear alone cannot be considered as serious mental harm as meant by the authors of the convention; the act is not directed against the Negro population of the country and by no stretch of imagination can one discover in the United States an intent or plan to exterminate the Negro population, which is increasing in conditions of evident prosperity and progress.

Methods for Enforcement

The machinery of enforcement of the Genocide Convention represents a blending of international control and national action through domestic law. According to Article V of the Genocide Convention the contracting parties will enact domestic law in accordance with their Constitutions in order to give effect to the provisions of the convention and in particular to provide penalties for persons guilty of genocide. From the point of view of the American Constitution the Genocide Convention is in a uniquely favorable position because Article 1 of the Constitution provides that Congress shall have the right to define offenses against the law of nations. The Genocide Convention will not become the law of the land in the United States before Congress has enacted a genocide statute. It is well established by decisions of the Supreme Court that a treaty provision which is made dependent on legislative action does not take effect upon the law of the land until such action is had (Foster v. Neilson, 2 Pet. 253, and U. S. v. Percheman, 7 Pet. 513).

International control over genocide is achieved through Article 8 of the convention, which permits any contracting party to bring up cases of genocide and their suppression. The contracting parties may also submit disputes relating to the Genocide Convention to the International Court of Justice according to Article 9 of the convention.

But submission of a case to the International Court of Justice does not imply per se that the findings of the court shall be enforced. The United Nations alone can enforce such a judgment or accept an advisory opinion which has the status of recommendation only.

The Assembly felt strongly that cases of genocide would require speedy action because preservation of human life and stopping human suffering are paramount and must supersede any protracted search for legal niceties. The damage of genocide is essentially beyond repair. Hence, the authors of the Genocide Convention introduced Article 8, which from the point of view of actual suppression of genocide is more important than Article 9.

Opinion Questioned

In a recent article it was stated that Article 9, dealing with the International Court of Justice, is the "heart" of the convention, and therefore the reservations by the Philippines and the Iron Curtain countries to this article reduced the convention to "a mere humanitarian proclamation." Such an opinion is incorrect because, as mentioned above, Article 8 of the convention is superior to Article 9 as far as enforcement is concerned.

This letter for reasons of space is unable to clarify all erroneous statements which were made concerning the Genocide Convention. Very often discrimination against individuals, which is dealt with by the U. N. Human Rights projects, has been confused with the Genocide Convention, which deals with annihilation.

The tragically dramatic nature of genocide should not be permitted to be deflated. By confusing genocide with discrimination injustice is done not only to existing international law but also to the good name of some democratic societies which might be unjustly slandered for genocide.

Raphael Lemkin.

"To the Editor of The Post:

"Sir—To settle an argument, was Paul Revere on the Charlestown shore at the time the lanterns were displayed in the steeple of the Old North Church on April 18, 1775?"

No. The first thing Revere asked his friends upon his arrival in Charlestown was whether they had seen the lights. Revere had ridden out to Lexington the Sunday before, and on his return arranged with the patriots in Charlestown that they should watch the Old North's steeple for the signal on the night the British marched, so that if Revere or some other messenger was unable to cross the harbor, a Charlestown Son of Liberty could make the necessary ride to Lexington.

The speaker for the afternoon will be Rev. Gaston Carrier, pastor of the Grace Universalist church. In commeration of the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, his subject will be of a patriotic nature.

In the DAR magazine, Gertrude S. Carraway, president general of the National Society, DAR says in her monthly message; "In observing the month of February as American History month, Daughters of the American Revolution should honor and ennoble our ancestors and predecessors by rededicating ourselves to the fundamental principles of our Constitutional Republic and our great patriotic society. Our society has always tried to keep non-political, nonpartisan and non-personal, abiding by principles that seek the best interests of no special individual or group but rather the good of the entire society and the entire national as a whole. By telling more of our young people about our constitution, constitutional government and American way of life, Daughters of the American Revolution are thus helping to protect America's future through patriotic education.

D.A.R. TROUNCES NAVY IN DISPUTE OVER FLAG

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution proudly announced today that they had trounced the United States Navy in a fight over flags. The D. A. R. said that Old Glory "at last flies in its proper place at naval headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Norfolk, Va."

It was on April 11, 1952, that the dispute started, according to Miss Gertrude Carraway, D. A. R. president general.

That's when members of the D. A. R. read news stories about Admiral Lynde D. McCormick's opening of naval headquarters in Norfolk. They were dismayed when they learned that the NATO flag was to fly in the middle of a semicircle of flags of member nations.

The D. A. R. convention was coming up the next week, and the ladies adopted then a resolution condemning the procedure. Admiral McCormick stood his ground. He insisted that the United States flag was honored properly.

This April the D. A. R. convention adopted another indignant resolution. It enthusiastically backed a bill introduced by Senator Edward Martin, Republican of Pennsylvania, which would keep another flag from being flown in a position equal or superior to Old Glory. Only exception: United Nations headquarters in New York.

Finally, the bill passed the House of Representatives and the Senate and was signed by President Eisenhower.

Miss Carraway went to Norfolk last week to see whether the Navy was complying with the law. They found that the NATO flag had been moved away altogether to the headquarters building where it now flew on a short standard.

American History Behind Glass

DAR Has One of the Nation's Most Amazing Museums in Capital

By ISABEL KINNEAR GRIFFIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—Bright-colored ribbon made fair mending tape back there before the years turned George Washington's reddish-brown hair a silver gray.

A punch bowl measures alongside Patrick Henry's "If this be treason, make the most of it" little finger ring.

And what was high style in handkerchiefs when Lafayette crossed the stormy seas from France to have part in America's great Revolution, echoing today from earth's farthest corners?

Proof of the above facts and answers to the question and many others having to do with the early history of our republic are to be found in Washington, in what is probably one of the most unusual museums in the world: The Museum of the Daughters of the Revolution.

Here assembled and displayed with grace and beauty are objects used and enjoyed by the men and women who settled the United States of America, fought for its independence and founded our form of government on ideals yeasting today in countries all over the world.

They are housed in part of a $7,000,000 group of buildings which had its beginnings in 1892 when the modest sum of $650 was collected by a group of women as the nucleus of a building fund for the newly organized Daughters of the American Revolution.

The D. A. R. Museum today has probably the most complete collection of objects depicting the history of our republic as seen in the relics which belonged to the founding fathers and their contemporaries.

There are more costly collections, and vastly more rare items. But nowhere, probably, is there such an assemblage of the personal, every day objects, from wearing apparel and jewelry, household articles and furnishings, to personal letters and manuscripts of the men and women who settled a new country than is to be found in the D. A. R. Museum and its state rooms.

From the 13-star American flag which waved in some of the battles of the Revolutionary War before we were a nation and before we had an official flag, to the Lowestoft cup and saucer which belonged to the indomitable and unsurpassed Dolly Madison; from the unknown Revolutionary soldier who carved these daring words on his powder horn: "The red coat who steals this horn, will go to Hell from whence he's born," to the spectacles of Benjamin Franklin . . . it's all there, the story of the patriots who made our country the country it is today.

The D. A. R. Museum provides source study for everything from early American glass and pewter to Revolutionary swords, both elegant and makeshift. Each piece has the added zip of having once been part of history. There's the plate from which George Washington ate pork and beans during his New Jersey campaign in 1776; Daniel Boone's chair has recently come in for wide attention from the juvenile visitors; Lafayette and Washington's handkerchiefs hang side by side in identical frames.

In the jewelry section a locket contains the hair of Thomas Jefferson and his wife, while a lyre-shaped pin reveals the exact shade of George Washington's hair when he was young.

Nearby is Martha Washington's mourning pin, containing a lock of his graying hair as it was at the time of his death.

In addition to the Museum, the 28 Period rooms owned and furnished by separate states, offer much in the way of early American history and study. They depict the different types of rooms found in the households of those periods from Massachusetts' sitting room of Revolutionary days to New Hampshire's attic, now housing a large collection of children's belongings of every description.

The D. A. R. Museum and State rooms, incidentally, continue to house a fine collection of White House paraphernalia, given by Daughters who are descendants of Presidents. Such items include examples of china from what is probably the most remarkable set of dishes ever made—the White House china, each piece of different shape and depicting separate items of flora and fauna of Amercia.

The D. A. R.'s are justly proud of their Americana collection. It is uniquely American.

Historical

Under our first objective, HISTORICAL, one of the aims is preservation of historical data having to do with the growth of our Nation and the passing of this knowledge on to others. The observance of American History Month has been stressed and through our instigation, Governors of 40 States have issued proclamations for it. We advocate the teaching of American history as a required course in the schools. To promote love of history in the minds of the young people, over 7,000 American history certificates and medals were given last year. Historic spots are marked and their stories carefully recorded, and the location of graves of Revolutionary soldiers continues.

In our Memorial Continental Hall is the DAR Museum to collect, preserve, and exhibit Revolutionary relics. It is dedicated to the Colonial, Revolutionary, and early Federal periods of our country's growth. This collection now contains some 10,000 items, which are rotated throughout the year and are on view in 80 display cases. It is open to the public every day, Monday through Friday. This museum is recognized as one of the finest in the country.

Our DAR Library, also in this building, houses more than 46,000 books and pamphlets and 30,000 manuscripts and is considered one of the largest and most complete genealogical libraries in the world. This too is open to the public.

Educational

Under our second objective, EDUCATIONAL, we have our DAR School Committee, formerly known as the Approved Schools Committee, which is devoted to fostering the education of underprivileged boys and girls who otherwise would not have the opportunity for an education. There are 11 schools that we aid; two are owned and operated by the DAR.

The American Indians Committee was established to help American Indians take their rightful place in our American way of life; under this committee also under this objective is the committee on Americanism and DAR Manual for Citizenship. The goal of this committee is to make better citizens of ALL who live on American soil through citizenship training. Some of our members teach Americanization classes for the foreign born, showing how to appreciate our American traditions, institutions, and the blessings of liberty. The DAR Manual for Citizenship is published in English, German, and Spanish and is invaluable in our work with the foreign born in helping them to prepare for the naturalization examinations.

Other committees under this heading include the DAR Good Citizens, whose aim is to stress the qualities of good citizenship among the students in our senior high schools. An annual award of a $100.00 savings bond is given a senior high school girl from each State who possesses the qualities of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism.

The Junior American Citizens Committee is vitally important, since its primary purpose is the teaching and promotion of Americanism and good citizenship to the children and youth of this country. This committee is unique in that clubs sponsored by DAR chapters can be organized in parochial or other schools, settlement houses, orphanages, or community centers. Membership is open to all boys and girls, regardless of race or creed, and costs the member nothing. Other committees under this heading are no less important, such as Student Loan and Scholarship and the Caroline Holt Educational Fund, but time does not permit me to tell all they accomplish.

Patriotic

The third objective of our Society is PATRIOTIC. Under this heading we have the very important National Defense Committee. The primary object to our Republic, to develop interest in national affairs and to stimulate CONSTRUCTIVE action in support and preservation of our Constitution. This committee watches closely the legislative trends in education, immigration, and world government and, since its beginning, has advocated an adequate defense for our country—in other words, to promote and enlighten public opinion. Our National Defense Office is staffed with capable women who have access to much information from the United States Congress and the House Un-American Activities Committee. The information emanating from this office is completely documented and authenticated. Under the same heading is our National Resolutions Committee, which is made up of over 60 women from all parts of the United States who have served at the national level of DAR and represent the fields of law, medicine, education and business.

In the National Defense Office is a file with an overwhelming number of letters from people all over the country—editors, ministers, Congressmen, and private citizens—praising our stand on many so-called controversial issues. We have been praised for our courage in adhering to our principles and for our attempts to awaken people to the dangers of these issues.

You notice that "enlightening the general public" is one of the reasons for the founding of our Society and is one of the aims of this committee. The sad fact is that even some of our own members do not want to be enlightened. One member was heard to remark that she didn't want to read anything sent out by the National Defense Committee because "it kept her awake nights." Some others say they just don't believe all the things they get from this committee. BUT, isn't it strange that they are willing to believe anything they read in their local newspapers? AND isn't it shocking that, when questioned by outsiders, these members are unable to stand up for their own Society, do not have pride enough in their organization to refute these stories, and do not have the knowledge to give

Society? They are completely at a loss as to what to say! No wonder, when they refuse to read information sent them and, furthermore, refuse to believe it! It is appalling that so many members know so little about the DAR — an organization for which some have worked so hard and so long and with great perseverance to attain membership. One of the finest services we can render our Society is to learn what our own organization stands for and does. In that way we ourselves will be THE public relations representatives for the DAR —the best and most effective public relations we could possibly have!

For and Against

I have heard people say, "Why is the DAR always AGAINST things?" In the foregoing you have heard about many of the things we are FOR. We are also FOR everything that will preserve and safeguard our American way of life. As true Americans, of course, this is our duty. BUT we are AGAINST and will NOT tolerate anything that will undermine our Republic, and we will not compromise on our principles.

As you can see, your Society has a tremendous program of service, the scope of which is far reaching; through its various committees, many members find an outlet for their particular interests.

Is this not an organization of which you can be proud? And it is YOUR organization! Don't ridicule it or belittle it; don't disparage it or criticize it, until you have examined carefully and investigated thoroughly the reasons behind its decisions and beliefs.

There is a plaque in Memorial Continental Hall which is a fitting reminder to us of our duties and responsibilities as members. The inscription reads:

Here in this Memorial Hall dedicated to Patriotic Ancestors, it is for us, collectively and individually, to dedicate ourselves anew to the service of Home and Country. We are the representatives of a Society of living, active American women pledged to the perpetuation of American ideals of government, American ideals of social life, American ideals of religious faith and religious freedom. We come here as to a sanctuary for the servce of country is also the service of God.

SO WHAT DOES MEMBERSHIP IN THE DAR MEAN TO YOU? It means an awareness of our responsibilities as Americans. It means not only service to others, the purpose for which it was founded, but its deep and invaluable friendships. There is so much in DAR of which we can be proud, not simply because we are privileged to belong, but because of its fine work. Finally, it means that being a part of this great organization which works so tirelessly and diligently for the America we all want is a high privilege. DO support it by knowing what it does and what it stands for and by taking an active part to help further its work. AND remember that the prestige and the respect it holds as a patriotic society in our country today are unequaled!

DAR Sinks Navy in Row Over NATO Flag Display

BY ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) —The Daughters of the American Revolution proudly announced today that they have trounced the U. S. navy in a fight over flags.

The DAR said that Old Glory "at last flies in its proper place at naval headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Norfolk, Va.

The NATO flag, which formerly flew in what the DAR thought was the position of honor, has been pulled down. Moreover, the very hole in which it stood has been filled cement.

The DAR knows this is true because its officials have just returned from a reconnoitering expedition to Norfolk. Their report: the navy passed the flag test with its proper colors flying.

Row Started in 1952

The announcement was made in a news release, and details of the victory were filled in by Miss Gertrude Carraway, DAR president general.

It was on April 11, 1952, that the ruckus started.

That's when members of the DAR read news stories about Admiral Lynde D. McCormick opening NATO's naval headquarters in Norfolk. They saw red when they learned that the NATO flag was to fly in the middle of a semicircle of flags of member nations.

The DAR convention was coming up the next week, and the ladies got into action. They adopted a resolution condemning the whole thing, and applauded when Representative John T. Wood (R-Idaho) called the NATO flag "a strange and alien rag."

Then the DAR went to work. In its own words, Mrs. James B. Patton, the president general at that time, began "voluminous correspondence and arguments" and "alerted others to this situation."

McCormick stood his ground. He insisted that at all times the U. S. flag was honored properly.

Checked on Navy

Finally, the bill passed the House and the Senate—unanimously— and was signed into law by President Eisenhower.

Another organization might have relaxed here. But not the DAR.

Last week Mrs. Patton and Miss Carraway went down to Norfolk to see for themselves whether the navy was complying with the law. "Frankly," Miss Carraway said, "we doubted if they even had heard of the law."

But the navy had heard all right. The NATO flag had been moved away altogether, to the headquarters building where it now flew on a short standard.

The DAR's triumphant conclusion:

"Thus, again a stand of the Daughters of the American Revolution in behalf of 'Due glory for Old Glory' has been fully vindicated."

The D. A. R. knows this is true because its officials have just returned from a reconnoitering expedition to Norfolk. Their report: The Navy passed the flag test with its proper colors flying.

The announcement was made in a news release, and details of the victory were filled in by Gertrude Carraway, D. A. R. president general.

It was on April 11, 1952, that the ruckus started.

That's when members of the D. A. R. read news stories about Adm Lynde D. McCormick opening NATO's naval headquarters in Norfolk. They saw red when they learned that the NATO flag was to fly in the middle of a semicircle of flags of member nations.

The D. A. R. convention was coming up the next week, and the ladies got into action. They adopted a resolution condemning the whole thing. Mrs. James B. Patton, the president general at that time, began "voluminous correspondence and arguments" and "altered others to this situation."

McCormick stood his ground. He insisted that at all times the United States flag was honored properly.

U.N. Hq. Only Exception

This April the D. A. R. convention enthusiastically backed a bill introduced by Senator Edward Martin, Rep. of Pennsylvania, which would keep another flag from being flown in a position equal or superior to Old Glory. Only exception: United Nations headquarters in New York.

Finally, the bill passed the House and the Senate—unanimously—and was signed into law by President Eisenhower.

Another organization might have relaxed here. But not the D. A. R.

Last week Mrs. Patton and Miss Carraway went down to Norfolk to see for themselves whether the Navy was complying with the law. "Frankly," Miss Carraway said, "we doubted if they even had heard of the law."

But the Navy had heard all right. The NATO flag had been moved away altogether, to the headquarters building where it now flew on a short standard.

The DAR's triumphant conclusion:

"Thus, AGAIN a stand of the Daughters of the American Revolution in behalf of 'Due Glory for Old Glory' has been FULLY VINDICATED."

Joan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Petroski of 45 Dale avenue, Dracut. On March 15 she will spend the day in Boston with girls from more than 200 high schools and enjoy an historical tour. One good citizen will be chosen state pilgrim and will receive a $100 bond, given by the state society.

Upon graduation, June plans to enter the Catherine Laboure school of nursing.

Conditions In Far East Described at DAR Meeting

LOWELL — Mrs. Elsie Howell, introduced to members of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR by Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent, was the guest speaker at the March meeting of the group held at the Spaulding House. She gave a revealing illustrated lecture on conditions in the Far East.

Mrs. Darling presided at the business meeting held prior to the lecture and Mrs. Walter Morse led devotions. Patriotic exercises were conducted with piano accompaniment by Mrs. George Morse.

Mrs. Howell, a nurse, whose station was Sarawa, gave detailed descriptions of the poverty and disease which prevail there. She spent three years in a small mission hospital on the tropical island of Borneo, three degrees from the equator where the temperature never goes below 71 degrees and where 100 degrees of humidity are often recorded. She told her audience about the population, the majority of which is Chinese and she gave examples of the difficulties encountered because of the lack of communications and roads.

She deplored the lack of health standards and those of cleanliness and said the life expectancy of the average individual there is 35 years. She described the difficulty of living amid disease where there is no organized supervision of any kind, and she told how children who have never played with toys, start very young to do chores, sell rice, pineapple or whatever they can. While very young they have full responsibility of those younger than they.

Adults, said Mrs. Howell, are always busy fishing or making fish nets, and as many as 30 to 50 people live in cramped quarters together. Less than one per cent of the people are Christians.

Concluding her remarks, Mrs. Howell said we are about 500 years ahead of people in that area where only two of 50 babies born can be expected to live, and she said conditions are such that there is no time to teach only to heal.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Walter B. Morse, Miss Edith Baldwin, Mrs. Charles Talbot II, Mrs. Benjamin Mahoney, Mrs. George Morse and Miss Glennes Ranlett. Mrs. Ralph Duncanson presided at the silver urns during the tea.

DAR Speakers Describe Six Months in Yugoslavia

LOWELL — Mr. and Mrs. Erskine D. Lord, guest speakers at the meeting of Molly Varnum chapter, DAR, at the Spalding house, presented a most interesting illustrated lecture on their six month stay this year in Yugoslavia.

The couple traveled throughout the country. Mr. Lord was sent to Yugoslavia as an engineering consultant by the U. S. government.

Mrs. Lord described the country as a land showing the effects of its successive Roman, Turkish, Austrian and now Communist influences. She cited feudal castles and other structures now preserved as museums.

Discoveries made as travelers included the poor condition of the roads outside the cities, the persistence of traditional customs and dress in country areas, and the scattering of tile stoves among the rows in fruit growing areas as a protection against frost. Farm lands, she noted, are divided into belts which produce one crop almost exclusively, such as hops, fruits, corn or farm animals. The people are noted, she said, for the breeding of some of the finest horses in the world.

Life in the cities, as a whole, is difficult for Americans, she said, noting that few hotels are heated and many have no plumbing. Heat, when present, is provided by a tile stove set up in a room. Instead of water, as in most European countries, she said, one must choose between wine, beer and tea.

THE IMPACT of Communism, noted Mrs. Lord, is felt mostly in the cities. Only about 10 per cent of the land is government owned, she said, so that life in the country areas goes on much as always.

Religion, she said, is discouraged not so much by word as by the many parades, games, races and entertainments planned by the government as a diversion from it. She felt, however, that this has as yet not had much effect on religious practices there.

Economically, she cited some dissatisfaction about wages among the factory workers, who know of such luxuries as radios and television thus far prohibitive in price for them. Their surprise was great, she said, to learn that most automobiles in America are owned by the average working man. Bicycles are the chief mode of travel in Yugoslavia, she said. There are few automobiles, and the cities' buses are almost as wide as the narrow streets.

Education is being stressed throughout the country, she said, and the many universities are free to all. The government, she noted, advises the people that if they want more pay, they must get better training or education.

Following Mrs. Lord's talk, Mr. Lord showed beautiful slides of Yugoslavia's scenery and way of life, bringing them to life with explanations and anecdotes. The couple also displayed a collection of souvenirs.

Miss Agnes F. Eaton presided at the business session.

Concluding the afternoon's program was a social hour, at which hostesses were Miss Hazel A. Gardner, Mrs. J. Lawrence Hallett, Mrs. Walter E. Clement and Mrs. Willard D. Pratt. Miss Goldie Gardner poured.

Challenges OEO On Allegiance Oath

"Does your mind feel 'regimented' by having been taught the Pledge of Allegiance?" That question was put to R. Sargent Shriver, Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity in a letter from Senator Gordon Allott (R-Colorado).

Senator Allott wrote Shriver after reading newspaper accounts (In The Pueblo Colorado Star-Journal) which indicated that the Pledge of Allegiance would be discontinued in the local Head Start Program. The first reason given by OEO for dropping the Pledge was because it contained the phrase "under God."

"My first reaction to the proposed discontinuance . . . was profound shock that such a tortured interpretation of Community Action Program guidelines could have come, even from OEO," Senator Allott told Shriver in the letter.

Subsequent newspaper reports indicated, however, that the Pledge would be dropped because it is "meaningless to this age group" and "too regimented." Senator Allott said that was even "more frightening."

"At the risk of being called a 'reactionary' by some of your people at OEO," Senator Allott continued in the Shriver letter, "but as one who supported increased appropriations for Head Start, I should just like to ask two questions:

"Since when has a liberal dose of patriotism hurt anyone of any age? You had it and so did I. Does your mind feel 'regimented' by having been taught the Pledge of Allegiance? Mine does not," concluded Senator Allott.

D.A.R. POINTS WAY TO BALK RED 'EVIL'

Calls for 'Renewed Spiritual Emphasis' on Nation's Need to Combat Communism

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP) The Daughters of the American Revolution ended their sixty-sixth Continental Congress today with a resolution urging on the nation "renewed spiritual emphasis" to combat "the evil threat" of communism.

The delegates shunted aside a resolutions committee motion on water conservation for a stronger one. The substitute resolution was adopted overwhelmingly in a standing vote. It was the first time in the week-long session that there was any counter action to about thirty resolutions offered by the committee, headed by Mrs. Tom B. Throckmorton of Des Moines.

The 2,237 delegates, passing six resolutions today, also called for traffic safety organizations in all states, noted "a great scarcity" of trained scientists and skilled technicians in the nation and urged that education in the schools and colleges be strengthened by the states and communities.

Holiday Changes Opposed

Yesterday they took a stand against Federal aid to education "in whatever guise."

Opposed today was a pending Congressional resolution which, it was argued, would change some traditional holidays to Mondays, "thus permitting extended week-ends." The D. A. R. said that it wanted to protest "vigorously" against any such "downgrading of our great national heroes and occasions."

In endorsing the resolution on spiritual values Miss Kathryn Diggs, a District of Columbia high school teacher, charged that there was "an element in our society that is trying to destroy religious beliefs."

She said that some schools, including her own, which she would not identify, had dispensed with daily reading of the Bible and recitation of the Lord's Prayer.

"The D. A. R.," she declared, "should go into the school system and try to put this practice back into the basic education of every citizen."

"The more responsibility of this country lies with women and if we don't do something about this lack of religious training, not only in our own homes but in the schools, I'm afraid the result will be devastating to what we fought for for so many years."

Challenge to Committee

The challenge to the resolutions committee came from Mrs. John W. Dubose, chairman of conservation for the District of Columbia. She said that the committee's proposal for conservation of water by construction of ponds, wells, lakes and other storage areas was "most asinine" in view of the national importance of the water supply problem.

She proposed and won adoption of a resolution that called for "a vigorous program of conservation and protection of our waters, involving immediate and long range planning and research and action at every level of government" and cooperation "with those agencies, public and private, which are engaged in safeguarding water and abating the growing dangers of pollution."

The organization installed seven new vice presidents general and held its annual banquet.

DAR Chair Is Denied Jackie

By GEORGE DIXON

WASHINGTON — The Daughters of the American Revolution are so fine, and so good, I can't understand why they appeal to something evil in me.

It could, of course, be pique at not being permitted to join their splendid organization, but if so, this is very petty of me because all my friends know—I hope!—that I am not of DAR caliber.

I'm only a small bore.

It is growing close to DAR time here in Washington again and the the daughters will be shedding their effulgence upon us like the cherry blossoms. Both glorify us with their presence every springtime, although the daughters seem to bloom among us longer. This could be an erroneous impression on my part, owing to the fact that sometimes I miss the cherry blossoms but have never yet succeeded in missing the DAR.

The daughters convocate among us annually and pass many noble resolutions.

THE DAR convocation will be devoted this year to matters other than refusing to lend Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy a chair. The president general, Mrs. Ashmead White, has scheduled many constructive matters on the agenda. These will not be neglected, no matter how badly Jackie Kennedy wants an "indefinite loan" of a DAR chair for her White House interior decoration project.

This chair was built by Parisian cabinetmaker Pierre-Antoine Bellange in 1817 on order of President James Monroe, who presumably wanted it for the White House, But it wound up in the DAR Museum, where they keep things, not members.

Mrs. Kennedy wanted the chair to reunite it with its identical mate, which was given to the White House by Catherine Bohlen, of Villanova, Pa. But I guess the DAR needs all its chairs because it has so many chairwomen. Anyway, President General White took the stand that chairity (sic) begins at home.

I READ with interest a piece in the paper the other day that Supreme Court Justice-designate Byron R. White hates his nickname "Whizzer."

According to this article, the former deputy attorney general has hated it for a long time; that it was a nickname bestowed upon him without his consent by sportswriters when he was All - America halfback at Colorado University, and he feels he should have been allowed to outgrow it.

I doubt not that President Kennedy's first appointee to the highest tribunal in the land may have feelings against being called "Whizzer" now, but I can't believe they're of such long standing.

I had dinner with him last week at the home of Sen. and Mrs. Clair Engle of California. Mr. White was among the last to arrive, and the host, and most of the guests, including Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, hailed him as "Whizzer." He did not look as if he had been called a hated name.

My theory is that he just feels it is time to call a halt.

"Mrs. Nobody Goes Somewhere" Featured Topic At DAR Meeting

LOWELL — The Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR held it's first meeting of the season at the Spalding House with a record number of members and DAR visitors from Methuen. They were greeted by the local chapter board members and standing committee chairmen.

Mrs. Elmer Truesdale, vice regent presided in the absence of Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent. Mrs. Walter B. Morse gave the invocation and the secretary, Mrs. Charles Watt gave her report. Miss Emily Wiggin, curator, told the members of the vast amount of improvements that were made in the Spalding House this past year. Mrs. John Crowe was received as a new member.

The speaker was, Mrs. Louise Morse, and her subject, was "Mrs. Nobody Goes Somewhere". Mrs. Morse has delighted many audiences with her illustrated talks and she was well received by the DAR.

Her pictures took the audience through Venezuela, its virgin forests and to the largest waterfall in the world-the Angel Falls. These falls are three times the height of Niagara Falls but not so wide. She showed a picture of the thatched roof huts, where the natives lived. The houses are practically bare except for a chair, table and a hammock for sleeping. On her tarvels Mrs. Morse always carries 30 pounds of babies' clothing which she collects from friends and organizations to distribute in the village. Her pictures are most unusual. They demonstrate the joy of the mothers, as they receive the gifts brought them.

Mrs. Morse also talked about India and showed pictures of people in Jeipour. Here the children in the schools are given pamphlets on birth control to take home.

She also showed pictures of the Leper Colony in India. Money was raised, through the work with C A R E, for a well, which the people urgently needed. Despite the misfortunes of the colony, the people still seem to have high ambitions to better themselves.

Refreshments were served, after the meeting, by Miss Glennis Ranlett chairman and Miss Blanche Gray co-chairman of the hospitality committee. Mrs. Albert Catherwood was the pourer.

Discussing The Pyramids

"Cities Of The Middle East" Topic Of DAR Meeting

LOWELL — The regular monthly meeting of the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR was held at the Spalding House, appropriately decorated with fall flowers.

Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent, presided at the meeting and Mrs. Charles Watt, secretary, gave her report. A poem was read in memory of Mrs. Roger Gage, by Mrs. Walter B. Morse, who also gave the invocation. Mrs. Ralph Duncanson, treasurer, reported on generous gifts to the DAR along with her regular report. Mrs. George Morse was pianist for the occasion.

Speaker of the afternoon was Rev. Egbert Jenkinson, pastor of a Methuen church. He gave an illustrated lecture on "Cities of Africa or in the heart of Egypt. Here he showed the Sphinx and Pyramids and pointed to places where these had been vandalized and later repaired.

Also shown were roads with cars. This was surprising because in former years people only saw these wonders after riding on the backs of camels. The camel drivers still make good wages from foreign visitors, said the speaker and they live in beautiful homes. They not only receive good wages but receive fountain pens and valuable trinkets.

Here, also, is to be found a mixture of religion—Judaism and the Christian and Moslem religions. The Moslem Mosques are white with gold domes and no one goes in without removing shoes or placing white cotton bags over their shoes. This not only is a religious factor but it protects the beautiful hand made oriental rugs from heel marks. Before entering, one also must wash hands and face.

In Jerusalem, there are one and a half million refugees which present many problems. Here, a church of historical value, built by the crusaders was shown as were the olive trees said to be hundreds of years old, and the Dead Sea.

After the meeting and Rev. Jenkinson's most appreciated talk, a social hour was enjoyed during which dainty sandwiches and home made pastry were served. Hostesses were Mrs. Harold Bartlett, Mrs. Joseph Hartley and Miss Rose Macauley.

The bridesmaids, in similar dresses of pale blue, trimmed with deep blue silk, were Miss Patricia MacDonald, Lowell, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Nancy Ryder, Medford; Miss Anna Manzi, Malden and Miss Judy Hynes, Darien Ct. MRS. WILLIAM MacDONALD

Miss Noyes Honored By DAR Chapter

LOWELL—A large and enthusiastic group of members and friends enjoyed the opening meeting of Molly Varnum chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Tuesday afternoon at the Spalding House. Mrs. William B. MacDonald, regent, presided at the business session.

A highlight of the meeting was the presentation of a 50-year pin and a corsage to Miss Helen W. Noyes in recognition of her chapter membership for that period of time. Miss Agnes Eeaton, vice regent, reported on the fall meeting of the state society held in Greenfield. At this session attention was called to the 100th anniversary of the birth of Lillian (Norton) Nordica, famed operatic soprano and a DAR member.

Guest speaker was Marian arclay of Reading, who gave interesting talk on old wooden ware. It was necessary for this generation's ancestors to make practically all their tools by hand because of the limited amount of money in the majority of homes and the necessity of tools. Ingenuity in workmanship was shown in articles such as a hanger made from the crotch of a tree. A sense of proportion could be seen in fine box making.

Objects exhibited by the speaker showed different methods of structure which were lasting as durability was important in the face of lon working hours of the peopl who made them. A broom wa made from one branch of tree, an end finely shredded form a brush. In all the jects could be seen neatness degree of art and the pers ality of the people.

The meeting concluded w a social hour under the di tion of the board of man ment.

Good Citizenship Winners To Attend DAR Convention

LOWELL—Each year in cooperation with the national society, Daughters of the American Revolution, the Molly Varnum Chapter of Lowell sponsors four high school seniors who are chosen by their school faculty for high merit in the four qualifications, set forth by the national board, DAR.

In order to be a recipient of this award the student chosen must have demonstrated outstanding ability in trustworthiness, service, leadership and patriotism.

On March 15, these four winners will be treated to a day in Boston, where they will be guests at the DAR state convention. In the morning they will attend the meeting, where they will get acquainted with young guests from other Massachusetts chapters, at which time one girl will receive a $100 scholarship award.

After a luncheon period, a conducted tour of the Boston State House will be enjoyed, with an opportunity to meet state officials.

Liven Up

Everyone needs to liven up her life, no matter where she's living it, at this time of year. Wildly wonderful party-pants with matching or contrasting tops in multicolored Paisley are favored. Also wild would be streaks of numerous stripes running up and down or across in varying degrees of width.

Hostesses at Tea

"Peace Corps" Topic of DAR Molly Varnum Chapter Meeting

LOWELL — Mrs. Dewey Darling, regent, conducted the pre-Thanksgiving meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR held at the Spalding House, Pawtucket St., and highlighted by a most interesting speaking program.

Devotions were read by Mrs. Walter Morse and patriotic exercises were led by Miss Leslie Chenery at the piano.

During the first portion of the program Mrs. George Griffin spoke on National Defense. Her topic was, "Prices of Food and how these effect people in the East and West."

Mrs. John R. Flather, guest speaker of the afternoon, gave an interesting talk on the "Peace Corps." Her son Newell Flather and her daughter, Betsy, joined the Peace Corps when it first sarted and experienced very trying times. Mr. Flather went to Ghana where he found the climate very hard to cope with.

Both were received in Washington and greeted by the late President Kennedy and Sargent Shriver before they left for their respective assignments.

As a result of a book drive conducted in Lowell for her son and daughter, 5000 books were collected said Mrs. Flather. Betsy went over to catalogue the books in the library and started a drive for screens. The Ford Foundation gave Newell a scholarship on which he went to college in Ghana and he later taught English and African history in a school there.

Another interesting fact she related to her audience, concerned Mrs. Flather's son Roger, who went to the Philippines with his wife and children and then went to Borneo where another child was born to them. Today Roger is working with some of the many people who are coming to the U. S. from foreign lands.

All members of the chapter greatly enjoyed Mrs. Flather's talk about the Peace Corps and contributions made to it by members of her immediate family.

Guests Of DAR

Selected winners from among students of Greater-Lowell high schools in a contest entitled "Good Citizenship" the above pictured young ladies will be entertained by the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR, March 20 at a luncheon in Boston followed by a tour of the city during which they will be accompanied by Mrs. Clarence E. Edwards, Sr., vice regent of the chapter. They are left to right: Sylvia Lien, Tewksbury high school; Virginia Varnum, Lowell high school; Anne Caster, Chelmsford high school and Carol DesLauriers, Dracut high school.

To the members of Molly Varnum Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution.

At the Chapter meeting held at the residence of Mrs. Thomas Nesmith, March 15th, the Regent stated she had been informed that a Chapter officer had said there was dissatisfaction in the chapter and that she was trying to, or going to split the Chapter and form a new one. At the Board of Management meeting held March 17th, I asked the Regent to whom she referred in making that statement, and the reply was, "it is yourself" and gave as her authority Mrs. George F. Fuller former State Regent. At a subsequent meeting with Mrs. Fuller I requested her to give me the reason she had for saying that I was going to split the Chapter and form a new one. She replied she had not said that, but what she had said was in the letter to Mrs. Nesmith containing the statement for the Chapter. The following is a true copy of Mrs. Fuller's statement for the Molly Varnum Chapter, written from Springfield.

My dear Mrs. Nesmith.

While regretting exceedingly the necessity of bringing my name into a Chapter trouble, since you have appealed to me in the interest of your Chapters good I feel obliged to answer your questions, which I have already answered verbally, I have heard of dissatisfaction in the Molly Varnum Chapter and I have heard of the possibility of the formation of another Chapter in Lowell during this year.

You have asked me if my information was received from Mrs. E. J. Neale Recording Secretary. I regret that LOWELL — ...jamin Franklin Butler, A... Century Ahead," was the to... of Col. Whitman Pears..., guest speaker at the month... meeting of the Molly Varn... m chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held at the Spalding House with Mrs. Dewey S Darling presiding.

Mrs. Walter Morse led the chapter in devotions which were followed, by patriotic exercises accompanied at the piano by Mrs. George Morse. Mrs. Walter Morse read a poem and conducted a memorial service in tribute to Mrs. Eleanor Hosmer. Mrs. George Griffin spoke briefly on National Defense and Mrs. Clarence Edwards reported for the sunshine committee.

As a delegate to the Massa... ...tion held in Boston, Mrs. Charles E. Watt reported that 196 Good Citizenship girls attended from all parts of Massachusetts. The girls represented the highest quality of scholarship and leadership in our Massachusetts high schools. Each was given a corsage of pink carnations with red, white and blue ribbons and treated to a day in Boston as guests of the DAR. Mrs. George Morse, also a delegate, gave an account of her observations at the convention.

The four Molly Varnum chapter Good Citizenship girls honored at the event were Sheila Callahan, Lowell High School; Renee Houle, Dracut High School; Veronica McHugh, Chelmsford High and Carol Kalowsky, Tewksbury High. All attended the April meeting of the DAR and thanked the members for the delightful experience afforded them.

COL. WHITMAN Pearson, a descendant of the Hildreth family which dates back 300 years, is the son of Gen. Gardner W. Pearson and the nephew and ward of Gen. Benjamin Butler who married into the Hildreth family in 1844. Dr. Pearson studied at universities in this country and abroad and after serving as a school administrator in this country went overseas to manage the US Air Force dependent schools in Japan and Western Europe. He is a World War II veteran and a retired Lt. Col. who graduated from several army schools. Since his return from the Air Force School superintendency abroad he has done graduate work in the psychology of public school relations and he is serving on the Dracut High School faculty as chairman of the History-Civil affairs department. He has been interested in tracking down the truth about Benjamin Franklin Butler since his high school days. His history teacher, Susie D. D. Watson once said, "Your father would know more about Gen. Butler than the man who wrote your history book."

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Julian Morrow, Mrs. Lawrence Hallett and Mrs. Benjamin Ashworth. Mrs. Morrow presided at the coffee urns during the social hour.

Next meeting of the chapter will be held Tuesday, May 9 at the Spalding House. Hostesses on this occasion will be Mrs. Ralph Duncunson, Mrs. Edith Baldwin and Miss Evelyn Wilson. Since this will be the annual meeting all members are asked to attend.

Western Europe. He is a World War II veteran and a retired Lt. Col. who graduated from several army schools. Since his return from the Air Force School superintendency abroad he has done graduate work in the psychology of public school relations and he is serving on the Dracut High School faculty as chairman of the History-Civil affairs department. He has been interested in tracking down the truth about Benjamin Franklin Butler since his high school days. His history teacher, Susie D. D. Watson once said, "Your father would know more about Gen. Butler than the man who wrote your history book."

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Julian Morrow, Mrs. Lawrence Hallett and Mrs. Benjamin Ashworth. Mrs. Morrow presided at the coffee urns during the social hour.

Next meeting of the chapter will be held Tuesday, May 9 at the Spalding House. Hostesses on this occasion will be Mrs. Ralph Duncunson, Mrs. Edith Baldwin and Miss Evelyn Wilson. Since this will be the annual meeting all members are asked to attend.

The message from President General Mrs. William H. Sullivan, Jr. was read by the regent and a timely article regarding National Defense was given by the Chairman Mrs. Fletcher.

Delegates to the Spring Conference held in Boston in March gave interesting reports, this being the meeting when Good Citizen Girls from the entire state were entertained. Mrs. Collins reported for Deborah Doucette of Westford Academy and Bonnie Martin from Groton High. They were accompanied by Margaret Hudlin from Groton High school, since there is no sponsor for Ayer at this time.

A Memorial service is held each year and Mrs. Whitehill read the names of the three members of Col. John Robinson Chapter who were honored: Miss Susie H. Shattuck of Groton, an organizing member; Mrs. Thomas A. Watson of Ipswich and sister of Mrs. Whitehill, who was also an organizing member, and an associate member, Miss Julia H. Fletcher.

QUESTION: What is the latest regulation governing the use of the U. N. Flag?

ANSWER: The 83rd Congress of the U. S. in May, 1953 passed a bill making it an offence against the U. S. to display the flag of the U. N. above, or in a position of superior honor, to the U. S. flag within the U. S. or its territories. However, this bill states that it is not to interfere with the practice of displaying the U. N. flag in a position of superior prominence at the headquaters of the U. N. where the U. N. flag flies above those of all the nations, or at any place which any offical meeting or proceeding of the U. N. is in progress.

17 RECORD AMERICAN, BOSTON, MONDAY, OCT. 23, 1967

the American Revolution, was held at a Groton restaurant.

During the business meeting, the officers read their annual reports. Mrs. Whitehill, registrar, reported a membership increase, and Mrs. Wood, secretary, reported on the years interesting programs. Miss May E. Day remarked about the increase in subscriptions to DAR Magazine and Bay State News and Mrs. Wright told members that several gift packages had been sent to the DAR schools, the Kate Duncan Smith School, Alabama, which has 716 pupils, and the Jamassee School, South Carolina, which has 356 boarding and day students.

MRS. COLLINS, regent, reported on the conferences in Swampscott, Boston, and Washington, D C., and told members about the two Good Citizen days in Boston. Medals were given for excellence in American History to seniors in Westford Academy, and Groton High School. She also spoke of the gift of the Minute Man Flag to the troop, and of the service on Patriot's Day at the grave of Col. John Robinson.

IN SPEAKING of the DAR Continental Congress in Washington Mrs. Collins spoke of the beauty of the grounds of ... Constitutional Hall where over 4000 delegates gathered for the convention.

One of the highlights of the convention was the talk given by Rev. Norman Vincent Peale. Alternating between humor, patriotism, and condemnation, he kept the women in convulsions of laughter and applause.

To add to the enjoyment of the convention, the U. S. Marine Corps Band, the United States Navy Band, and stars of the Metropolitan Opera performed to the delight of the delegates.

The luncheon, which was under the direction of Groton members Mrs. Warren Whitehill and Mrs. Frank Wood, formed the perfect setting for the exhibiting of the certificate of the Honor Roll Silver Award which was presented to the Col. John Robinson Chapter by the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

During the business meeting delegates and alternates were chosen for the Fall State Conference which will be held October 4 and 5 at Oak and Spruce Lodge in South Lee. The Annual New England DAR Service at the Cathedral of the Pines will be held Saturday, August 26 at 3 p. m., with Mrs. William Sullivan, president general, chosen as the speaker for the service.

DAR Campaign To Observe American History Month

LOWELL — During this month, February, the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution of which Mrs. William Henry Sullivan, Jr. is president general, is conducting a vigorous campaign to make all Americans, particularly school children, conscious of our American History through the observance of American History Month.

Fifty DAR State organizations, plus the District of Columbia and the Canal Zone, through nearly 300 chapters, have arranged for various means of observance of historic events occurring since the early days of our country.

For instance, governors and mayors have issued proclamations designating February as American History Month, historical essays and other appropriate activities have been arranged in schools; American History Month posters and stickers are being used extensively, and special public patriotic meetings are being conducted.

The purpose of this observance by the DAR is to safeguard, through knowledge and appreciation, our American Heritage.

An historic event commemorated on the first day of February, was the first meeting of the Supreme Court of the United States, held Feb. 1, 1790, with Chief Justice John Jay presiding.

In the ngloff, Mrs.Duncanson conducted the patriotic exercises in the reciting of giance and the American's Creed and Mrs. Morse assisted at the piano while n was sung by the members.

the vice regent, introduced the reader Miss Mary Margaret Dunn of Westford on "the Quiz Show" and an encore "Little Mickey Flynn and his adenoids." played by Gail Ashworth, Miss Dunn gave a selection "Mabel and her chum ds."

The regent announced that the November meeting will present Mr. and Mrs. Erskine D. Lord with the topic Yugoslavia Today and will have slides to accent the talk. They are coming with the stipulation that our chapter invites other nearby chapters. We have invited Methuen, Andover, Lawrence and Westford. We have been advised by Andover that they will be unable to come since it is their meeting day. Mrs. Lord is chairman of Lineage Descent.

No secretary's report was read and no treasurer's report was given since both these officers were absent.

We have a new committee on Americanism and D.A. R. Manual. Mrs. Truesdale is chairman. She is our member's (Rose Macauley's)sister. Also Mrs. Lelia D. Chenery is secretary of student loan. Our society has granted a scholarship to Warren Austin to assist him at college.

Our regent gave an interesting and concise report on her attendance at the Chicopee meeting. The subject covered on Civil Defense was stressed as to our being alert and observe and understand what is being printed in our newspapers and broadcast on the radio, and she called attention to what was stressed as to the activities of the communists right here in Massachusetts. ~~Thurmond~~ There have been demonstrations of their activities in Newburypot, Marlborough and Boston. Beware of the men in our government who have sworn to defend our Constitution but go out talking about changing and revising it or adopting some form of a new one.

Mrs. Barris, chairman of Good Cheer reported that the following members have been sick and still are: Mrs. Sloane, Mrs. Hartley, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Douglas of Dunstable. Flowers have been sent to these members. We have had eleven deaths this past year.

Two resolutions were presented for voting:
(1) The Board unanimously suggests that a new gas heating equipment be installed as soon as possible inplace of our ancient old furnace and
(2) The Board unaminously recommends that this purchase be implemented by a division of payments into thirds,-the money to be taken from the Mary Morrison Fund in the following manner: a down payment of $470, upon installation, followed by two payments of $300 each.

A motion was made and seconded and so voted to adopt the two resolutions.

Mrs. Gage reported on the excellent conditions of the house and commended Mr. and Mrs. Higginbottom for their attention to the needs of the house inside and out.

A thought is being given to the work of the Treasurer and possibly there can be created an office of Assistant to the Treasurer.

Mrs.Spiller our treasurer has submitted her resignation, as also has Mrs. Gongloff who is chairman of the Use of the Flag committee.

TWELVE REASONS

TO VOTE FOR

MRS. JAMES B. PATTON

FOR PRESIDENT GENERAL, N. S. D. A. R.

AND HER ASSOCIATES FOR CABINET OFFICES

1. Each Candidate has superior qualifications for her respective position, as evidenced by data in the Ticket Brochures.

2. They will make outstanding National Leaders, devoted to the ideals of our Society and well posted on its principles and procedures.

3. All have a thorough knowledge and understanding of Chapter, State and National work, which has grown out of administrative and executive experience in the Society's many activities. Already they have proved their value to the Society. Ten have served as State Regents, five as National Chairmen, two as members of different National Executive Committees. In addition, two have had wide administrative experience as National President of other important patriotic organizations.

4. Representing every Division of our National Society and every section of our Country, it is a well-balanced group, distinctive for community service as well as D. A. R. accomplishments, capable of directing our Society wisely and impartially.

5. Every one of these twelve set a high ethical standard by not becoming a Candidate, in any sense of the word, for her respective office, until after adjournment of the Continental Congress in April, 1949. They thus adhered strictly to the intent and spirit of our National By-Laws, Article II, Section 4.

6. Mrs. Patton became a Candidate only after members in all parts of the United States urged that she become a Candidate for the office of President General. The Office sought the leader.

7. As First Vice President General, Mrs. Patton has proved herself to be an efficient and dependable National Officer and a forceful contact for our Society with other groups and with the public. Her messages and addresses are convincing and inspirational both in subject matter and delivery.

8. Through forty years as a member and many years as a Chapter, State and National Officer, including State Regent, State Vice Regent and State Chairman of National Defense, Mrs. Patton is familiar with the Society's problems and the ways of their solutions.

9. In compiling the National D. A. R. Handbook, Mrs. Patton has had the rare opportunity of tracing our current projects and committee activities from their beginnings and of weighing and evaluating the various phases of our programs—a valuable preparation for molding future plans. This specific training also has given her an awareness of the tremendous new problems which will inevitably arise from the recent expansion of our great National Headquarters, and helps to fit her admirably to undertake the readjustments that must necessarily follow such expansion.

10. Mrs. Patton possesses the innate ability, trained efficiency, sound judgment, wide popularity, gracious personality, Christian character and spiritual grace to unite our organization more closely during this crucial period of world history and guide it to greater achievements for "Home and Country."

11. By her residence in Ohio, near the center of our Society's membership, Mrs. Patton is advantageously situated. A plane trip of two hours or an overnight train can bring her to Washington or to a large part of our membership.

12. Individually and collectively, these twelve Candidates will uphold the highest prestige and dignity of our National Society, and form a united and harmonious, efficient and effective Cabinet, of which our members will be justifiably proud. At heart they have the welfare of the entire Society and all its members. They represent no special groups, and have made no promises except the Pledges and Goals published in their Brochures. Their plans and policies are broadly and judiciously based, without partiality or prejudice, on zealous and constructive objectives to help advance the Society to greater fields of Patriotic Service.

Your Interest And Support Will Be Greatly Appreciated

OF THE

PRESIDENT GENERAL

NATIONAL SOCIETY
DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

SIXTIETH
CONTINENTAL CONGRESS
APRIL 16, 1951

THE PAST IS PROLOGUE

AN ADDRESS BY MRS. JAMES B. PATTON
President General, National Society
Daughters of the American Revolution

Delivered at the opening session of the Sixtieth Continental Congress in Constitution Hall, April 16, 1951

Members of the Sixtieth Continental Congress:

We are, all of us, deeply honored to be in Constitution Hall tonight and participate in the opening of the Sixtieth Continental Congress. We are thrilled and inspired to be a part of this great gathering, and we are conscious of its importance.

Since we were here a year ago world events have moved swiftly. Our country, as a member of the United Nations is now deeply involved in warfare against Communist aggression in Korea.

Washington is the throbbing heart of a great nation girding for defense. The wheels of government grind at ever increasing speed in a supreme effort to adequately prepare our country for any emergency.

We are grateful, therefore, that the already serious congestion in the nation's capital has not prevented use of our facilities here for the Congress. The kind cooperation and consideration we have received from everyone in making the arrangements for this meeting are very much appreciated.

A sixtieth anniversary seems a little more important than those which have gone before, and this Congress carries added responsibilities. It is the in-between stepping stone, a sort of midway point between the fiftieth or golden jubilee and the seventy-fifth or diamond celebration. Some, in fact, designate the sixtieth anniversary as the diamond year.

The years pass all too rapidly. Ten years have slipped away since we held the "Golden Jubilee" Congress and reviewed a half century of D.A.R. activities.

Sixty years, however, do not denote age to a society such as the D.A.R. They signify knowledge and experience. Our National Society today has the buoyant spirit of its youngest members, while it benefits from the wisdom and advice of the very oldest. We are young and we are strong.

Our nation, too, is young and it is strong. This year marks the 175th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. When we look back and consider all of the events which have happened in that comparatively short space of time, we have a profound respect for the wisdom, the judgment and the intuition of the Founding Fathers who planned so well. Thus, this 1951 gathering does have much more than the ordinary significance.

Our sixty years are but the prologue to a glorious pageant of patriotism. For the "Past is Prologue" as we are reminded from the inscription carved in the stone of the Archives Building in this city.

This prologue, or introduction, is the dramatic story of America's struggle for freedom. Our forefathers fought to win Liberty and establish here a government by the people, for the people. Today we prepare to use all of our strength and our resources, if it need be, to preserve that freedom.

To the American pioneer, to the Madonna of the Trail, the pioneer mother, the horizon was often dark. It is the same today. We face the approaching storms with the same unflinching spirit. We go forward to meet our problems, not backward to avoid them.

The D.A.R. is not a society of pessimists. We sometimes view with alarm, 'tis true, but we always point with pride at what America has accomplished and what America can do in any emergency. We have confidence in America. And the Daughters of the American Revolution, let it be said, have never settled any of its problems by appeasement.

In tracing our pathway of freedom let us look at some of the most important milestones in history. The Magna Charta of 1215 was a forerunner because it marked the beginning of the Anglo-American constitutional development, basic to our freedom. The Mayflower Compact of 1620 set forth the participation of free men in creation of their government.

The Declaration of Independence in 1776 established the principles of the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The Constitution of the United States of 1787 and the amendments to the Constitution created a government of checks and balances in which laws and not men should be supreme.

Under our Constitution the United States has grown to be the most powerful free nation of the world. We have the highest standard of living. Our amazing capacity for production, and our superior "know-how" in manufacturing have astonished the world.

After the terrific strain of World War II we were still so strong that we were able to give freely of material and food supplies to the war devastated nations. Communists, on the other hand, withdrew behind an iron curtain and began their program of conquering the weak by infiltration, intrigue and sabotage. Consequently, we have been using up some of our strength and resources while they have not.

We now reach a point for momentous decisions, both as to our future course in Asia as a member of the United Nations and in the defense of Europe as a member of the Atlantic alliance. At the same time we are charting a course of home defense. It is a time for sober thinking.

The United States does not intend to withdraw behind an iron curtain of its own. That is not the American way. But sovereign rights and freedom of action should be safeguarded in any collective plans and agreements which affect the security of this nation.

National defense today is not a matter of arms and armies alone. National defense requires global planning. It is a highly technical business involving men and women, all of us, machines and tools, production, distribution, a stupendous, co-ordinated, scientific effort to be ready to resist attack and to subdue any enemy.

Through many years the Daughters of the American Revolution have consistently advocated an adequate national defense to cope with any emergency.

History has shown we were right. Indeed, what is past is prologue. It is our contention now that the national defense of America and the Americas

In those remote places in the southern mountains Americanism stands out as worth struggling for and worth fighting for. The mountain people have a high regard for freedom, for independence, for integrity. The children of the hills are eager to learn and they make good citizens. To my mind there is no place in this great country where a dollar spent in education brings such abundant returns. A dollar still goes a long way at those schools.

Beyond the scope of our approved schools work, lies the program of Americanism we are supporting in the crowded districts of the cities. The Junior American Citizens Clubs are popular and they are growing. These children are going to be the leaders of tomorrow and they are learning to be patriotic leaders, good Americans, law-abiding citizens.

These city children as well as those in smaller places are growing up in a world of bewildering changes. World War II disrupted the established pattern of family life. There was a let-down in child care. Many mothers, who became workers to aid the war effort, continued their employment after the war had ended. Rising taxes and the cost of living have made continued employment necessary. Children have been left to themselves. As a result juvenile delinquency increased and is still high.

We have aided substantially in this problem but it remains a serious one. We need more boys clubs, more community centers, more supervised playgrounds. Our own Junior American Citizens are enrolled in clubs, and the list of members, now beyond the 356,000 mark, is steadily growing. These children are typical young Americans and they are patriotic Americans who are starting on the right pathway.

A long time ago the Daughters of the American Revolution organized Girl Home Makers Clubs. It is another foundation stone in our temple of citizenship. Our programs, our contests in the making of dresses, in composing menus, in cooking and in housework create the home making interest. Results of this activity are noteworthy.

Any effort which helps to keep the American home fires burning in these disturbed days, anything which improves home life, is good support for the national defense effort. The whole structure of the American way of life rests upon the family and the home. There is a national effort at this time to encourage thrift in the home, to encourage saving, to buy only what we need, to avoid extravagance, in order to keep inflation from wrecking our economy.

Today our Society has financial problems but when we review the history of our organization we realize how magnificently our membership has always risen to meet every problem. Construction of Constitution Hall placed a very substantial financial burden upon the Daughters of the American Revolution. That burden, however, was lifted with true D.A.R. spirit and tonight we enjoy this fine auditorium and are thankful to those who planned so wisely. This again is but prologue and what we are accomplishing now in financial payments on our stately group of buildings, our Bell Tower at Valley Forge, and in arranging our budget to efficiently carry on the work of the society, will some day be reviewed as a task well done.

That work, begun in 1890, goes forward day by day. And as we complete our appointed tasks others rise to take our places. All is action, united action. There are many things, too numerous to mention, including student loans, conservation, aid for American Indians, promotion of American music, Manuals for Citizenship, many, many activities which are always expanding as we increase in membership.

We never know just how wide and deep our efforts reach, for we seek no glory. But we are repaid a thousand times for all we do when an immigrant woman turns to a D.A.R. member in naturalization court and declares in broken words: "When we pray in our family we always ask God to bless America and keep this country free. Thank you for helping me."

Fires of patriotism are re-kindled in times like that. And with it comes a prayer that peace may be established between nations. In all of our endeavors the thought of peace is uppermost. The people, the common people, everywhere want peace. Preparedness in America is protection to secure peace and security. We do not prepare to wage war as an aggressor. We prepare to resist aggression. The Daughters of the American Revolution stand for peace and always will.

Throughout this great country there is a fervent desire for peace. Only recently I completed a long journey across the United States and into the west and northwest, through thousands of miles of hills and valleys, mountains and plains and deserts. It was a land of peace. There were no ugly scars of devastation, no ruined cities, no camps of refugees.

What impressed me most was the sight of the American flag always proudly flying in the breeze wherever I went. I noticed it over country school houses, in front of farmer's homes, displayed from flagstaffs on buildings in the cities, and, symbol of our productive might, waving with assurance over American factories and huge industrial plants.

To me, all this seems proof of a nation truly "indivisible, with Justice and Liberty for all." The people of this country have different viewpoints, different opinions, and they hold affiliations in different political parties, organizations, churches. But when we travel into the far reaches of the land we realize that we are a united people when it comes to our republican form of government, our American way of life.

We hold that same unity of purpose in our own society. Member by member and chapter by chapter, we are working toward a common goal. That goal is to help others, to build a stronger country and a better citizenry. It is a goal to secure for mankind all the blessings of liberty.

With God's help and guidance we will be strengthened and inspired in our united endeavors.

Report on State Meeting in Boston March 15, 1967

Our regent, Mrs. Darling, Mrs. Duncanson, Mrs. Watt, Mrs. Dana and myself left by train for Boston at 7:50 a.m. Wednesday morning, March 15th accompanied by the four Good Citizenship girls, Renee Boule of Dracut, Veronica M. McHugh of Chelmsford, Sheila Callahan, Lowell and Carol Kalakowsky of Tewksbury. Upon arrival at Boston we went by taxicab to the Sheraton-Plaza hotel and made our registrations. Program opened at 9:45 a.m. Having 196 good citizenship girls in attendance added enthusiasm and the reception in their honor was inspiring. 37 girls were unable to be present because of distance. Rose Marie Clement of Barnstable was chosen the Massachusetts D.A.R. Good Citizenship of 1967. Her name will be among those considered for the National title at the D.A.R. Continental Congress in Washington which will be held April 16 to the 21st.

Various greetings and presentation of guests and many reports were given at the morning session.

We ate lunch in the hotel Copenhagen room and will say the food was good.

At 1:30 p.m. the impressive Memorial Service was held at which recognition was given to the 166 members who passed on during the year. We who are so busy everyday seldom take a short period to meditate upon those members who devoted much time to our Society and have been removed from their labors, and every time I attend a state conference I do feel it my duty to attend the Memorial service.

Soon after the afternoon session at 2:00 o'clock we were told that there was a surprise heavy snowstorm so the program took on a hurried aspect. The good citizenship girls tour of Boston was cut down and we were able to leave for home on an earlier train than what had been planned for.

My final word is "Know your D.A.R. - its projects, its principles, and the work of its committees and talk it up."

Ex-Treasurer And Treasures

Mrs. Charlotte Prescott Greig, former treasurer for the town of Westford, finds time now to do more reading, oil painting and to collect more antiques for her already fabulous collection. After 33 years on the job though, she finds life just a little bit routine.

"A Bit Dull"

Retires As Westford Town Treasurer After 33 Years

WESTFORD — Anxiously waiting for full springtime to mature so she can utilize some of her boundless energy to plant her sizable flower garden 75-year-old Charlotte Prescott Greig finds her retirement as treasurer of the town of Westford a "bit dull." She has held this important post for 33 years.

Not but what she has several hobbies that keep her interested and occupied. Oh, no! She misses the daily routine of opening the giant sized, old black safe in the town treasurer's office, spreading out her many books on the desk, and spending a full day pouring over the financial records of the community.

This she has done with great dependability and accuracy for a period of time which few elected officials can equal.

Mrs. Greig was appointed temporary treasurer back in 1929 after the death of the then-treasurer, Mrs. Perley E. Wright. She has filled the post ever since, being re-elected each time (usually without opposition) as her term expired.

Compensation for her services, for a long time, was set at $500 per year. Even this salary suffered a 10 per cent reduction which all town employees had to take across the board when the great depression set in. This netted her $450 per year, with no consideration that her office was in her home.

THE treasurership was not her first town position, however. During World War I she was appointed acting town accountant, substituting for Harold W. Hildreth while he served in the armed forces. During the depression period, she was clerk for various "Letter Agencies" such as the WPA and ERA.

As the years went on, and Westford expanded, so did the treasurer's work load. At the time of her retirement, the salary had reached $3380 a year and some one and one-half million dollars of town funds passed through her hands last year.

Mrs. Greig has already been busy removing the winter mulch from her rose bushes and other perennials, and is eager to get down to the heavier job of spading up her garden and trimming the lawn around her neat, white cottage, her home for over 30 years.. She lives in a very old, one-and-a-half story house on Main street which has a commanding view to the south, including Robbins Hill fire tower in Chelmsford, and also parts of Billerica.

In her home, Mrs. Greig has an enviable collection of antiques, with many fine pieces of furniture handed down through the family. In addition, she has been been collecting pewter, silverplate of the Gay Nineties period, and of late antique glassware and miniature lamps.

SHE IS AN avid reader and also dabbles in oil painting.

Mrs. Greig can trace her Yankee ancestry back to England, on both sides. John Prescott landed in Boston in 1640, remained a short time in Watertown before he settled in Lancaster. The youngest of his nine children, Jonas, a blacksmith by trade, settled in Groton. He became one of the largest landholders in that town and after the resettlement of Groton after its destruction by the Indians in 1676, he built mills and a forge for the manufacture of iron from the ore in Forge Village, then a part of Groton. Probably this was done about 1710, and for the next 160 years the descendants of Jonas controlled and managed the Forge Company.

On the other side of her family tree, Mrs. Greig traces her forebears to Robert Fletcher, who settled in Concord from England in 1630. When Mrs. Greig's parents, Noah Prescott and Frances Tower married, it linked two old Westford families, the Fletchers and the Prescotts.

Mrs. Greig was born on April 24, 1886, in the house which still stands on Boston road opposite, the Women's clubhouse,

SHE attended Westford academy from which she was graduated in 1904, along with twelve others; some in the three-year course, she in the four-year course.

After studying at Colby college in Waterville, Maine, Charlotte Prescott then became the sole teacher in the grade school at Sandown, N. H. When she arrived to take over her duties, there were no textbooks, no pencils nor paper. She recalls that it was quite a challenge for a young girl, fresh out of school, to face such a situation at the outset. At the beginning of each term, the school shifted to another location as the youngsters came from long distances and these moves evened up the traveling hardships for all.

ONE year in the rural country was enough for young Charlotte, so she returned to her native home to attend Lowell Commercial college where she studied bookkeeping, typing and shorthand for two years. Again when she reached 40, Mrs. Greig returned for a refresher course.

Mrs. Greig brought up two daughters and a son. Donald Fletcher Greig died suddenly in 1955 leaving three children, Donald, Bradley and Donna, who make their home in Groton and probably on land originally owned by a Prescott.

Her oldest daughter, Helen Anderson, lives in Silver Springs, Md., as does her daughter, Joan Layne. Joan has a son, Danny, 10, which makes Mrs. Greig a great-grandmother. Her youngest child, Priscilla, is married to Howard S. Jones and they live in Auburn, Me. Daughter Cynthia is an honor student at Colby college and Howard, Jr., attends the local high school.

The Prescotts and Fletchers, since Colonial days, have served Westford in government, in education and in religious and civic life, and have served the community well. Charlotte Prescott Greig, by carrying on this tradition, has earned the respect and gratitude of her fellow citizens.

At the banquet when this short retreat will close, this idea of community will be dramatized by having bread of many nations bespeaking that Christ loves each of us as His creatures without distinction as to race, color or class. DAR Luncheon Specialties

Chicken Jubilee, Rice Ring Ideal For Summer Functions

By Marguerite Lyons

LOWELL — When Mrs. Ray E. MacAusland, widely known musician, plans a menu, the courses blend harmoniously, and are served somewhat in the rhythmic sequence that one naturally associates with music.

Mrs. MacAusland is the former Marjorie Lake. A native of Lowell, she was educated at Lowell High school, Boston University and the New England Conservatory of Music. She also studied music under Richard Hallinger, renowned Metropolitan Opera Co. accompanist, in Salzburg, Austria, where she attended the famous festivals, while on some of her many travels on the continent with her husband, Ray E. MacAusland, now retired. He was an instructor in the Chemistry department at Lowell Technological Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. MacAusland, who make their home at 528 Westford St., spent six summers in Europe and visited Austria, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, France and East Berlin. Their travels also took them as far north as Alaska and beyond the border to Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay.

The couple has four children. All married, they are: Calvin, an industrial engineer who makes his home in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Douglas, who owns and operates an automobile business in Pittsburgh; Donald, assistant principal of Darrian High school, Wilton, Conn., presently spending the summer in Hawaii with his family, and Mrs. Robert (Ruth) Mullarkey, a teacher in the Wilmington school system. The MacAuslands also have 11 grandchildren.

Mrs. MacAusland, who takes great pride in the fact that she is a direct descendant of Capt. Zachariah Fitch, who led the Minute Men and for whom Fitchburg was named, holds membership in the Molly Varnum Chapter of the DAR, the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Middlesex Women's Club and the Lowell General Hospital Women's Association.

A MUSIC teacher and linquist, having studied German and Spanish extensively, Mrs. MacAusland formerly wrote a music column for a Lowell daily and several of her articles have appeared in weekly magazines.

She firmly believes that the Pilgrims may have been the first to barbecue a turkey when they spit-roasted theirs over an open fire, but her favorite meats are chicken and steak. She is an expert at combining unusuals in casserole cookery and her salads are as eye appealing as they are delicious.

Soup, she refers to, not only as a magical restorative but a marvelous seasoner, too. An excellent recipe for club or circle functions or for summer entertaining at home is Chicken Jubilee made with chicken rice soup mix, chicken breasts and a special sauce full of plump dark, sweet cherries.

It's the delicious sauce which gives the poultry such delicate, delicious flavor—and the sauce starts with an envelope of chicken, rice soup mix. Chicken jubilee is the kind of dish one would expect to find in a fine restaurant, but it's simple to prepare at home and proves itself a favorite with the most difficult to please.

CHICKEN JUBILEE

1 jar (1 pound 1 oz) pitted dark cherries drained (reserve liquid)
2 tablespoons kirsch
¼ cup flour
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 envelope (1½ oz) chicken rice soup mix
1¼ cups boiling water
⅓ cup dry wine

In small shallow bowl, sprinkle cherries with kirsch; set aside and turn occasionally. Kirsch may be substituted by 1 tablespoon brandy extract with 1 tablespoon of water.

Combine flour, salt and pepper; dredge chicken breasts in this seasoned flour. In a large deep skillet, melt butter and saute chicken breasts on both sides until delicately browned.

In medium bowl, combine chicken rice soup mix, boiling water, and ¾ to one cup of the reserved cherry liquid. Stir and add to sauteed chicken breasts. Cover; simmer about 20 minutes or until tender. Remove chicken breasts to platter and keep warm.

Add wine to liquid in skillet; cook over high heat, stirring frequently until liquid thickens. Add cherries and kirsch; heat thoroughly. Pour cherry mixture over chicken breasts on platter. Makes eight servings. A buttered green peas rice ring is an excellent accompaniment.

For a salad change, try this impressive lemon mushroom delicacy sure to please the most discriminating palates.

LEMON MUSHROOM SALAD

½ pound fresh mushrooms thinly sliced.
2 tomatoes sliced
½ cup bottled lemon juice
2 teaspoons seasoned salt
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon cracked pepper
½ teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon marjoram
¼ teaspon oregano
½ teaspoon garlic powder

Wash mushrooms; slice thinly in a jar, combine oil, bottled lemon juice, seasoned with salt, sugar, pepper, basil, marjoram, oregano, salt and garlic powder. Shake mixture well. Four marinade over sliced mushrooms. Cover lightly and marinate overnight to allow mushrooms to absorb the flavors, Serve over wedge of lettuce topped with tomato slice.

Garnished ham rolls are ideal for club luncheons, bridge parties or as a special dinner course. Ham slices may be filled depending on the occasion, with asparagus spears brushed with mayonnaise; with potato salad; with a variety of cream cheese mixtures or with crabmeat, and served with a fruit gelatin mold, hard cooked eggs, olives and buttered, thinly-sliced rye bread.

CRAB HAM ROLLS

1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese
¼ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped toasted almonds salt and pepper to taste
12 slices lean boiled ham

Drain canned crabmeat. Place on chopping board and slice fine with sharp knife. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Have cream cheese at room temperature to soften. Blend crabmeat, celery, parsley, almonds, salt and pepper. Spread on slices of boiled ham and roll, securing with picks if necessary. Chill well. Remove picks and serve garnished with hard cooked egg wedges and olives.

Lemon Mushroom Salad

A simple lettuce and tomato salad can be turned into a gourmet masterpiece with a lemon mushroom dressing. Thinly sliced mushrooms left to stand overnight in a delicately seasoned marinade absorb the savory flavors of bottled lemon juice and spices. As a treat for mushroom lovers the marinade and sliced mushrooms can also be served as an appetizer.

History topic at DAR event

LOWELL — Rev. John H. Sargent, pastor of the Congregational Church, and guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Molly Varnum chapter of DAR, chose American History as his topic and began his interesting talk with a tribute to the late Dwight D. Eisenhower, lauding him not only as a general and president but as a man.

He quoted the principles and stressed the patriotism of our founding fathers and said that true patriotism comes not from organizations but from individuals who have learned the golden rule, love of country and the meaning of brotherhood.

Mrs. Elmer Truesdale presided at the meeting and welcomed members and guests. Mrs. Bowers Fuller, chaplain, gave the invocation and Mrs. Frederick Cheney accompanied the singing of patriotic selections.

A report on the flower fund for sick members was given by Mrs. Albert Catherwood and Miss Emily Wiggin, curator gave an account of repairs for the 200 year old Spalding House, meeting place of the chapter.

Miss Patricia Pestana, Miss Noreen Burke and Miss Joan Nawrocki, good citizenship girls gave their impressions of their recent visit to Boston as guests of the Molly Varnum chapter.

The appointed tea table at which Mrs. Albert Catherwood presided as pourer, was decorated in a spring motif. Mrs. Kenneth Lawson, hostess of the day, was assisted by Mrs. Robert Laporte.

State Activities

MASSACHUSETTS

THE Sixty-fourth State Conference of the Massachusetts D.A.R. convened Tuesday, March 18, 1958, at the Sheraton Plaza, Boston, with the State Regent, Mrs. Alfred N. Graham, presiding. The invocation was given by Rev. Edgar D. Romig, Pastor of Grace Church, North Attleboro. The program for the sessions was presented by the State Vice Regent, Mrs. Willard F. Richards, followed by nominations for State Chaplain. Mrs. Lester S. Wall was nominated to fill the term of Mrs. Frank S. Larkin, resigned. Mrs. Alfred N. Graham was nominated as candidate for Vice President General.

Mrs. Arthur L. Anderson, Jr., State Chairman of Good Citizens, reported 179 Good Citizens present, each wearing a corsage and pin. Two additional schools were represented this year, Bedford High School, sponsored by Old Concord Chapter, and Hull High School by Old Colony Chapter. Mrs. Russell William Magna, founder of the Good Citizens, compared them to our Massachusetts Flower Show and, in the absence of Miss Judith A. Mutti, 1957 Good Citizen, drew the name of Carol Neal, Melrose, to be Good Citizen of 1958. The report of the James Monroe Essay Contest was given by Mrs. Erskine D. Lord, State Historian, and Mrs. Alfred N. Graham, Honorary Chairman of the Judges' Committee, presented a gold history medal to the winner, Miss Joan C. Rooney, Newburyport High School, who also represented her school as Good Citizen. Bronze history medals were given the three runners-up. The procession and reception for the girls followed the address to the Good Citizens by Miss Marion Doctow, who called for idealism and straight thinking to help peoples of the world to learn to live, study and play together and to accept the challenge for youth to carry on with heads held high in this new age.

Admiral John F. Hines, President of American International College, spoke on "Our Crowded Colleges," saying that children who are now twelve years old or younger are going to have a tough time getting into college because of the increased numbers who will wish to enter. Now is the time to help the colleges do something to meet this demand. He said that the D.A.R. dormitory built in 1925 was in need of a $35,000 renovating job. A resolution was adopted to assist AIC in this work.

The Memorial Service for deceased members was conducted Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Lester S. Wall, Acting State Chaplain, with music by the Hi Lows Trio, Mrs. Cushing, Mrs. Habedeau and Miss Hussey with Mrs. Paul Wing, accompanist.

Following the report of the State Historian, Mrs. Erskine D. Lord, Rev. Egbert W. A. Jenkinson, Pastor Emeritus, First Congregational Church of Melrose, gave an impressive talk on, "The Value of History." History records a picture of all people and it is a sobering thought to realize that what we do today will be the history of tomorrow.

Dr. Raymond Gilbert, Deputy Commissioner for Classification and Treatment, State Department of Corrections, spoke on, "Massachusetts Corrections in Transition," saying that correction is one of the most complex problems, requiring routine care in custody and treatment so that the person is rehabilitated according to his needs.

Miss Jean Wright, Junior President of the C.A.R., gave a short history of C.A.R. and some of its needs, particularly more members and older leaders. A resolution to give separate honor-roll credit for this work was adopted.

The banquet was held in the Oval Room. Mrs. Graham introduced her officers and Mrs. Lawrence F. Vories, State Regent of Rhode Island. Music was provided by the Boston Intimate Opera, Margot Warner, director.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Salom Rizk, author of "Syrian Yankee," whose subject was "America is More Than a Country." He told of his struggle in Syria as an orphaned beggar child and his grandmother's desire to keep him with her, his discovery that he was a Christian, American citizen, and his search for many years for his birth certificate so he could come to America. He said we must not be swallowed up by the hate of the Old World.

After the opening exercises on Wednesday morning, Dr. Owen B. Kiernan, Commissioner of Education in Massachusetts, talked on "What is Right With Education."

Mrs. Joseph Tiberio, State Chairman of Radio and TV, reported 5000 cards sent to networks and the Federal Communications Commission, then introduced Dr. David R. Mackey, Chairman of the Division of Communication Arts, Boston University, who spoke on "Decisions."

The resolutions included: that the Star Spangled Banner remain our national anthem; that Washington's Birthday on February 22 continue to be so honored and that any architectural changes in the National Capitol shall not alter the historical significance of the building.

Press scrapbook awards were made to Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, Mrs. Samuel MacLeod, Regent, with honorable mention to Betsy Ross Chapter. Mrs. Herbert F. Perry, State Chairman of Membership, made an award to Duxbury Chapter for greatest net gain in membership, accepted by Miss Eleanor Cole, Registrar. Sarah Bradley Fulton Chapter had the greatest gain in members, having seven, while Abigail Phillips Quincy had six. Molly Varnum Chapter had the greatest number of kinswomen, twenty-one, awards going to all these chapters.

The credentials committee gave the final report of 577 attending and the meeting was adjourned after retiring of the colors.

Old But He Likes It

Gift Crib In Greater-Lowell Family For Four Generations

By Marguerite Lyons

NORTH BILLERICA—Little did the late John Mannahan think that the crib he gave to his dear friend, the late C. Oliver Barnes in 1879 would still be in use and in demand for future use, 89 years after that day.

The names Mannahan and Barnes are widely known in Greater-Lowell. John Mannahan was a real estate agent, who lived at the corner of Branch and Mannahan Sts., the latter named in his honor. Today his three grand-children, Mrs. Stuart Murphy, Mrs. Josephine Lamb and Mrs. Clarence Garlick are residents of Chelmsford.

Mr. Barnes, also widely known, held claim to a long line of patriots, the first of which, Thomas Barnes, settled in Hingham in 1636 and whose descendants fought in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Civil War, Spanish-American War and World Wars I an II.

Interest was revived recently in the unusually interesting crib which Mr. Mannahan gave to Mr. Barnes in the last quarter of the past century when the latter's first child, Leslie, who became Mrs. Edward S. Colton, was born. The gift was something Mr. Mannahan cherished. It had been the household furnishing that had meant play, rest and security for his six children, and had served its purpose well. Having no further use for it, he gave it to his friend, Mr. Barnes and it has since then cradled the children of four generations in the Barnes family.

The renewed interest came about when another member of the Barnes' family, Mrs. Walter (Helen Barnes) Morse, of 488 Chelmsford St., Lowell, chaplain of the Molly Varnum chapter of the DAR, having called a Mrs. Eli Burbeck of Chelmsford pertaining the DAR business, was asked by the latter, "Mrs. Morse, what ever became of my crib—the one my father gave your father when your oldest sister was born?" — From then on many a tale has been told by Mrs. Morse, who incidently is the keeper of the precious hand-carved maple heirloom, which has traveled many a time and mile from Lowell to Pelham, N.H., to Deerfield and Dover, N.H., Berwick, Me., and back and forth to Lowell, Chelmsford and Billerica, where it is presently being used by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wolf of 37 Pollard St., North Billerica for their first child, Stephen Robert, who is 17 months old. Mrs. Wolf is the former Dorothy Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Morse and granddaughter of Mrs. Walter Morse. Her late grandfather had been a local florist for 40 years.

GOING back over the years, Mrs. Morse, who is now 83, recalls when her parents moved from Mannahan St., to London St., and the family numbered four. During the summer evenings as her mother sat by the crib and the open windows she would listen to the services conducted at the House of Prayer next door to their home. After the four Barnes children, Leslie, Carrie, Helen and Charles had outgrown the crib it went back and forth to the homes of their cousins.

When Mrs. Morse married, the crib was entrusted to her and it could always be located at her house. It was used by her seven children, Walter, Jr., Mrs. William (Ruth Katrine) J. Hoare, Jr., Mrs. Vernon S. (Marian Isabel) Cook, Lester A. Morse, Mrs. Albert H. (Cynthia) Burtt, Elizabeth) Popplewell, and Mrs. Berkeley R. (Barbara Mrs .Harold P. (Virginia Evelyn) Edwards.

The crib was also used by all the children of the Morse children and now is being used by their grandchildren.

Though he's still a baby, said Mrs. Morse of her great grandchild, Steven Robert Wolf, he'll soon be outgrowing his crib to take to the ways and romping of all children. Then the crib will be on its way to Dunstable where it is awaited at the home of another grandchild, William James Hoare, III, and his wife, whose little five-month-old Deborah, will become the 40th member of the Morse-Barnes family to use the cherished heirloom.

Reminiscing, Mrs. Morse said that the crib did not come alone to her parents home from Mr. Mannahan, there was a cradle, too. The latter was kept downstairs in the Barnes home, and when "callers" came, said Mrs. Morse, they had a tendency to rock and swing the cradle. "My mother did not want nervous, fidgity, babies, so she tied the cradle, making it impossible for the visitor to go on rocking unconsciously. Then one day, it was loaned to a neighbor. It was never returned.

Recently, said Mrs. Morse, it was learned that a matching cradle to the Mannahan-Barnes crib is to be found in Manchester, N. H. She often wonders if it is the one that came with the crib she would never part with, and she would love to know how its service compares with that given by the crib.

NATIONAL SOCIETY, DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, WASHINGTON, D C.

Madam President General and Members of the National Board of Management:

We have made an examination of the recorded cash receipts and disbursements of the Current and Special Funds of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the fiscal year ended February 28, 1951. Cash to the credit of the several funds was either verified by count or confirmed by the depositary. Securities, representing the investments of the Current and Special Funds, were presented for our inspection. Notes payable of the New Administration Building Fund were confirmed by the holders thereof.

In our opinion, based upon such examination, the foregoing report of the Treasurer General presents fairly a summary of the recorded cash transactions for the year under review, and the cash, investments and notes payable at February 28, 1951.
